Perry Rnew

Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The employment-based immigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a sound developing and soundware supplier. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as an international production development and marketing manager pursuant to section 203(b)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(2). The petition was accompanied by an ETA Form 9089, Application for Permanent Employment Certification (ETA Form 9089), which was certified by the Department of Labor (DOL).

The director determined that the ETA Form 9089 failed to demonstrate that the job requires a professional holding an advanced degree or the equivalent of an alien of exceptional ability and, therefore, the beneficiary cannot be found qualified for classification as a member of the professions holding an advanced degree or an alien of exceptional ability. 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(4). The director denied the petition accordingly.

On appeal, counsel provides no arguments that the position can be classified as an advanced degree professional, but rather claims that the director erred in not issuing a request for evidence (RFE) or notice of intent to deny before denying the petition.

The record shows that the appeal is properly and timely filed. The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into the decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

In pertinent part, section 203(b)(2) of the Act provides immigrant classification to members of the professions holding advanced degrees or their equivalent and whose services are sought by an employer in the United States. An advanced degree is a United States academic or professional degree or a foreign equivalent degree above the baccalaureate level. 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(2). The regulation further states: "A United States baccalaureate degree or a foreign equivalent degree followed by at least five years of progressive experience in the specialty shall be considered the equivalent of a master's degree. If a doctoral degree is customarily required by the specialty, the alien must have a United States doctorate or a foreign equivalent degree." Id.

Section 203(b)(2) of the Act also includes aliens "who because of their exceptional ability in the sciences, arts or business, will substantially benefit prospectively the national economy, cultural or educational interests, or welfare of the United States." The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(2) defines "exceptional ability" as "a degree of expertise significantly above that ordinarily encountered."

Here, the Form I-140 was filed on October 5, 2006. On Part 2.d. of the Form I-140, the petitioner indicated that it was filing the petition for a member of the professions holding an advanced degree or an alien of exceptional ability.

The AAO maintains plenary power to review each appeal on a de novo basis. 5 U.S.C. § 557(b) ("On appeal from or review of the initial decision, the agency has all the powers which it would have in making the initial decision except as it may limit the issues on notice or by rule."); see also, Janka v. U.S. Dept. of Transp., NTSB, 925 F.2d 1147, 1149 (9th Cir. 1991). The AAO's de novo authority has been long recognized by the federal courts. See, e.g. Dor v. INS, 891 F.2d 997, 1002 n. 9 (2d Cir. 1989). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal.¹ On appeal, counsel did not submit additional evidence or a brief and only asserts that the petitioner expressed its intent to hire a person without a college degree as long as the combination of education and experience equals to a Bachelor's degree in business administration, marketing or its equivalent.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(4) states in pertinent part that "[t]he job offer portion of an individual labor certification, Schedule A application, or Pilot Program application must demonstrate that the job requires a professional holding an advanced degree or the equivalent of an alien of exceptional ability."

In this case, the job offer portion of the ETA Form 9089 indicates that the minimum level of education required for the position is a Bachelor's degree in business administration, marketing or its equivalent. Lines 8 of Part H reflect that the petitioner will accept alternate combination of education (at any level as long as the combination of education and experience equivalent to a Bachelor's degree in business administration or marketing) and five years of experience to meet the bachelor's degree requirement. The plain meaning of the language indicates that the minimum level of education required could be as low as no college degree or college study. Accordingly, the job offer portion of the Form ETA 9089 does not require a professional holding an advanced degree or the equivalent of an alien of exceptional ability. However, the petitioner requested classification as a member of the professions holding an advanced degree or an alien of exceptional ability. A petitioner may not make material changes to a petition in an effort to make a deficient petition conform to United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) requirements. See Matter of Izummi, 22 I&N Dec. 169, 176 (Assoc. Comm. 1988). In this matter, the appropriate remedy would be to file another petition with the proper fee and required documentation.²

