Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a restaurant. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a cook. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by a Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification, approved by the United States Department of Labor (DOL). The director denied the petition, finding that the petitioner did not have sufficient net income or net current assets to pay the proffered wage from the priority date.

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed, timely and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact. The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into the decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

As set forth in the director's January 9, 2009 denial, the single issue in this case is whether or not the petitioner has the ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

Further, the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

The petitioner must demonstrate the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date, which is the date the Form ETA 750 was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the DOL. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d). The petitioner must also demonstrate that, on the priority date, the beneficiary had the qualifications stated on its Form ETA 750 as certified by the DOL and submitted with the instant petition. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977).

In the instant proceeding, the Form ETA 750 was accepted on May 3, 2004. The rate of pay or the proffered wage specified on the Form ETA 750 is $11 per hour or $22,880 per year. The Form ETA 750 states that the position requires a minimum of two (2) years of experience in the job offered.

To show that the petitioner has the continuing ability to pay $11 per hour or $22,880 per year from May 3, 2004, the petitioner submitted the following relevant evidence:

- Copies of Forms 1120S, U.S. Income Tax Return for an S Corporation, for the years 2004 through 2007;
- Copies of Mr. [REDACTED]'s individual income tax returns filed on Forms 1040 for the years 2006 and 2007; and
- An affidavit dated December 8, 2008 from Mr. [REDACTED] certifying that he has employed the beneficiary since October 2003 and that the beneficiary has been earning $450 per week.

The tax returns submitted shows that the petitioner is structured as an S Corporation, solely owned by Mr. [REDACTED]. On the petition, the petitioner indicates that the corporation currently employs 5 people and has gross annual income of $174,810.

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. The AAO's de novo authority is well recognized by the federal courts. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004).

The petitioner must establish that its job offer to the beneficiary is a realistic one. Because the filing of an ETA 750 labor certification application establishes a priority date for any immigrant petition later based on the ETA 750, the petitioner must establish that the job offer was realistic as of the priority date and that the offer remained realistic for each year thereafter, until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. The petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is an essential element in evaluating whether a job offer is realistic. See Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142 (Acting Reg. Comm. 1977); see also 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2). In evaluating whether a job offer is realistic, United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) requires the petitioner to demonstrate financial resources sufficient to pay the beneficiary's proffered wages, although the totality of the circumstances affecting the petitioning business will be considered if the evidence warrants such consideration. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967).

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage during a given period, USCIS will first examine whether the petitioner employed and paid the beneficiary during that period. If the petitioner establishes by documentary evidence that it employed the beneficiary at a salary equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the evidence will be considered prima facie proof of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. In this case, the record contains no evidence indicating that the beneficiary has been employed by the petitioner since the priority date.

On appeal, counsel for the petitioner asserts that the petitioner has employed and paid the beneficiary $450 per week since October 2003. As evidence of the assertions, counsel submitted an affidavit from Mr. [REDACTED] stating that he has employed the beneficiary and that the beneficiary has been earning $450 per week since October 2003. No supporting documents have been submitted to corroborate his assertions, however. The record contains no evidence, such as payroll records or accounting records, establishing that the beneficiary has been employed by the petitioner since October 2003. Going on record without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. 158, 165 (Comm. 1998) (citing Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg. Comm. 1972)). The AAO determines that Mr. [REDACTED]'s affidavit alone without other supporting documentation is not reliable and does not establish the veracity of the assertions.

When the petitioner fails to employ and pay the beneficiary an amount at least equal to the proffered wage during the relevant time frame, USCIS next examines the net income figure reflected on the petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. River Street Donuts, LLC v. Napolitano, 558 F.3d 111 (1st Cir. 2009); Taco Especial v. Napolitano, 696 F. Supp. 2d 873 (E.D. Mich. 2010). Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well established by judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F. Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984)); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F. Supp. 532 (N.D. Texas 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983). Reliance on the petitioner's gross receipts and wage expense is misplaced. Showing that the petitioner's gross receipts exceeded the proffered wage is insufficient. Similarly, showing that the petitioner paid wages in excess of the proffered wage is insufficient.

In K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. at 1084, the court held that the Immigration and Naturalization Service, now USCIS, had properly relied on the petitioner's net income figure, as stated on the petitioner's corporate income tax returns, rather than the petitioner's gross income. The court specifically rejected the argument that USCIS should have considered income before expenses were paid rather than net income. See Taco Especial v. Napolitano, 696 F. Supp. 2d at 881 (gross profits overstate an employer's ability to pay because it ignores other necessary expenses).

With respect to depreciation, the court in River Street Donuts noted:

The AAO recognized that a depreciation deduction is a systematic allocation of the cost of a tangible long-term asset and does not represent a specific cash expenditure during the year claimed. Furthermore, the AAO indicated that the allocation of the depreciation of a long-term asset could be spread out over the years or concentrated into a few depending on the petitioner's choice of accounting and depreciation methods. Nonetheless, the AAO explained that depreciation represents an actual cost of doing business, which could represent either the diminution in value of buildings and equipment or the accumulation of funds necessary to replace perishable equipment and buildings. Accordingly, the AAO stressed that even though amounts deducted for depreciation do not represent current use of cash, neither does it represent amounts available to pay wages.

We find that the AAO has a rational explanation for its policy of not adding depreciation back to net income. Namely, that the amount spent on a long term tangible asset is a "real" expense.

River Street Donuts at 118. “[USCIS] and judicial precedent support the use of tax returns and the net income figures in determining petitioner’s ability to pay. Plaintiffs’ argument that these figures should be revised by the court by adding back depreciation is without support.” Chi-Feng Chang at 537 (emphasis added).

