John F. Grissom, Acting Chief
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Vermont Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be sustained. The petition will be approved.

The petitioner is a medical office. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a correspondence clerk. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by ETA Form 9089, Application for Permanent Employment Certification, approved by the United States Department of Labor (DOL). The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the continuing ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage beginning on the priority date of the visa petition. The director denied the petition accordingly.

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed and timely and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact. The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into the decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(iii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(iii), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing unskilled labor, not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

The regulation 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

The petitioner must demonstrate the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date, which is the date the ETA Form 9089, Application for Permanent Employment Certification, was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the DOL. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d). The petitioner must also demonstrate that, on the priority date, the beneficiary had the qualifications stated on its ETA Form 9089, Application for Permanent Employment Certification, as certified by the DOL and submitted with the instant petition. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977).

Here, the Form ETA 9089 was accepted on August 5, 2005. The proffered wage as stated on the Form ETA 750 is $12.54 per hour ($26,083.20 per year). According to the Form ETA 9089, no education, training or experience is required for the proffered position.

The AAO maintains plenary power to review each appeal on a de novo basis. 5 U.S.C. § 557(b) ("On appeal from or review of the initial decision, the agency has all the powers which it would have in making the initial decision except as it may limit the issues on notice or by rule."); see also, Janka v. U.S. Dept. of Transp., NTSB, 925 F.2d 1147, 1149 (9th Cir. 1991). The AAO's de novo authority has been long recognized by the federal courts. See, e.g. Dor v. INS, 891 F.2d 997, 1002 n. 9 (2d Cir. 1989). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal.<sup>1</sup> On appeal, counsel submits copies of the petitioner's bank account statements from October 2005 to September 2006. Other relevant evidence in the record includes copies of the petitioner's Form 1120 U.S. Corporation Income Tax Returns for the years 2002 through 2005,<sup>2</sup> copies of the petitioner's bank statements from July to September 2005, and a profit and loss statement from 2004.<sup>3</sup> The record does not contain any other evidence relevant to the petitioner's ability to pay the wage.

On the I-140 petition the petitioner claimed to have been established in 1992 and to currently have 30 employees. The petitioner listed its gross annual income as $6,000,000.00 and its net annual income as $88,000.00. On the Form ETA 9089, signed by the beneficiary on October 4, 2005, the beneficiary did not claim to have worked for the petitioner.

The petitioner must establish that its job offer to the beneficiary is a realistic one. Because the filing of an ETA 9089 labor certification application establishes a priority date for any immigrant petition later based on the ETA 9089, the petitioner must establish that the job offer was realistic as of the priority date and that the offer remained realistic for each year thereafter, until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. The petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is an essential element in evaluating whether a job offer is realistic. See Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142 (Acting Reg. Comm. 1977). See also 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2). In evaluating whether a job offer is realistic, U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) requires the petitioner to demonstrate financial resources sufficient to pay the beneficiary's proffered wages, although the totality of the circumstances affecting the petitioning business will be considered if the evidence warrants such consideration. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967).

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage during a given period, USCIS will first examine whether the petitioner employed and paid the beneficiary during that period. If the petitioner establishes by documentary evidence that it employed the beneficiary at a salary equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the evidence will be considered prima facie proof of the <sup>1</sup> The submission of additional evidence on appeal is allowed by the instructions to the Form I-290B, which are incorporated into the regulations by the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(a)(1). The record in the instant case provides no reason to preclude consideration of any of the documents newly submitted on appeal. See Matter of Soriano, 19 I&N Dec. 764 (BIA 1988).

<sup>2</sup> As the priority date in the instant case is August 5, 2005, the petitioner was not required to establish its ability to pay the proffered wage in 2002, 2003 or 2004. However, the petitioner's tax returns from these years may be considered generally in determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage.

