IN RE: Petitioner: [REDACTED]
Beneficiary: [REDACTED]

PETITION: Immigrant Petition for Other Worker Pursuant to § 203(b)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. 1153(b)(3)

ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER:

INSTRUCTIONS:

This is the decision of the Administrative Appeals Office in your case. All documents have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Any further inquiry must be made to that office.

Robert P. Wiemann, Chief
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Texas Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a bagel shop and restaurant. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a kitchen supervisor. As required by statute, a Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification approved by the Department of Labor, accompanied the petition. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the continuing ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage beginning on the priority date of the visa petition and denied the petition accordingly.

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed, timely and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact. The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into this decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

As set forth in the director's original April 24, 2007, decision, the single issue in this case is whether or not the petitioner has the ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(iii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(iii), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing unskilled labor, not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states, in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall either be in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements. In a case where the prospective United States employer employs 100 or more workers, the director may accept a statement from a financial officer of the organization which establishes the prospective employer's ability to pay the proffered wage. In appropriate cases, additional evidence, such as profit/loss statements, bank account records, or personnel records, may be submitted by the petitioner or requested by [Citizenship and Immigration Services (CIS)].

The petitioner must demonstrate the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date, which is the date the Form ETA 750 was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the Department of Labor. See 8 CFR § 204.5(d). The priority date in the instant petition is November 17, 2003. The proffered wage as stated on the Form ETA 750 is $8.75 per hour or $18,200 annually.

The AAO maintains plenary power to review each appeal on a de novo basis. 5 U.S.C. § 557(b) ("On appeal from or review of the initial decision, the agency has all the powers which it would have in making the initial decision except as it may limit the issues on notice or by rule."); see also, Janka v. U.S. Dept. of Transp., NTSB, 925 F.2d 1147, 1149 (9th Cir. 1991). The AAO's de novo authority has been long recognized by the federal courts. See, e.g. Dor v. INS, 891 F.2d 997, 1002 n. 9 (2d Cir. 1989). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal¹. Relevant evidence submitted on appeal includes counsel's brief. Other relevant evidence includes copies of the petitioner's 2003 through 2006 Forms 1120S, U.S. Tax Returns for an S Corporation, a compiled financial statement for the ten-month period ended October 31, 2006, a letter, dated March 28, 2007, from the petitioner's owner, copies of the petitioner's owner's [REDACTED] account for the periods September 27 through December 31, 2004, October 1 through December 31, 2005, and January 1 through January 31, 2007, and a copy of the compiled personal financial statement for the petitioner's owner as of March 10, 2007. The record does not contain any other evidence relevant to the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage.

The petitioner's 2003 through 2006 Forms 1120S reflect ordinary incomes or net incomes from Schedule K of $0, -$2,843, -$1,236, and $6,108, respectively. The petitioner's 2003 through 2006 Forms 1120S also reflect net current assets of $4,523, $3,601, $3,049, and $10,543, respectively.

The [REDACTED] account of the petitioner's owner shows a total value of $20,034.58 for the period September 27 through December 31, 2004, a total value of $18,321.55 for the period October 1 through December 31, 2005, and a total value of $18,834.02 for the period January 1 through January 31, 2007.

The letter, dated March 28, 2007, from the petitioner's owner states:

My plan all along has been that [the beneficiary] would take over the shop when she became eligible to work, and at that time I would leave the shop and start a new franchise that I would manage. I have enclosed financial records for my shop from 2003 to the present as well as a listing of my assets.

Up until now I have paying myself as an officer and employee, but when [the beneficiary] becomes eligible to work, I will stop these payments to myself, and draw my pay and benefits from the new franchise I will be managing.

On appeal, counsel contends that the petitioner has established its ability to pay the proffered wage of $18,200 based on its available profit, officer compensation, part time salaries, and the personal assets of the petitioner's owner.

The petitioner must establish that its job offer to the beneficiary is a realistic one. Because the filing of an ETA 750 labor certification application establishes a priority date for any immigrant petition later based on the ETA 750, the petitioner must establish that the job offer was realistic as of the priority date and that the offer remained realistic for each year thereafter, until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. The petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is an essential element in evaluating whether a job offer is realistic. See Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142 (Acting Reg. Comm. 1977). See also 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2). In evaluating whether a job offer is realistic, CIS requires the petitioner to demonstrate financial resources sufficient to pay the beneficiary's proffered wages, although the totality of the circumstances affecting the petitioning business will be considered if the evidence warrants such consideration. See Matter of Sonegawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967).

