PETITION: Immigrant Petition for Alien Worker as a Skilled Worker or Professional Pursuant to Section 203(b)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)

ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER:

INSTRUCTIONS:

Enclosed please find the decision of the Administrative Appeals Office in your case. All of the documents related to this matter have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Please be advised that any further inquiry that you might have concerning your case must be made to that office.

If you believe the AAO inappropriately applied the law in reaching its decision, or you have additional information that you wish to have considered, you may file a motion to reconsider or a motion to reopen in accordance with the instructions on Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal or Motion, with a fee of $630. The specific requirements for filing such a request can be found at 8 C.F.R. § 103.5. Do not file any motion directly with the AAO. Please be aware that 8 C.F.R. § 103.5(a)(1)(i) requires that any motion must be filed within 30 days of the decision that the motion seeks to reconsider or reopen.

Thank you,

Perry Rhew
Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The Director, Texas Service Center (director), denied the employment-based immigrant visa petition. The petitioner appealed the decision to the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO). The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner describes itself as an IT professional services provider. It seeks to permanently employ the beneficiary in the United States as a web developer/web architect. The petitioner requests classification of the beneficiary as a skilled worker pursuant to section 203(b)(3)(A) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A).<sup>1</sup>

The petition is accompanied by a Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification (labor certification), certified by the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL). The priority date of the petition, which is the date the DOL accepted the labor certification for processing, is August 27, 2002. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d).

The director's decision denying the petition concludes that the beneficiary did not possess a four-year bachelor's degree in computer science or a related field as required by the labor certification.

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact. The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into the decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal.<sup>2</sup>

At the outset, it is important to discuss the respective roles of the DOL and U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) in the employment-based immigrant visa process. As noted above, the labor certification in this matter is certified by the DOL. The DOL's role in this process is set forth at section 212(a)(5)(A)(i) of the Act, which provides:

<sup>1</sup> On appeal, the petitioner concedes that the petition cannot be approved under the professional classification and requests that the petition be considered under the skilled worker classification. Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), grants preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

<sup>2</sup> The submission of additional evidence on appeal is allowed by the instructions to the Form I-290B, which are incorporated into the regulations by 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(a)(1). The record in the instant case provides no reason to preclude consideration of any of the documents newly submitted on appeal. See Matter of Soriano, 19 I&N Dec. 764 (BIA 1988).

Any alien who seeks to enter the United States for the purpose of performing skilled or unskilled labor is inadmissible, unless the Secretary of Labor has determined and certified to the Secretary of State and the Attorney General that-

(I) there are not sufficient workers who are able, willing, qualified (or equally qualified in the case of an alien described in clause (ii)) and available at the time of application for a visa and admission to the United States and at the place where the alien is to perform such skilled or unskilled labor, and

(II) the employment of such alien will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of workers in the United States similarly employed.

It is significant that none of the above inquiries assigned to the DOL, or the regulations implementing these duties under 20 C.F.R. § 656, involve a determination as to whether the position and the alien are qualified for a specific immigrant classification. This fact has not gone unnoticed by federal circuit courts:

There is no doubt that the authority to make preference classification decisions rests with INS. The language of section 204 cannot be read otherwise. See Castaneda-Gonzalez v. INS, 564 F.2d 417, 429 (D.C. Cir. 1977). In turn, DOL has the authority to make the two determinations listed in section 212(a)(14).<sup>3</sup> Id. at 423. The necessary result of these two grants of authority is that section 212(a)(14) determinations are not subject to review by INS absent fraud or willful misrepresentation, but all matters relating to preference classification eligibility not expressly delegated to DOL remain within INS' authority.

Given the language of the Act, the totality of the legislative history, and the agencies' own interpretations of their duties under the Act, we must conclude that Congress did not intend DOL to have primary authority to make any determinations other than the two stated in section 212(a)(14). If DOL is to analyze alien qualifications, it is for the purpose of "matching" them with those of corresponding United States workers so that it will then be "in a position to meet the requirement of the law," namely the section 212(a)(14) determinations.

