SELF-REPRESENTED

INSTRUCTIONS:

Enclosed please find the decision of the Administrative Appeals Office in your case. All of the documents related to this matter have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Please be advised that any further inquiry that you might have concerning your case must be made to that office.

The specific requirements for filing such a request can be found at 8 C.F.R. § 103.5. All motions must be submitted to the office that originally decided your case by filing a Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal or Motion, with a fee of $630. Please be aware that 8 C.F.R. § 103.5(a)(1)(i) requires that any motion must be filed within 30 days of the decision that the motion seeks to reconsider or reopen.

Thank you,

Perry Rhew
Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: On February 19, 2002, United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS), Vermont Service Center (VSC), received an Immigrant Petition for Alien Worker, Form I-140, from the petitioner. The employment-based immigrant visa petition was initially approved by the VSC director on June 1, 2002. However, the Director of the Texas Service Center ("the director") revoked the approval of the immigrant petition on May 20, 2009, and the petitioner subsequently appealed the director's decision. The petition is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The director's decision will be withdrawn. The appeal will be remanded to the director for further action, consideration, and the entry of a new decision.

The petitioner is a restaurant. It seeks to permanently employ the beneficiary in the United States as a cook pursuant to section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i).<sup>1</sup> As required by statute, the petition is submitted along with an approved Application for Alien Employment Certification (Form ETA 750). As stated above, the petition was initially approved in June 2002, but the approval was later revoked in May 2009. The director determined that the petitioner did not follow the Department of Labor (DOL) recruitment procedures and had obtained the approval of the Form ETA 750 by fraud or by willfully misrepresenting material facts. Accordingly, the director revoked the approval of the petition under the authority of 8 C.F.R. § 205.1.

On appeal to the AAO, the petitioner (self-represented) asserts that the director improperly revoked the petition's approval. The director, according to the petitioner, revoked the approval of the petition solely because the petition in the instant proceeding was filed by [REDACTED] who was under investigation for filing multiple employment-based immigrant petitions fraudulently. The petitioner further contends that where guilt by association is imputed, the director must show that the beneficiary deliberately took steps to promote the association or omitted material evidence. The record, according to the petitioner, does not establish that either the petitioner or the beneficiary has participated in any activities prohibited by the Immigration and Nationality Act ("the Act").

Citing In re Lozada, 19 I&N Dec. 637 (BIA 1988), aff'd, 857 F.2d 10 (1st Cir. 1988), the petitioner additionally claims that the former counsel of record, [REDACTED] ineffectively assisted both the petitioner and the beneficiary during the labor certification process, and that both the petitioner and the beneficiary were victims of alleged fraud (for both had relied on [REDACTED] deceptive representations). The director, according to the petitioner, has failed to consider [REDACTED] ineffective assistance when revoking the approval of the petition.

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed, timely and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact. The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381

<sup>1</sup> Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal.<sup>2</sup>

Preliminarily, as a procedural matter, the AAO finds that 8 C.F.R. § 205.1 only applies to automatic revocation and is not the proper authority to be used to revoke the approval of the petition in this instant proceeding. Under 8 C.F.R. § 205.1(a)(3)(iii), a petition is automatically revoked if (A) the labor certification is invalidated pursuant to 20 C.F.R. § 656; (B) the petitioner or the beneficiary dies; (C) the petitioner withdraws the petition in writing; or (D) if the petitioner is no longer in business. Here, the labor certification has not been invalidated; neither the petitioner nor the beneficiary has died; the petitioner has not withdrawn the petition; nor has the petitioner gone out of business. Therefore, the approval of the petition cannot be automatically revoked. The director's erroneous citation of the applicable regulation is withdrawn. Nonetheless, as the director does have revocation authority under 8 C.F.R. § 205.2, the director's denial will be considered under that provision under the AAO's de novo review authority.

As noted above, the petitioner appealed the director's decision to revoke the approval claiming ineffective assistance of counsel, among other things.

