DISCUSSION: The employment-based immigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a security, alarm, and electrical services company. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a field electrical engineer pursuant to section 203(b)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(2). As required by statute, a labor certification accompanied the petition. The director determined that the beneficiary did not possess the required experience as set forth on the labor certification and that the petitioner did not establish its continuing ability to pay the proffered wage. The director denied the petition accordingly.

The AAO issued a Notice of Intent to Dismiss (NOID) on February 23, 2012 concerning the actual minimum educational requirements of the offered position.¹ The AAO requested evidence of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage and the organizational identity of the petitioner given discrepancies in the federal employer identification numbers in the record.

The AAO specifically alerted the petitioner that failure to respond to the NOID would result in dismissal since the AAO could not substantively adjudicate the appeal without the information requested. The failure to submit requested evidence that precludes a material line of inquiry shall be grounds for denying the petition. See 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(14).

Because the petitioner failed to respond to the NOID, the AAO is dismissing the appeal.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.

¹ The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004).