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, CIS will first examine whether the petitioner employed the beneficiary at the time the priority date was established. If the petitioner establishes by documentary evidence that it employed the beneficiary at a salary equal to or greater than the proffered wage, this evidence will be considered prima facie proof of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. In the instant case, on the Form ETA 750, signed by the beneficiary on November 3, 2003, the beneficiary does not claim the petitioner as a past or present employer. In addition, counsel has not submitted any Forms W-2, Wage and Tax Statements, or Forms 1099-MISC, Miscellaneous Income, issued by the petitioner on behalf of the beneficiary for any of the pertinent years, 2003 through 2006. Therefore, the petitioner has not established that it employed the beneficiary in 2003 through 2006.

As an alternative means of determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, CIS will next examine the petitioner's net income figure as reflected on the petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well established by judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F. Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984)); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F. Supp. 532 (N.D. Tex. 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F.Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd., 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983). In K.C.P. Food Co., Inc., the court held that CIS had properly relied on the petitioner's net income figure, as stated on the petitioner's corporate income tax returns, rather than the petitioner's gross income. 623 F.Supp at 1084. The court specifically rejected the argument that CIS should have considered income before expenses were paid rather than net income. Finally, there is no precedent that would allow the petitioner to "add back to net cash the depreciation expense charged for the year." See also Elatos Restaurant Corp., 632 F. Supp. at 1054. The court in Chi-Feng Chang further noted:

Plaintiffs also contend the depreciation amounts on the 1985 and 1986 returns are non-cash deductions. Plaintiffs thus request that the court stia sponte add back to net cash the depreciation expense charged for the year. Plaintiffs cite no legal authority for this proposition. This argument has likewise been presented before and rejected. See Elatos, 632 F. Supp. at 1054. [CIS] and judicial precedent support the use of tax returns and the net income figures in determining petitioner's ability to pay. Plaintiffs' argument that these figures should be revised by the court by adding back depreciation is without support.

(Emphasis in original.) Chi-Feng at 537.

Where an S corporation's income is exclusively from a trade or business, CIS considers net income to be the figure for ordinary income, shown on line 21 of page one of the petitioner's Form 1120S. The instructions on the Form 1120S, U.S. Income Tax Return for an S Corporation, state on page one, "Caution, Include only trade or business income and expenses on lines 1a through 21."

Where an S corporation has income from sources other than from a trade or business, net income is found on Schedule K. The Schedule K form related to the Form 1120 states that an S corporation's total income from its various sources are to be shown not on page one of the Form 1120S, but on lines 1 through 6 of the Schedule K, Shareholders' Shares of Income, Credits, Deductions, etc. See Internal Revenue Service, Instructions for Form 1120S, 2003, at <http://www.irs.gov/pub/irs-03/i1120s.pdf>, Instructions for Form 1120S, 2002, at <http://www.irs.gov/pub/irs-02/i1120s.pdf>, (accessed February 15, 2005).

In the instant case, the petitioner's net incomes from Schedule K for 2003 through 2006 were $0, -$2,843, -$1,236, and $6,108, respectively. The petitioner could not have paid the proffered wage of $18,200 from its net income in any of the years, 2003 through 2006.

Nevertheless, the petitioner's net income is not the only statistic that can be used to demonstrate a petitioner's ability to pay a proffered wage. If the net income the petitioner demonstrates it had available during that period, if any, added to the wages paid to the beneficiary during the period, if any, do not equal the amount of the proffered wage or more, CIS will review the petitioner's assets. The petitioner's total assets include depreciable assets that the petitioner uses in its business. Those depreciable assets will not be converted to cash during the ordinary course of business and will not, therefore, become funds available to pay the proffered wage. Further, the petitioner's total assets must be balanced by the petitioner's liabilities. Otherwise, they cannot properly be considered in the determination of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. Rather, CIS will consider net current assets as an alternative method of demonstrating the ability to pay the proffered wage.