Any appeal or motion based upon a claim of ineffective assistance of counsel requires that:

- (1) The claim be supported by an affidavit of the allegedly aggrieved respondent setting forth in detail the agreement that was entered into with counsel with respect to the actions to be taken and what representations counsel did or did not make to the respondent in this regard,
- (2) Counsel whose integrity or competence is being impugned be informed of the allegations leveled against him and be given an opportunity to respond, and
- (3) The appeal or motion reflects whether a complaint has been filed with appropriate disciplinary authorities with respect to any violation of counsel's ethical or legal responsibilities, and if not why not.

Matter of Lozada, 19 I&N Dec. 637 (BIA 1988), aff'd, 857 F.2d 10 (1st Cir. 1988).

As the AAO will remand the case to the director, the petitioner will have the opportunity to correct and/or further address the ineffective assistance of counsel claim and the deficiencies noted below.

One of the issues in this case is whether the director adequately advised the petitioner of the basis for revocation of approval of the petition.

<sup>2</sup> The submission of additional evidence on appeal is allowed by the instructions to the Form I-290B, which are incorporated into the regulations by the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(a)(1). The record in the instant case provides no reason to preclude consideration of any of the documents newly submitted on appeal. See Matter of Soriano, 19 I&N Dec. 764 (BIA 1988).

Section 205 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1155, provides that "[t]he Attorney General [now Secretary, Department of Homeland Security], may, at any time, for what [she] deems to be good and sufficient cause, revoke the approval of any petition approved by [her] under section 204." The realization by the director that the petition was approved in error may be good and sufficient cause for revoking the approval. Matter of Ho, 19 I&N Dec. 582, 590 (BIA 1988).

However, before the director can revoke the approval of the petition, the regulation requires that a notice must be provided to the petitioner. More specifically, 8 C.F.R. § 205.2 reads:

(a) General. Any Service [USCIS] officer authorized to approve a petition under section 204 of the Act may revoke the approval of that petition upon notice to the petitioner on any ground other than those specified in § 205.1 when the necessity for the revocation comes to the attention of this Service [USCIS]. (Emphasis added).

Further, the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(16) states:

(i) Derogatory information unknown to petitioner or applicant. If the decision will be adverse to the applicant or petitioner and is based on derogatory information considered by the Service [USCIS] and of which the applicant or petitioner is unaware, he/she shall be advised of this fact and offered an opportunity to rebut the information and present information in his/her own behalf before the decision is rendered, except as provided in paragraphs (b)(16)(ii), (iii), and (iv) of this section. Any explanation, rebuttal, or information presented by or in behalf of the applicant or petitioner shall be included in the record of proceeding.

Further, Matter of Arias, 19 I&N Dec. 568 (BIA 1988); Matter of Estime, 19 I&N Dec. 450 (BIA 1987) provide that:

A notice of intention to revoke the approval of a visa petition is properly issued for "good and sufficient cause" when the evidence of record at the time of issuance, if unexplained and un rebutted, would warrant a denial of the visa petition based upon the petitioner's failure to meet his burden of proof. However, where a notice of intention to revoke is based upon an unsupported statement, revocation of the visa petition cannot be sustained.

Here, in the Notice of Intent to Revoke (NOIR) dated February 24, 2009, the director wrote:

The Service is in receipt of information revealing the existence of fraudulent information in the petitions with Alien Employment Certificates (ETA 750) and/or the work experience letters in a significant number of cases submitted to USCIS by counsel for the petitioner in the reviewed files [referring to the petitioner's previous counsel, ██████████].

The director advised the petitioner in the February 24, 2009 NOIR that the instant case might involve fraud since the petition was filed by [REDACTED], who is under USCIS investigation for submitting fraudulent Form ETA 750 labor certification applications and Form I-140 immigrant worker visa petitions. In the NOIR, the director generally questioned the beneficiary's qualifications. The director also specifically stated that in many of the other petitions filed by previous counsel, the respective petitioners had not followed the DOL's recruitment procedures. Because of these findings in other cases and since [REDACTED] filed the petition in this case, the director issued the NOIR, advising the petitioner to submit additional evidence to demonstrate that the beneficiary had at least two years of work experience in the job offered before the labor certification application was filed and that the petitioner complied with all of the DOL recruiting requirements.