<sup>3</sup> Reliance on unaudited financial records is misplaced. The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) makes clear that where a petitioner relies on financial statements to demonstrate its ability to pay the proffered wage, those financial statements must be audited. As there is no accountant's report accompanying this statement, the AAO cannot conclude that it is audited statements. Unaudited financial statements are the representations of management. The unsupported representations of management are not reliable evidence and are insufficient to demonstrate the ability to pay the proffered wage.

petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. In the instant case, the petitioner has not established that it employed and paid the beneficiary the full proffered wage during any relevant timeframe including the period from the priority date in 2005 or subsequently.

If the petitioner does not establish that it employed and paid the beneficiary an amount at least equal to the proffered wage during that period, USCIS will next examine the net income figure reflected on the petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well established by judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F. Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984)); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F. Supp. 532 (N.D. Texas 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983). For a personal service corporation, USCIS considers net income to be the figure shown on Line 28 of the Form 1120, U.S. Corporation Income Tax Return. The petitioner's tax returns demonstrate that its net income for 2005 was -$217,316.00. Therefore, the petitioner did not have sufficient net income to pay the proffered wage in 2005.<sup>4</sup>

As an alternate means of determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, USCIS may review the petitioner's net current assets. Net current assets are the difference between the petitioner's current assets and current liabilities.<sup>5</sup> A corporation's year-end current assets are shown on Schedule L, lines 1 through 6. Its year-end current liabilities are shown on lines 16 through 18. If the total of a corporation's end-of-year net current assets and the wages paid to the beneficiary (if any) are equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the petitioner is expected to be able to pay the proffered wage using those net current assets. In 2005, the Form 1120 stated net current assets of -$687,183.00. Therefore, the petitioner did not have sufficient net current assets to pay the proffered wage in 2005.<sup>6</sup>

On appeal, counsel asserts that there is another way to determine the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. Specifically, counsel states that the petitioner's bank account statements show that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage. Counsel's reliance on the balance in the petitioner's bank account is misplaced. First, bank statements are not among the three types of evidence, enumerated in 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2), required to illustrate a petitioner's ability to pay a proffered wage. While this regulation allows additional material "in appropriate cases," the petitioner in this case has not demonstrated why the documentation specified at 8 C.F.R. §

<sup>4</sup> The petitioner's net income was -$19,046.00 in 2002, $96,993.00 in 2003, and -$12,438.00 in 2004. Thus, the petitioner's net income would have been sufficient to pay the proffered wage only in 2003.

<sup>5</sup> According to Barron's Dictionary of Accounting Terms 117 (3rd ed. 2000), "current assets" consist of items having (in most cases) a life of one year or less, such as cash, marketable securities, inventory and prepaid expenses. "Current liabilities" are obligations payable (in most cases) within one year, such accounts payable, short-term notes payable, and accrued expenses (such as taxes and salaries). Id. at 118.

<sup>6</sup> The petitioner's tax returns showed net current assets of -$206,145 in 2002, -$669,550 in 2003, and -$888,105 in 2004. Therefore, the petitioner did not have sufficient net current assets to pay the proffered wage in 2002, 2003 or 2004.

204.5(g)(2) is inapplicable or otherwise paints an inaccurate financial picture of the petitioner. Second, bank statements show the amount in an account on a given date, and cannot show the sustainable ability to pay a proffered wage. Third, no evidence was submitted to demonstrate that the funds reported on the petitioner's bank statements somehow reflect additional available funds that were not reflected on its tax return, such as the petitioner's taxable income (income minus deductions) or the cash specified on Schedule L that was considered in determining the petitioner's net current assets.

Counsel further states that the total salaries and officer compensation paid by the petitioner and the petitioner's total income should be considered in determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. Although USCIS will not consider gross income without also considering the expenses that were incurred to generate that income, the overall magnitude of the entity's business activities should be considered when the entity's ability to pay is marginal or borderline. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967).