Net current assets are the difference between the petitioner's current assets and current liabilities.² A corporation's year-end current assets are shown on Schedule L, lines 1 through 6. Its year-end current liabilities are shown on lines 16 through 18. If a corporation's end-of-year net current assets are equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the petitioner is expected to be able to pay the proffered wage out of those net current assets. The petitioner's net current assets in 2003 through 2006 were $4,523, $3,601, $3,049, and $10,543, respectively. The petitioner could not have paid the proffered wage of $18,200 from its net current assets in any of the years, 2003 through 2006.

On appeal, counsel contends that the petitioner has established its ability to pay the proffered wage of $18,200 based on its available profit, officer compensation, part time salaries, and the personal assets of the petitioner's owner.

Counsel is mistaken. Even considering the officer compensation, available profit, and part time salaries, the petitioner would still be short funds to pay the proffered wage of $18,200 except in 2006. In 2003, no officer compensation was paid out. Therefore, the wages paid of $12,642 plus the $0 net income from Schedule K equals only $12,642 or $5,558 less than the proffered wage of $18,200. In 2004, the officer's compensation of $16,000 plus the wages paid of $1,001, and the net income from Schedule K of -$2,843 equals $14,158 or $4,042 less than the proffered wage of $18,200. In 2005, the officer's compensation of $10,400 plus the wages paid of $7,003 and the net income from Schedule K of -$1,236 equals $16,167 or $2,033 less than the proffered wage of $18,200. In 2006, the officer's compensation of $10,400 plus the wages paid of $1,904 and the net income from Schedule K of $6,108 equals $18,412 or $212 more than the proffered wage of $18,200. Therefore, using the petitioner's compensation of officers, the part time wages paid, and the net income from Schedule K, the petitioner has only established its ability to pay the proffered wage of $18,200 in 2006, not 2003 through 2005.

In addition, counsel asserts that the personal assets of the petitioner's owner should be considered when determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage of $18,200. However, CIS may not "pierce the corporate veil” and look to the assets of the corporation’s owner to satisfy the corporation’s ability to pay the proffered wage. It is an elementary rule that a corporation is a separate and distinct legal entity from its owners and shareholders. See Matter of M, 8 I&N Dec. 24 (BIA 1958), Matter of Aphrodite Investments, Ltd., 17 I&N Dec. 530 (Comm. 1980), and Matter of Tessel, 17 I&N Dec. 631 (Act. Assoc. Comm. 1980). Consequently, assets of its shareholders or of other enterprises or corporations cannot be considered in determining the petitioning corporation’s ability to pay the proffered wage. In a similar case, the court in Sitar v. Ashcroft, 2003 WL 22203713 (D.Mass. Sept. 18, 2003) stated, “nothing in the governing regulation, 8 C.F.R. § 204.5, permits [CIS] to consider the financial resources of individuals or entities who have no legal obligation to pay the wage.”

Finally, if the petitioner does not have sufficient net income or net current assets to pay the proffered salary, CIS may consider the overall magnitude of the entity’s business activities. Even when the petitioner shows insufficient net income or net current assets, CIS may consider the totality of the circumstances concerning a petitioner’s financial performance. See Matter of Sonegawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967). In Matter of Sonegawa, the Regional Commissioner considered an immigrant visa petition, which had been filed by a small “custom dress and boutique shop” on behalf of a clothes designer. The district director denied the petition after determining that the beneficiary’s annual wage of $6,240 was considerably in excess of the employer’s net profit of $280 for the year of filing. On appeal, the Regional Commissioner considered an array of factors beyond the petitioner’s simple net profit, including news articles, financial data, the petitioner’s reputation and clientele, the number of employees, future business plans, and explanations of the petitioner’s temporary financial difficulties. Despite the petitioner’s obviously inadequate net income, the Regional Commissioner looked beyond the petitioner’s uncharacteristic business loss and found that the petitioner’s expectations of continued business growth and increasing profits were reasonable. Id. at 615. Based on an evaluation of the totality of the petitioner’s circumstances, the Regional Commissioner determined that the petitioner had established the ability to pay the beneficiary the stipulated wages.