The AAO finds that the director appropriately reopened the matter by issuing the NOIR. However, the director's NOIR was deficient in that it did not give the petitioner notice of the derogatory information specific to the current proceeding. In the NOIR, the director generally questioned the beneficiary's qualifications and indicated that the petitioner had not properly advertised for the position. The NOIR neither provided nor referred to specific evidence or information relating to the petitioner's failure to comply with DOL recruitment or to the beneficiary's lack of qualifications in the present case. The director also did not specifically state that the petitioner needed to submit copies of the in-house postings or other evidence to show that the petitioner complied with the DOL recruitment procedures.<sup>3</sup> The director did not state which recruitment procedures were defective. Without specifying or making available evidence specific to the petition in this case, the petitioner can have no meaningful opportunity to rebut or respond to that evidence. See Ghaly v. INS, 48 F.3d 1426, 1431 (7th Cir. 1995). Because of insufficient notice to the petitioner of derogatory information, the director's decision will be withdrawn. However, as the petition is not approvable, the AAO will remand the matter for the issuance of a new NOIR and further consideration.

The next issue is whether the director properly concluded that the petitioner did not comply with the recruitment procedures of the DOL. As noted above, the specific basis of the director's decision revoking the approval of the petition was the fact that the petitioner had failed to submit copies of the in-house postings.

The AAO disagrees with the director's conclusion. First, as mentioned above, the director in the NOIR did not notify the petitioner to specifically submit any copies of the results of the recruitment efforts, including the copy of the in-house posting. Additionally, since there was no requirement to keep such records, the director may not make an adverse finding against the petitioner, if the petitioner claims it no longer has the supporting documentation over five years after the labor certification was approved.<sup>4</sup>

<sup>3</sup> The DOL regulations in place at the time of recruitment in this case included a requirement that the employer post notice of the job opening to its employees for ten consecutive days at the job site where the alien will work. 20 C.F.R. § 656.20(g)(1)(ii) (2001).

The AAO acknowledges that at the time the petitioner filed the labor certification application with the DOL for processing in April 2001, employers were not required to maintain any records documenting the labor certification process once the labor certification had been approved by the DOL. See 45 Fed. Reg. 83933, Dec. 19, 1980 as amended at 49 Fed. Reg. 18295, Apr. 30, 1984; 56 Fed. Reg. 54927, Oct. 23, 1991. Not until 2005, when the DOL switched from paper-based to electronic-based filing and processing of labor certifications, were employers required to maintain records and other supporting documentation, and even then employers were only required to keep their labor certification records for five years. See 69 Fed. Reg. 77386, Dec. 27, 2004 as amended at 71 Fed. Reg. 35523, June 21, 2006; also see 20 C.F.R. § 656.10(f) (2010). Thus, the AAO will withdraw the director's finding that the petitioner failed to follow recruitment procedures. As noted above, the petition will be remanded for the issuance of a new NOIR and the petitioner will have the opportunity to address the director's specific concerns.

The AAO will next address the director's finding that the petitioner engaged in fraud and/or material misrepresentation. On appeal, counsel contends that the director found fraud or willful misrepresentation against the petitioner and revoked the approval of the petition simply because [REDACTED] filed the petition in the instant proceeding.

The AAO disagrees with counsel's contention. If the petitioner or its previous agent/counsel ([REDACTED]) deceived the DOL in the recruitment process, then the labor certification is not valid and should be invalidated. In this case, however, the current record does not show that the petitioner failed to follow recruitment procedures. Similarly, there has been insufficient development of the facts upon which the director can rely to find that the petitioner and/or [REDACTED] engaged in fraud or material misrepresentation.

As immigration officers, USCIS Appeals Officers and Center Adjudications Officers possess the full scope of authority accorded to officers by the relevant statutes, regulations, and the Secretary of Homeland Security's delegation of authority. See sections 101(a)(18), 103(a), and 287(b) of the Act; 8 C.F.R. §§ 103.1(b), 287.5(a); DHS Delegation Number 0150.1 (effective March 1, 2003).

With regard to immigration fraud, the Act provides immigration officers with the authority to administer oaths, consider evidence, and further provides that any person who knowingly or willfully gives false evidence or swears to any false statement shall be guilty of perjury. Section 287(b) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1357(b). Additionally, the Secretary of Homeland Security has delegated to USCIS the authority to investigate alleged civil and criminal violations of the immigration laws, including application fraud, make recommendations for prosecution, and take other "appropriate action." DHS Delegation Number 0150.1 at para. (2)(I).