Madany v. Smith, 696 F.2d 1008, 1012-1013 (D.C. Cir. 1983). Relying in part on Madany, 696 F.2d at 1008, the Ninth Circuit stated:

[I]t appears that the DOL is responsible only for determining the availability of suitable American workers for a job and the impact of alien employment upon the domestic labor market. It does not appear that the DOL's role extends to determining if the alien is qualified for the job for which he seeks sixth preference status. That determination appears to be delegated to the INS under section 204(b), 8 U.S.C. § 1154(b), as one of the determinations incident to the INS's decision whether the alien is entitled to sixth preference status.

K.R.K. Irvine, Inc. v. Landon, 699 F.2d 1006, 1008 (9th Cir. 1983). The court relied on an amicus brief from the DOL that stated the following:

The labor certification made by the Secretary of Labor . . . pursuant to section 212(a)(14) of the [Act] is binding as to the findings of whether there are able, willing, qualified, and available United States workers for the job offered to the alien, and whether employment of the alien under the terms set by the employer would adversely affect the wages and working conditions of similarly employed United States workers. The labor certification in no way indicates that the alien offered the certified job opportunity is qualified (or not qualified) to perform the duties of that job.

(Emphasis added.) Id. at 1009. The Ninth Circuit, citing K.R.K. Irvine, Inc., 699 F.2d at 1006, revisited this issue, stating:

The Department of Labor (DOL) must certify that insufficient domestic workers are available to perform the job and that the alien's performance of the job will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of similarly employed domestic workers. Id. § 212(a)(14), 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(14). The INS then makes its own determination of the alien's entitlement to sixth preference status. Id. § 204(b), 8 U.S.C. § 1154(b). See generally K.R.K. Irvine, Inc. v. Landon, 699 F.2d 1006, 1008 9th Cir.1983).

The INS, therefore, may make a de novo determination of whether the alien is in fact qualified to fill the certified job offer.

Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F. 2d 1305, 1309 (9th Cir. 1984).

Therefore, it is the DOL's responsibility to determine whether there are qualified U.S. workers available to perform the offered position, and whether the employment of the beneficiary will adversely affect similarly employed U.S. workers. It is the responsibility of USCIS to determine if the beneficiary qualifies for the offered position, and whether the offered position and beneficiary are eligible for the requested employment-based immigrant visa classification.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Act provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States. See also 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(2).

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3)(ii)(B) states:

If the petition is for a skilled worker, the petition must be accompanied by evidence that the alien meets the educational, training or experience, and any other requirements of the [labor certification]. The minimum requirements for this classification are at least two years of training or experience.

The determination of whether a petition may be approved for a skilled worker is based on the requirements of the job offered as set forth on the labor certification. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(4). The labor certification must require at least two years of training and/or experience. Relevant post-secondary education may be considered as training. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(2).

Accordingly, a petition for a skilled worker must establish that the job offer portion of the labor certification requires at least two years of training and/or experience, and the beneficiary meets all of the requirements of the offered position set forth on the labor certification.

In evaluating the job offer portion of the labor certification to determine the required qualifications for the position, USCIS may not ignore a term of the labor certification, nor may it impose additional requirements. See Matter of Silver Dragon Chinese Restaurant, 19 I&N Dec. 401, 406 (Comm. 1986). See also Madany, 696 F.2d at 1008; K.R.K. Irvine, Inc., 699 F.2d at 1006; Stewart Infra-Red Commissary of Massachusetts, Inc. v. Coomey, 661 F.2d 1 (1st Cir. 1981).

Where the job requirements in a labor certification are not otherwise unambiguously prescribed, e.g., by regulation, USCIS must examine “the language of the labor certification job requirements” in order to determine what the petitioner must demonstrate about the beneficiary’s qualifications. Madany, 696 F.2d at 1015. The only rational manner by which USCIS can be expected to interpret the meaning of terms used to describe the requirements of a job in a labor certification is to “examine the certified job offer exactly as it is completed by the prospective employer.” Rosedale Linden Park Company v. Smith, 595 F. Supp. 829, 833 (D.D.C. 1984)(emphasis added). USCIS’s interpretation of the job’s requirements, as stated on the labor certification must involve “reading and applying the plain language of the [labor certification].” Id. at 834 (emphasis added). USCIS cannot and should not reasonably be expected to look beyond the plain language of the labor certification or otherwise attempt to divine the employer’s intentions through some sort of reverse engineering of the labor certification.