In addition, in the present matter, the petitioner has identified itself on IRS Form 1120 as a "personal service corporation." Pursuant to Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (BIA 1967), the petitioner's "personal service corporation" status is a relevant factor to be considered in determining its ability to pay. A "personal service corporation" is a corporation where the "employee-owners" are engaged in the performance of personal services. The Internal Revenue Code (IRC) defines "personal services" as services performed in the fields of health, law, engineering, architecture, accounting, actuarial science, performing arts, and consulting. 26 U.S.C. § 448(d)(2). As a corporation, the personal service corporation files an IRS Form 1120 and pays tax on its profits as a corporate entity. However, under the IRC, a qualified personal service corporation is not allowed to use the graduated tax rates for other C-corporations. Instead, the flat tax rate is the highest marginal rate, which is currently 35 percent. 26 U.S.C. § 11(b)(2). Because of the high 35% flat tax on the corporation's taxable income, personal service corporations generally try to distribute all profits in the form of wages to the employee-shareholders. In turn, the employee-shareholders pay personal taxes on their wages and thereby avoid double taxation. This in effect can reduce the negative impact of the flat 35% tax rate. Upon consideration, because the tax code holds personal service corporations to the highest corporate tax rate to encourage the distribution of corporate income to the employee-owners and because the owners have the flexibility to adjust their income on an annual basis, the AAO will recognize the petitioner's personal service corporation status as a relevant factor to be considered in determining its ability to pay.

As in the present case, substantially all of the stock of a personal service corporation is held by its employees, retired employees, or their estates. The documentation presented here indicates that in 2002, 2003 and 2004, [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] each owned 50 percent of the company's stock and performed the personal services of the medical practice. According to the petitioner's IRS Form 1120 Schedule E (Compensation of Officers), [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] elected to pay themselves the following amounts in the years 2002, 2003 and 2004.

Year	[REDACTED]	[REDACTED]
2002	$918,423.00	$848,979.00
2003	$626,618.00	$586,009.00

2004                    $877,410.00                    $570,000.00

The documentation presented further indicates that in 2005, [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] each owned 33.3 percent of the company's stock and performed the personal services of the medical practice. According to the petitioner's IRS Form 1120 Schedule E (Compensation of Officers) for 2005, [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] elected to pay themselves $261,800.00, $461,002.00 and $425,185.00, respectively. We note here that the compensation received by the company's owners during these years was not a fixed salary and amounted to more than $1 million per year.

USCIS (legacy INS) has long held that it may not "pierce the corporate veil" and look to the assets of the corporation's owner to satisfy the corporation's ability to pay the proffered wage. It is an elementary rule that a corporation is a separate and distinct legal entity from its owners and shareholders. See Matter of M, 8 I&N Dec. 24 (BIA 1958), Matter of Aphrodite Investments, Ltd., 17 I&N Dec. 530 (Comm. 1980), and Matter of Tessel, 17 I&N Dec. 631 (Act. Assoc. Comm. 1980). Consequently, assets of its shareholders or of other enterprises or corporations cannot be considered in determining the petitioning corporation's ability to pay the proffered wage.

In the present case, however, counsel is not suggesting that USCIS examine the personal assets of the petitioner's owners, but, rather, the financial flexibility that the employee-owners have in setting their salaries based on the profitability of their personal service corporation medical practice. Clearly, the petitioning entity is a profitable enterprise for its owners. As previously noted, the medical practice averaged gross receipts of over $5 million per year from 2002 to 2005. We concur with the arguments presented by counsel on appeal. A review of the petitioner's gross profit and the amount of compensation paid out to the employee-owners confirms that the job offer is realistic and that the proffered salary of $26,083.20 can be paid by the petitioner.

In examining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, the fundamental focus of the USCIS' determination is whether the employer is making a realistic job offer and has the overall financial ability to satisfy the proffered wage. Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142, 145 (Acting Reg. Comm. 1977). Accordingly, after a review of the petitioner's federal tax returns and all other relevant evidence, we conclude that the petitioner has established that it had the ability to pay the salary offered as of the priority date of the petition and continuing to present.

The evidence submitted establishes that the petitioner had the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is sustained. The petition is approved.