<sup>4</sup> However, the AAO acknowledges the authority and interest of USCIS to request such documentation pursuant to our invalidation authority at 20 C.F.R. § 656.31(d) and the interest of the petitioner in proving its case by retaining and submitting such documentation to USCIS particularly in response to a fraud investigation. Further, the petitioner must resolve inconsistencies in the record, if any, by independent, objective evidence. Matter of Ho, 19 I&N Dec. 582, 591-592 (BIA 1988).

The administrative findings in an immigration proceeding must include specific findings of fraud or material misrepresentation for any issue of fact that is material to eligibility for the requested immigration benefit. Within the adjudication of the visa petition, a finding of fraud or material misrepresentation will undermine the probative value of the evidence and lead to a reevaluation of the reliability and sufficiency of the remaining evidence. Matter of Ho, 19 I&N Dec. at 591-592.

Outside of the basic adjudication of visa eligibility, there are many critical functions of the Department of Homeland Security that hinge on a finding of fraud or material misrepresentation. For example, the Act provides that an alien is inadmissible to the United States if that alien seeks to procure, has sought to procure, or has procured a visa, admission, or other immigration benefits by fraud or willfully misrepresenting a material fact. Section 212(a)(6)(C) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182. Additionally, the regulations state that the willful failure to provide full and truthful information requested by USCIS constitutes a failure to maintain nonimmigrant status. 8 C.F.R. § 214.1(f). For these provisions to be effective, USCIS is required to enter a factual finding of fraud or material misrepresentation into the administrative record.<sup>5</sup>

Section 204(b) of the Act states, in pertinent part, that:

After an investigation of the facts in each case . . . the [Secretary of Homeland Security] shall, if he determines that the facts stated in the petition are true and that the alien . . . in behalf of whom the petition is made is an immediate relative specified in section 201(b) or is eligible for preference under subsection (a) or (b) of section 203, approve the petition . . . .

Pursuant to section 204(b) of the Act, USCIS has the authority to issue a determination regarding whether the facts stated in a petition filed pursuant to section 203(b) of the Act are true.

Section 212(a)(6)(C) of the Act governs misrepresentation and states the following: "Misrepresentation: - (i) In general. - Any alien who, by fraud or willfully misrepresenting a material fact, seeks to procure (or has sought to procure or has procured) a

<sup>5</sup> It is important to note that, while it may present the opportunity to enter an administrative finding of fraud, the immigrant visa petition is not the appropriate forum for finding an alien inadmissible. See Matter of O, 8 I&N Dec. 295 (BIA 1959). Instead, the alien may be found inadmissible at a later date when he or she subsequently applies for admission into the United States or applies for adjustment of status to permanent resident status. See sections 212(a) and 245(a) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. §§ 1182(a) and 1255(a). Nevertheless, the AAO and USCIS have the authority to enter a fraud finding, if during the course of adjudication, the record of proceedings discloses fraud or a material misrepresentation.

visa, other documentation, or admission into the United States or other benefit provided under this Act is inadmissible."

The Attorney General has held that a misrepresentation made in connection with an application for a visa or other document, or with entry into the United States, is material if either:

- (1) the alien is excludable on the true facts, or (2) the misrepresentation tends to shut off a line of inquiry which is relevant to the alien's eligibility and which might well have resulted in a proper determination that he be excluded.

Matter of S & B-C-, 9 I&N Dec. 436, 447 (A.G. 1961). Accordingly, the materiality test has three parts. First, if the record shows that the alien is inadmissible on the true facts, then the misrepresentation is material. Id. at 448. If the foreign national would not be inadmissible on the true facts, then the second and third questions must be addressed. The second question is whether the misrepresentation shut off a line of inquiry relevant to the alien's admissibility. Id. Third, if the relevant line of inquiry has been cut off, then it must be determined whether the inquiry might have resulted in a proper determination that the foreign national should have been excluded. Id. at 449.