On appeal counsel asserts that the director erred in denying the petition without issuing a RFE or NOID. The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(8) clearly states that a petition shall be denied "[i]f there is evidence of ineligibility in the record." The regulation does not state that the evidence of ² USCIS records show that the petitioner filed another I-140 immigrant petition (LIN-08-065-50389) on behalf of the instant beneficiary as a skilled worker pursuant to section 203(b)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3) with the Nebraska Service Center on December 21, 2007 based on the underlying labor certification. The new petition was approved by the Nebraska Service Center on March 9, 2008 and the beneficiary's I-1485 adjustment of status application is currently pending.

ineligibility must be irrefutable. Where evidence of record indicates that a basic element of eligibility has not been met, it is appropriate for the director to deny the petition without a request for evidence. If the petitioner has rebuttal evidence, the administrative process provides for a motion to reopen, motion to reconsider, or an appeal as a forum for that new evidence. In the present case, the evidence indicated that the petitioner had failed to demonstrate that the job requires a professional holding an advanced degree or the equivalent of an alien of exceptional ability on the ETA Form 9089 and, therefore, the beneficiary could not be found qualified for classification as a member of the professions holding an advanced degree or an alien of exceptional ability. Accordingly, the denial was appropriate, even though the petitioner might have had evidence or argument to rebut the finding.

The evidence submitted does not establish that the ETA Form 9089 requires a professional holding an advanced degree or the equivalent of an alien of exceptional ability, and the appeal must be dismissed.

Beyond the director's decision and counsel's assertions on appeal, the AAO has identified an additional ground of ineligibility and will discuss this issue. An application or petition that fails to comply with the technical requirements of the law may be denied by the AAO even if the Service Center does not identify all of the grounds for denial in the initial decision. See Spencer Enterprises, Inc. v. United States, 299 F. Supp. 2d 1025, 1043 (E.D. Cal. 2001), aff'd, 345 F.3d 683 (9th Cir. 2003); see also Dor v. INS, 891 F.2d 997, 1002 n. 9 (2d Cir. 1989)(noting that the AAO reviews appeals on a de novo basis).

The record lacks an original ETA Form 9089 because the petitioner filed another petition using the underlying labor certification in the instant case. The regulations at 8 C.F.R. §§ 204.5(a)(2) and 204.5(k)(4)(i) require that any Form I-140 petition filed under the preference category of Section 203(b)(2) of the Act as a member of the professions holding advanced degrees be accompanied by a labor certification.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(4) provides:

Submitting copies of documents. Application and petition forms, and documents issued to support an application or petition (such as labor certifications, Form DS 2019, medical examinations, affidavits, formal consultations, letters of current employment and other statements) must be submitted in the original unless previously filed with USCIS.

(emphasis added).

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g) provides: "In general, ordinary legible photocopies of such documents (except for labor certifications from the Department of labor) will be acceptable for initial filing and approval." (emphasis added). The record does not contain the original labor certification. Therefore, the evidence would not support an approval of the instant Form I-140 petition because the lack of the original of the ETA Form 9089 labor certification.

The regulation 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

The petitioner must establish that its job offer to the beneficiary is a realistic one. Because the filing of an ETA Form 9089 establishes a priority date for any immigrant petition later based on the ETA Form 9089, the petitioner must establish that the job offer was realistic as of the priority date and that the offer remained realistic for each year thereafter, until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. The petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is an essential element in evaluating whether a job offer is realistic. See Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142 (Acting Reg. Comm. 1977); see also 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2). In evaluating whether a job offer is realistic, United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) requires the petitioner to demonstrate financial resources sufficient to pay the beneficiary's proffered wages, although the totality of the circumstances affecting the petitioning business will be considered if the evidence warrants such consideration. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967).

Here, the ETA Form 9089 was accepted on August 25, 2006. The proffered wage as stated on the ETA Form 9089 is $52.03 per hour ($108,222.40 per year). On the petition, the petitioner claims that it has been established in 1988, to have a gross annual income of $6 million, to have a net annual income of $1 million, and to currently employ 16 workers. The petitioner also claims that the beneficiary has been working with the petitioner in the proffered position since January 2004.