In the instant case, the labor certification states that the offered position has the following minimum requirements:

EDUCATION

Grade School: Yes

High School: Yes

College: “4” years

College Degree Required: Bachelor’s degree

Major Field of Study: Computer Science or related field

TRAINING: None Required

EXPERIENCE: Two years in the job offered

OTHER SPECIAL REQUIREMENTS: None

The labor certification states that a four-year bachelor's degree in computer science or a related field is required. The labor certification does not state that an individual could qualify for the offered position with less than a four-year bachelor's degree, such as with a combination of lesser education and/or experience that is equivalent to a degree.

Part B of the Form ETA 750 lists the beneficiary's credentials as a bachelor's degree in computer science from the [REDACTED] in 1992, a diploma in Industrial Training from the [REDACTED] India in 1994, a certificate in Computer Applications from [REDACTED] in 1995, and a diploma in Computer Applications from [REDACTED] in 1996.

The record contains a copy of a National Training Certificate indicating that the beneficiary completed a course of training as a Turner at the [REDACTED] Kalyani, India awarded in 1994. The record also contains a copy of a certificate from [REDACTED] that states the beneficiary "was a student of second year B.Sc. Class of this College during the Session 1990-92 in the Bio Science Pass Course." This appears to be the program referred to on the Form ETA 750 as a bachelor's degree. Finally, the record contains copies of computer certificates from computer training companies such as [REDACTED]

The record contains a credentials evaluation from Globe Language Services, Inc., which states that the beneficiary has, as a result of a two-year Bio Science Pass Course, two certificates from [REDACTED] and progressively responsible employment experience, the equivalent of a bachelor's degree in computer science from an accredited university in the United States.

USCIS may, in its discretion, use as advisory opinions statements submitted as expert testimony. However, where an opinion is not in accord with other information or is in any way questionable, the Service is not required to accept or may give less weight to that evidence. Matter of Caron International, 19 I&N Dec. 791 (Comm'r 1988); Matter of Sea, Inc., 19 I&N Dec. 817 (Comm'r 1988). See also Matter of D-R-, 25 I&N Dec. 445 (BIA 2011)(expert witness testimony may be given different weight depending on the extent of the expert's qualifications or the relevance, reliability, and probative value of the testimony).

The evaluation does not include the evidence used by the evaluator to determine that the two certificates issued by [REDACTED] are equivalent to undergraduate education in computer science. In addition, the evaluation used the rule to equate three years of experience for one year of education, but that equivalence applies to non-immigrant H-1B petitions, not to immigrant petitions. See 8 CFR § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(D)(5).

On April 11, 2012, the AAO issued a Request for Evidence (RFE) to the petitioner, in which the AAO detailed the beneficiary's credentials and introduced the Electronic Database for Global Education (EDGE). EDGE was created by the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers (AACRAO). According to its website, AACRAO is "a nonprofit, voluntary, professional association of more than 11,000 higher education admissions and registration professionals who represent more than 2,600 institutions and agencies in the United States and in over 40 countries around the world." See <http://www.aacrao.org/About-AACRAO.aspx>. Its mission "is to serve and advance higher education by providing leadership in academic and enrollment services." Id. EDGE is "a web-based resource for the evaluation of foreign educational credentials." <http://edge.aacrao.org/info.php>. Authors for EDGE are not merely expressing their personal opinions. Rather, they must work with a publication consultant and a Council Liaison with AACRAO's National Council on the Evaluation of Foreign Educational Credentials.<sup>4</sup> If placement recommendations are included, the Council Liaison works with the author to give feedback and the publication is subject to final review by the entire Council. Id. USCIS considers EDGE to be a reliable, peer-reviewed source of information about foreign credentials equivalencies.<sup>5</sup>

EDGE's credential advice provides that a two-year bachelor's degree is comparable to "2 years of university study in the United States. Credit may be awarded on a course-by-course basis."