Furthermore, a finding of misrepresentation may lead to invalidation of the Form ETA 750. See 20 C.F.R. § 656.31(d) regarding labor certification applications involving fraud or willful misrepresentation:

Finding of fraud or willful misrepresentation. If as referenced in Sec. 656.30(d), a court, the DHS or the Department of State determines there was fraud or willful misrepresentation involving a labor certification application, the application will be considered to be invalidated, processing is terminated, a notice of the termination and the reason therefore is sent by the Certifying Officer to the employer, attorney/agent as appropriate.

In this case, as noted above, the factual record does not currently disclose that the petitioner and/or ██████████ engaged in material misrepresentation with respect to the recruitment process.

Nevertheless, the AAO finds, based on the current record, that the approval of the petition on June 1, 2002 was erroneous, and will return the petition to the director for the issuance of a new NOIR.

1. Recruitment Efforts

The DOL regulation at 20 C.F.R. § 656.21 (2001) required, at the time of recruitment in this case, that the employer clearly document, as a part of every labor certification application, its reasonable, good faith efforts to recruit U.S. workers without success. Such documentation should include the sources the employer may have used for recruitment, including, but not limited to, advertising; public and/or private employment agencies; colleges or universities; vocational, trade, or technical schools; labor unions; and/or development or promotion from within the employer's organization. The documentation should also identify each recruitment source by name; give the number of U.S. workers responding to the employer's recruitment; give the number of interviews conducted with U.S. workers; specify the lawful job-related reasons for not hiring each U.S. worker interviewed; and specify the wages and working conditions offered to the U.S. workers. If the employer advertised the job opportunity prior to filing the application for certification, the employer shall include also a copy of at least one such advertisement.

In adjudicating the appeal, the AAO notes that the record contains anomalies in the recruitment efforts conducted by the petitioner. The record reflects that the petitioner advertised for the position in the [REDACTED] on February 4, 2001 and April 15, 2001. The application for labor certification was filed on April 24, 2001, indicating that the petitioner requested a reduction in recruitment at the time of filing the Form ETA 750. Yet the petitioner did not describe the efforts to recruit workers and the results of recruitment in section 21 of the Form ETA 750A. Nor was the Form ETA 750A dated by the petitioner. The petitioner's failure to document its recruitment efforts on the Form ETA 750A calls into question the bona fides of the recruitment efforts undertaken by the petitioner prior to filing the Form ETA 750.

The petitioner's failure to put a date and to describe the recruitment efforts in the Form ETA 750A also raises the likelihood that the DOL's recruitment procedures were not followed and that the petitioner or [REDACTED] (the attorney who represented the petitioner in filing the Form I-140) might have been impermissibly involved in the recruiting process, if for instance, the petitioner merely signed the Form ETA 750 and let [REDACTED] take over the recruitment efforts (by placing the advertisement and interviewing U.S. candidates, or making the decision on whether to refer recruits to the petitioner, for example).

The director should in the new NOIR request the petitioner to outline what specific steps it took to conduct good faith recruitment, e.g. other than the advertisements in the [REDACTED] on February 4, 2001 and April 15, 2001 whether and how the company advertised in a newspaper of general circulation, and identifying the recruitment source by name; ask the petitioner how many candidates were interviewed; and if so, whether and how it conducted interviews and determined that no other U.S. candidate was eligible for the position; and specifying the job related reason for not hiring each U.S. worker; and whether and for how long the company posted an in-house posting notice recruiting for the position. The director should specifically ask the petitioner for copies of the in-house posting notice and any other objective, independent evidence to establish that the petitioner actively participated in the recruitment process and followed the DOL requirements to ensure that no United States worker was qualified, willing and available to take the position. If such evidence is unavailable, the petitioner should explain why it cannot be obtained.<sup>6</sup> USCIS regulations at 8 C.F.R. §§ 103.2(b)(2)(i) and (ii) allow USCIS to accept secondary proof in the event that the primary evidence is not available. The regulations further <sup>6</sup> As there was no requirement to keep such records, the director may not make an adverse finding against the petitioner if it claims it does not have the documentation. As noted above, however, the AAO acknowledges the authority and interest of USCIS to request such documentation pursuant to our invalidation authority at 20 C.F.R. § 656.31(d) and the interest of the petitioner in proving its case by retaining and submitting such documentation to USCIS particularly in response to a fraud investigation.

state, "If secondary evidence also does not exist or cannot be obtained, the applicant or petitioner must demonstrate the unavailability of both the required document and relevant secondary evidence, and submit two or more affidavits, sworn to or affirmed by persons who are not parties to the petition who have direct personal knowledge of the event and circumstances." 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(2)(i).