The record before the director closed on December 22, 2008 with the receipt by the director of the petitioner’s submissions in response to the director’s request for evidence (RFE). As of that date, the petitioner’s 2008 federal income tax return was not yet due. Therefore, the petitioner’s income tax return for 2007 is the most recent return available. The petitioner’s tax returns demonstrate its net income (loss) for the years 2004 through 2007, as shown in the table below.

Tax Year	Net Income (Loss) ¹ – in $
2004	(23,780)
2005	(300)
2006	(22,593)
2007	(22,950)

Therefore, the petitioner did not have sufficient net income to pay the beneficiary's proffered wage in any of those years.

As an alternate means of determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, USCIS may review the petitioner's net current assets. Net current assets are the difference between the petitioner's current assets and current liabilities.² A corporation's year-end current assets are shown on Schedule L, lines 1 through 6. Its year-end current liabilities are shown on lines 16 through 18. If the total of a corporation's end-of-year net current assets and the wages paid to the beneficiary (if any) are equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the petitioner is expected to be able to pay the proffered wage using those net current assets. The petitioner's tax returns demonstrate its end-of-year net current assets (liabilities) for the years 2001 through 2007, as shown in the table below.

Tax Year	Net Current Assets – in $
2005	0

Therefore, the petitioner did not have sufficient net current assets to pay the proffered wage in any of the qualifying years, as shown above. Based on the net income and net current asset analysis above, the AAO concludes that the petitioner has failed to establish that it has the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage from the priority date.

USCIS may consider the overall magnitude of the petitioner's business activities in its determination of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612. The petitioning entity in Sonogawa had been in business for over 11 years and routinely earned a gross annual income of about $100,000. During the year in which the petition was filed in that case, the petitioner changed business locations and paid rent on both the old and new locations for five months. There were large moving costs and also a period of time when the petitioner was unable to do regular business. The Regional Commissioner determined that the petitioner's prospects for a resumption of successful business operations were well established. The petitioner was a fashion designer whose work had been featured in Time and Look magazines. Her clients included Miss Universe, movie actresses, and society matrons. The petitioner's clients had been included in the lists of the best-dressed California women. The petitioner lectured on fashion design at design and fashion shows throughout the United States and at colleges and universities in California. The Regional Commissioner's determination in Sonegawa was based in part on the petitioner's sound business reputation and outstanding reputation as a couturiere. As in Sonegawa, USCIS may, at its discretion, consider evidence relevant to the petitioner's financial ability that falls outside of a petitioner's net income and net current assets. USCIS may consider such factors as the number of years the petitioner has been doing business, the established historical growth of the petitioner's business, the overall number of employees, the occurrence of any uncharacteristic business expenditures or losses, the petitioner's reputation within its industry, whether the beneficiary is replacing a former employee or an outsourced service, or any other evidence that USCIS deems relevant to the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage.

² According to Barron's Dictionary of Accounting Terms 117 (3rd ed. 2000), "current assets" consist of items having (in most cases) a life of one year or less, such as cash, marketable securities, inventory and prepaid expenses. "Current liabilities" are obligations payable (in most cases) within one year, such accounts payable, short-term notes payable, and accrued expenses (such as taxes and salaries). Id. at 118.

The AAO acknowledges that the petitioner is an ongoing business; however, the record is devoid of evidence regarding the petitioner's reputation. Unlike Sonegawa, the petitioner in this case has not provided any evidence reflecting the company's reputation or historical growth since its inception. Nor does it include any evidence or detailed explanation of its milestone achievements. Similarly, the tax records submitted do not reflect the occurrence of an uncharacteristic business expenditure or loss that would explain the petitioner's inability to pay the proffered wage as of the filing date and continuing through the present.

Further, no evidence or information has been submitted to show that the petitioning corporation has significant potential to grow beyond its current profitability, or that it will generate sufficient income for the petitioner to be able to pay the proffered wage from the priority date. The business itself has consistently had net loss from 2004. Assessing the totality of the circumstances in this individual case, it is concluded that the petitioner does not have the ability to pay the proffered wage from the priority date and continuing until the beneficiary receives permanent residence.

Beyond the decision of the director, the AAO also finds that the beneficiary does not qualify to perform the duties of the position. The evidence submitted does not support the assertions that the beneficiary had the experience or training necessary to be qualified for the position offered as of the priority date.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(1)(3)(ii)(A) provides:

Any requirements of training or experience for skilled workers, professionals, or other workers must be supported by letters from trainers or employers giving the name, address, and title of the trainer or employer, and a description of the training received or the experience of the alien.

To show that the beneficiary has at least two (2) years of work experience in the job offered before May 3, 2004, the petitioner submitted a notarized statement from Mr. [REDACTED]

██████████ General Manager, who stated that the beneficiary worked as a cook assistant from July 1998 to September 2003 at ██████████ t.

The AAO notes that the notarized statement above does not comply with the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3)(ii)(A), in that it does not have a description of the training received or the experience of the beneficiary. ██████████ stating that the beneficiary was a cook assistant without further explaining his job duties and responsibilities is not sufficient in this proceeding. Further, the title of the position, cook assistant, does not indicate that the beneficiary had two years of experience as a cook as of the priority date. The AAO finds that the beneficiary is not qualified to perform the duties of the position as of the priority date. For this additional reason the petition must be denied.

The petition will be denied for the above stated reasons, with each considered as an independent and alternative basis for denial. In visa petition proceedings, the burden of proving eligibility for the benefit sought remains entirely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, that burden has not been met.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