In general, 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) requires annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements as evidence of a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. That provides further provides: "In a case where the prospective United States employer employs 100 or more workers, the director may accept a statement from a financial officer of the organization which establish the prospective employer's ability to pay the proffered wage." (Emphasis added.)

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage during a given period, USCIS will first examine whether the petitioner employed and paid the beneficiary during that period. If the petitioner establishes by documentary evidence that it employed the beneficiary at a salary equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the evidence will be considered prima facie proof of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. In the instant case, the petitioner claims that the beneficiary has been working for it under H-1B status. The petitioner submitted the beneficiary's W-2 forms for 2004 and 2005, and paystubs for 2006, the year of the priority date. The beneficiary's paystubs show that the petitioner paid the beneficiary at the rate of $4,166.67 per semi-month ($100,000 per year) in 2006 and paid the beneficiary total amount of $75,000.06 in 2006 as of September 30. Therefore, the petitioner has not established that it paid the beneficiary the full proffered wage from the priority date. The petitioner must demonstrate that it had sufficient net income or net current assets to pay the beneficiary the difference of $8,222.32 between wages actually paid to the beneficiary and the proffered wage in 2006 assuming that the petitioner continues to pay the beneficiary at the same level as in the first nine months to the end of the year. The petitioner must also establish its ability to pay the proffered wage in 2007 through the present.

If the petitioner does not establish that it employed and paid the beneficiary an amount at least equal to the proffered wage during that period, USCIS will next examine the net income figure reflected on the petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. River Street Donuts, LLC v. Napolitano, 558 F.3d 111 (1st Cir. 2009). Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well established by judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F. Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984)); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F. Supp. 532 (N.D. Texas 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983). Reliance on the petitioner's gross sales and profits and wage expense is misplaced. Showing that the petitioner's gross sales and profits exceeded the proffered wage is insufficient. Similarly, showing that the petitioner paid wages in excess of the proffered wage is insufficient.

In K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. at 1084, the court held that the Immigration and Naturalization Service, now USCIS, had properly relied on the petitioner's net income figure, as stated on the petitioner's corporate income tax returns, rather than the petitioner's gross income. The court specifically rejected the argument that the Service should have considered income before expenses were paid rather than net income.

As an alternate means of determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, USCIS may review the petitioner's net current assets. Net current assets are the difference between the petitioner's current assets and current liabilities.³ A corporation's year-end current assets are shown on Schedule L, lines 1 through 6. Its year-end current liabilities are shown on lines 16 through 18. If the total of a corporation's end-of-year net current assets and the wages paid to the beneficiary (if any) are equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the petitioner is expected to be able to pay the proffered wage using those net current assets.

The evidence in the record shows that the petitioner is structured as an S corporation. The record contains the petitioner's Form 1120S U.S. Income Tax Return for an S Corporation, for 2003 and 2004. However, the petitioner's tax returns for 2003 and 2004 are not necessarily dispositive because the priority date in this case is August 25, 2006. The petitioner did not submit its annual reports, tax returns or audited financial statements for 2006 through the present, and therefore, failed to establish its continuing ability to pay the proffered wage from the year of the priority date to the present through the examination of wages actually paid to the beneficiary and net income or net current assets.

³According to Barron's Dictionary of Accounting Terms 117 (3rd ed. 2000), "current assets" consist of items having (in most cases) a life of one year or less, such as cash, marketable securities, inventory and prepaid expenses. "Current liabilities" are obligations payable (in most cases) within one year, such as accounts payable, short-term notes payable, and accrued expenses (such as taxes and salaries). Id. at 118.

The petition will be denied for the above stated reasons, with each considered as an independent and alternative basis for denial. In visa petition proceedings, the burden of proving eligibility for the benefit sought remains entirely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, that burden has not been met.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