2. The Beneficiary's Qualifications in the Job Offered

The AAO further finds that the petition is not approvable, as the record does not reflect that the beneficiary qualifies for the position offered.

Consistent with Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977), the petitioner must demonstrate, among other things, that, on the priority date – which is the date the Form ETA 750 was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the DOL – the beneficiary had all of the qualifications stated on the Form ETA 750 as certified by the DOL and submitted with the petition.

Here, the Form ETA 750 was filed and accepted for processing by the DOL on April 24, 2001. The name of the job title or the position for which the petitioner sought to hire is "cook." Under the job description, section 13 of the Form ETA 750, part A, the petitioner wrote, "Prepare all kinds of meat, fish, soups, salads, sauces, etc." Under section 14 of the Form ETA 750A the petitioner specifically required each applicant for this position to have a minimum of two (2) years of work experience in the job offered.

To determine whether a beneficiary is eligible for a preference immigrant visa, USCIS must ascertain whether the beneficiary is, in fact, qualified for the certified job. In evaluating the beneficiary's qualifications, USCIS must look to the job offer portion of the labor certification to determine the required qualifications for the position. USCIS may not ignore a term of the labor certification, nor may it impose additional requirements. See Matter of Silver Dragon Chinese Restaurant, 19 I&N Dec. 401, 406 (Comm. 1986). See also, Madany v. Smith, 696 F.2d, 696 F.2d 1008, (D.C. Cir. 1983); K.R.K. Irvine, Inc. v. Landon, 699 F.2d 1006 (9th Cir. 1983); Stewart Infra-Red Commissary of Massachusetts, Inc. v. Coomey, 661 F.2d 1 (1st Cir. 1981).

As set forth above, the proffered position requires the beneficiary to have a minimum of two years of work experience in the job offered. On the Form ETA 750, part B, signed by the beneficiary on January 3, 2001, she represented that she worked 35 hours a week at a restaurant in Londrina, Parana, called '██████████' as a cook from February 1997 to June 1999.

To show that the beneficiary had the requisite work experience in the job offered before April 24, 2001, the petitioner submitted the following evidence:

- An affidavit from ██████████ signed by ██████████ on January 23, 2001 stating that the beneficiary was a cook from February 20, 1997 to June 18, 1999.

- A signed statement dated March 20, 2009 from the beneficiary stating that she was a cook with [REDACTED] from 20/02/1997 (February 20, 1997) to 18/06/1999 (June 18, 1999); and
- A copy of the business registration of [REDACTED] showing that the business was officially registered in the CNPJ registration system on October 10, 1995.<sup>7</sup>

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3)(ii)(A) provides:

Any requirements of training or experience for skilled workers, professionals, or other workers must be supported by letters from trainers or employers giving the name, address, and title of the trainer or employer, and a description of the training received or the experience of the alien.

The AAO notes that the affidavit dated January 23, 2001 from [REDACTED] does not sufficiently describe the training received or the experience of the beneficiary. On remand, the director should in the new NOIR request the petitioner to submit evidence of the beneficiary's work experience that describes the beneficiary's duties at the job as required by 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3)(ii)(A).

Further, the AAO observes that the beneficiary, according to her Form G-325 (Biographical Information) that she filed in conjunction with her Application to Register Permanent Residence or Adjust Status (Form I-485), stated that she lived in the city of Maringa, Parana, Brazil between 1995 and 1999. The restaurant [REDACTED] is located in the city of Londrina, Parana, Brazil. It is unlikely that the beneficiary lived in Maringa, Parana, and worked in Londrina, Parana.<sup>8</sup>

In the new NOIR the director should advise the petitioner about the derogatory information regarding where the beneficiary lived and worked between 1997 and 1999, and give the petitioner a reasonable period of time to respond. Upon consideration of the response, the director may consider whether the documentation submitted by the petitioner of the beneficiary's work experience was fraudulent or a misrepresentation of a material fact in accordance with the discussion above. Should the director finds fraud or material misrepresentation involving the labor certification, he may invalidate the labor certification.