As in Matter of Sonegawa, CIS may, at its discretion, consider evidence relevant to a petitioner’s financial ability that falls outside of a petitioner’s net income and net current assets. CIS may consider such factors as the number of years that the petitioner has been doing business, the established historical growth of the petitioner’s business, the overall number of employees, the occurrence of any uncharacteristic business expenditures or losses, the petitioner’s reputation within its industry, whether the beneficiary is replacing a former employee or an outsourced service, or any other evidence that CIS deems to be relevant to the petitioner’s ability to pay the proffered wage. In this case, the petitioner has been in business for only seven years, and only one (2006) of the four tax returns (2003 through 2006) establish the petitioner’s ability to pay the proffered wage even when considering the compensation of officers, the part time wages paid, and the net income. In addition, there is no evidence that the petitioner has met all of its obligations in the past. Therefore, the AAO finds that the petitioner could not pay the proffered wage in 2003 and continuing to the present.

Beyond the decision of the director, the record in this case also lacks conclusive evidence as to whether the petition is based on a bona fide job offer or whether the pre-existing family, business, or personal relationship may have influenced the labor certification. An application or petition that fails to comply with the technical requirements of the law may be denied by the AAO even if the Service Center does not identify all of the grounds for denial in the initial decision. See Spencer Enterprises, Inc. v. United States, 299 F. Supp. 2d 1025, 1043 (E.D. Cal. 2001), aff’d, 345 F.3d 683 (9th Cir. 2003); see also Dor v. INS, 891 F.2d 997, 1002 n. 9 (2d Cir. 1989)(noting that the AAO reviews appeals on a de novo basis). It appears that the owner of the petitioner and the beneficiary are close family friends. See the letter, dated March 28, 2007, from the petitioner’s owner.

Under 20 C.F.R. §§ 626.20(c)(8) and 656.3, the petitioner has the burden when asked to show that a valid employment relationship exists, that a bona fide job opportunity is available to U.S. workers. See Matter of Amger Corp., 87-INA-545 (BALCA 1987). A relationship invalidating a bona fide job offer may arise where the beneficiary is related to the petitioner by “blood” or it may “be financial, by marriage, or through friendship.” See Matter of Summart 374, 00-INA-93 (BALCA May 15, 2000). Where the person applying for a position owns the petitioner, it is not a bona fide offer. See Bulk Farms, Inc. v. Martin, 963 F.2d 1286 (9th Cir. 1992) (denied labor certification application for president, sole shareholder and chief cheese maker even where no person qualified for position applied). In Matter of Silver Dragon Chinese Restaurant, 19 I&N Dec. 401 (Comm. 1986), the commissioner noted that while it is not an automatic disqualification for an alien beneficiary to have an interest in a petitioning business, if the alien beneficiary’s true relationship to the petitioning business is not apparent in the labor certification proceedings, it causes the certifying officer to fail to examine more carefully whether the position was clearly open to qualified U.S. workers and whether U.S. workers were rejected solely for lawful job-related reasons. That case relied upon a Department of Labor advisory opinion in invalidating the labor certification. The regulation at 20 C.F.R. § 656.30(d) provides that [CIS], the Department of State or a court may invalidate a labor certification upon a determination of fraud or willful misrepresentation of a material fact involving the application for labor certification.

In Hall v. McLaughlin, 864 F.2d 868 (D.C. Cir. 1989), the court affirmed the district court’s dismissal of the alien’s appeal from the Secretary of Labor’s denial of his labor certification application. The court found that where the alien was the founder and corporate president of the petitioning corporation, absent a genuine employment relationship, the alien’s ownership in the corporation was the functional equivalent of self-employment.

Given that the beneficiary was listed as a close family friend of the owner of the petitioner, the facts of the instant case suggest that this may too be the functional equivalent of self-employment. The observations noted above suggest that further investigation, including consultation with the Department of Labor may be warranted, in order to determine whether any family, business, or personal relationship between the petitioner and the beneficiary represents an impediment to the approval of any employment-based visa petition filed by this petitioner on behalf of this beneficiary.

For the reasons discussed above, the assertions of counsel on appeal and the evidence submitted on appeal does not overcome the decision of the director.

The petition will be denied for the above stated reasons, with each considered as an independent and alternative basis for denial. In visa petition proceedings, the burden of proving eligibility for the benefit sought remains entirely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, that burden has not been met.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