<sup>7</sup> Businesses that are officially registered with the Brazilian government are given a unique CNPJ number. CNPJ or Cadastro Nacional da Pessoa Juridica is similar to the federal tax ID or employer ID number in the United States. The U.S. Department of State has determined that the CNPJ provides reliable verification with respect to the adjudication of employment-based petitions in comparing an individual's stated hire and working dates with a Brazilian-based company to that Brazilian company's registered creation date.

3. The Petitioner's Ability to Pay

Lastly, the petition is not approvable since the petitioner has not established its ability to pay the proffered wage from the priority date until either the beneficiary receives her legal permanent residence or until she ports to another similar employment, pursuant to section 204(j) of the Act.<sup>9</sup>

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

The petitioner must demonstrate the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date, which is the date the Form ETA 750 was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the DOL. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d).

Here, as noted above, the record shows that the Form ETA 750 was received for processing on April 24, 2001. The rate of pay or the proffered wage as indicated on the Form ETA 750 is $12.57 per hour, $439.95 per week, or $22,877.40 per year (based on a 35-hour work per week).<sup>10</sup>

To establish the ability to pay, the petitioner has previously submitted a copy of its federal tax return filed on the Form 1120S, U.S. Income Tax Return for an S Corporation, for the year 2000. This evidence does not address the petitioner's ability to pay the beneficiary's proffered wage beginning on the priority date (April 24, 2001).

Therefore, in order for the petitioner to meet its burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that the petitioner is making a realistic job offer and that the petitioner has the <sup>9</sup> An application or petition that fails to comply with the technical requirements of the law may be denied by the AAO even if the Service Center does not identify all of the grounds for denial in the initial decision. See Spencer Enterprises, Inc. v. United States, 229 F. Supp. 2d 1025, 1043 (E.D. Cal. 2001), aff'd, 345 F.3d 683 (9th Cir. 2003); see also Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004) (noting that the AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis).

<sup>10</sup> The total hours per week indicated on the approved Form ETA 750 is 35 hours. This is permitted so long as the job opportunity is for a permanent and full-time position. See 20 C.F.R. §§ 656.3; 656.10(c)(10). The DOL precedent establishes that full-time means at least 35 hours or more per week. See Memo, Farmer, Admin. for Reg'l. Mngm't., Div. of Foreign Labor Certification, DOL Field Memo No. 48-94 (May 16, 1994).

continuing ability to pay the proffered wage from the priority date, the director must give the petitioner the opportunity to demonstrate that it has financial resources sufficient to pay the proffered wages of all of the beneficiaries; and if not, whether the totality of the circumstances affecting the petitioning business establishes the petitioner's ability to pay as of the priority date. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967).

In response to the director's NOIR dated February 24, 2009, [REDACTED] stated that the beneficiary no longer worked with the petitioner and had ported to similar employment as authorized by section 204(j) of the Act. Submitted along with the response was a letter dated March 9, 2009 from [REDACTED] who stated that the beneficiary had been working as a Dining Room/Kitchen Supervisor at [REDACTED] in Hyannis, MA since May of 2008.

Section 204(j) of the Act, as amended by Section 106(c) of the American Competitiveness in the Twenty-first Century Act of 2000 (AC21) (Public Law 106-313); 8 U.S.C. §1154(j) states:

Job Flexibility For Long Delayed Applicants For Adjustment Of Status To Permanent Residence- A petition under subsection (a)(1)(D) [since redesignated section 204(a)(1)(F)] for an individual whose application for adjustment of status pursuant to section 245 has been filed and remained unadjudicated for 180 days or more shall remain valid with respect to a new job if the individual changes jobs or employers<sup>11</sup> if the new job is in the same or a similar occupational classification as the job for which the petition was filed.

Section 204(j) of the Act prescribes that "A petition . . . shall remain valid with respect to a new job if the individual changes jobs or employers." The term "valid" is not defined by the statute, nor does the congressional record provide any guidance as to its meaning. See S. Rep. 106-260, 2000 WL 622763 (Apr. 11, 2000); see also H.R. Rep. 106-1048, 2001 WL 67919 (Jan. 2, 2001). However, the statutory language and framework for granting immigrant status, along with recent decisions of three federal circuit courts of appeals, clearly show that the term "valid," as used in section 204(j) of the Act, refers to an approved visa petition.

Although section 204(j) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1154(j), provides that an employment-based immigrant visa petition shall remain valid with respect to a new job if the beneficiary's application for adjustment of status has been filed and remained unadjudicated for 180 days, the petition must have been "valid" to begin with if it is to "remain valid with respect to a new job." Matter of Al Wazzan, 25 I&N Dec. 359 (AAO 2010). To be considered valid in harmony with related provisions and with the statute as a whole, the petition must have been filed for an alien who is entitled to the requested classification and that petition must have been approved by a USCIS officer pursuant to his or her authority under the Act. An unadjudicated immigrant visa petition is not made "valid" merely through the act of filing the petition with USCIS or through the passage of 180 days. Id.

In a case pertaining to the revocation of an I-140 petition, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals determined that the government's authority to revoke a Form I-140 petition under section 205 of the Act survived portability under section 204(j) of the Act. Herrera v. USCIS, 2009 WL 1911596 (9th Cir. July 6, 2009). Citing a 2005 AAO decision, the Ninth Circuit reasoned that in order to remain valid under section 204(j) of the Act, the I-140 petition must have been valid from the start. The Ninth Circuit stated that if the plaintiff's argument prevailed, an alien who exercised portability would be shielded from revocation, but an alien who remained with the petitioning employer would not share the same immunity. The Ninth Circuit noted that it was not the intent of Congress to grant extra benefits to those who changed jobs. Under the plaintiff's interpretation, an applicant would have a very large incentive to change jobs in order to guarantee that the approval of an I-140 petition could not be revoked. Id.<sup>12</sup>

On remand, upon consideration of the petitioner's response to the new NOIR, if the director determines that the Form I-140 petition should be revoked for good and sufficient cause, the beneficiary may not invoke AC21's I-140 portability provisions pursuant to section 204(j). In that case, any claim by the beneficiary that she may continue with her application to adjust status to permanent residence by virtue of having ported to the same or a similar job, must be denied as there would not be a valid, approved petition underlying that request.

The director's decision is withdrawn; however, the petition is currently unapprovable for the reasons discussed above, and therefore the AAO may not approve the petition at this time. The petition is remanded to the director for the issuance of another NOIR, giving the petitioner the opportunity to respond to the notice. The director may advise the petitioner that if it chooses to withdraw the Form I-140 petition, such withdrawal may not prevent a finding of fraud and the invalidation of the labor certification. Upon consideration of the response, if any, and the evidence of record, the director should issue a new, detailed decision which, if adverse to the petitioner, is to be certified to the AAO for review.

ORDER: The director's decision is withdrawn. The petition is remanded to the director for the issuance of a NOIR to the petitioner, and a new, detailed decision consistent with above, which if adverse to the petitioner shall be certified to the AAO for review.

<sup>12</sup> Moreover, every federal circuit court of appeals that has discussed the portability provision of section 204(j) of the Act has done so only in the context of deciding an immigration judge's jurisdiction to determine the continuing validity of an approved visa petition when adjudicating an alien's application for adjustment of status in removal proceedings. Sung v. Keisler, 2007 WL 3052778 (5th Cir. Oct. 22, 2007); Matovski v. Gonzales, 492 F.3d 722 (6th Cir. Jun. 15, 2007); Perez-Vargas v. Gonzales, 478 F.3d 191 (4th Cir. 2007). In Sung, the court quoted section 204(j) of the Act and explained that the provision only addresses when "an approved immigration petition will remain valid for the purpose of an application of adjustment of status." Sung, 2007 WL 3052778 at *1 (emphasis added). Accord Matovski, 492 F.3d at 735 (discussing portability as applied to an alien who had a "previously approved I-140 Petition for Alien Worker"); Perez-Vargas, 478 F.3d at 193 (stating that "[s]ection 204(j) . . . provides relief to the alien who changes jobs after his visa petition has been approved"). Hence, the requisite approval of the underlying visa petition is explicit in each of these decisions.