As is noted above, the labor certification does not permit a lesser degree, a combination of lesser degrees, and/or a quantifiable amount of work experience, such as that possessed by the beneficiary.<sup>6</sup>

<sup>5</sup> In Confluence Intern., Inc. v. Holder, 2009 WL 825793 (D.Minn. March 27, 2009), the court determined that the AAO provided a rational explanation for its reliance on information provided by AACRAO to support its decision. In Tisco Group, Inc. v. Napolitano, 2010 WL 3464314 (E.D.Mich. August 30, 2010), the court found that USCIS had properly weighed the evaluations submitted and the information obtained from EDGE to conclude that the alien's three-year foreign "baccalaureate" and foreign "Master's" degree were only comparable to a U.S. bachelor's degree. In Sunshine Rehab Services, Inc. 2010 WL 3325442 (E.D.Mich. August 20, 2010), the court upheld a USCIS determination that the alien's three-year bachelor's degree was not a foreign equivalent degree to a U.S. bachelor's degree. Specifically, the court concluded that USCIS was entitled to prefer the information in EDGE and did not abuse its discretion in reaching its conclusion. The court also noted that the labor certification itself required a degree and did not allow for the combination of education and experience.

<sup>6</sup> The DOL has provided the following field guidance: "When an equivalent degree or alternative work experience is acceptable, the employer must specifically state on the [labor certification] as well as throughout all phases of recruitment exactly what will be considered equivalent or alternative in order to qualify for the job." See Memo. from Anna C. Hall, Acting Regl. Adminstr., U.S. Dep't. of Labor's Empl. & Training Administration, to SESA and JTPA Adminstrs., U.S. Dep't. of Labor's Empl. & Training Administration, Interpretation of "Equivalent Degree," 2 (June 13, 1994). The Nonetheless, the AAO RFE permitted the petitioner to submit any evidence that it intended the labor certification to require an alternative to a U.S. bachelor's degree or a single foreign equivalent degree, as that intent was explicitly and specifically expressed during the labor certification process to the DOL and to potentially qualified U.S. workers.<sup>7</sup> Specifically, the AAO requested that the petitioner provide a copy of the signed recruitment report required by 20 C.F.R. § 656, together with copies of the prevailing wage determination, all recruitment conducted for the position, the posted notice of the filing of the labor certification, and all resumes received in response to the recruitment efforts.

In its response to the RFE, the petitioner failed to submit documentary evidence of its intent to open recruitment of the offered position to prospective workers who hold less than a four-year bachelor's degree in computer science. Instead, counsel argued that the petitioner's intent was to retain the beneficiary in the job he has held since 2000 and that since he was approved for employment in this capacity by USCIS as an H-1B nonimmigrant worker, it should be little more than a formality that the instant I-140 be approved as a skilled worker. Counsel does not provide legal support for this claim. The requirements for an H-1B nonimmigrant petition based on Form I-129 are substantially different than the requirements for an employment-based immigrant petition based on Form I-140. The fact that USCIS approved an H-1B petition filed on behalf of the beneficiary does not in any way determine whether USCIS should approve a subsequent employment-based immigrant petition. In addition, the failure to submit requested evidence that precludes a material line of inquiry shall be grounds for denying the petition. See 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(14). Further, the RFE response concedes that the offered position was tailored to the beneficiary and was not open to U.S. workers, contrary to the petitioner's representations to the DOL during the labor certification process.<sup>8</sup>

DOL's certification of job requirements stating that "a certain amount and kind of experience is the equivalent of a college degree does in no way bind [USCIS] to accept the employer's definition." See Ltr. From Paul R. Nelson, Certifying Officer, U.S. Dept. of Labor's Empl. & Training Administration, to Lynda Won-Chung, Esq., Jackson & Hertogs (March 9, 1993). The DOL has also stated that "[w]hen the term equivalent is used in conjunction with a degree, we understand to mean the employer is willing to accept an equivalent foreign degree." See Ltr. From Paul R. Nelson, Certifying Officer, U.S. Dept. of Labor's Empl. & Training Administration, to Joseph Thomas, INS (October 27, 1992). To our knowledge, these field guidance memoranda have not been rescinded.

<sup>7</sup> In limited circumstances, USCIS may consider a petitioner's intent to determine the meaning of an unclear or ambiguous term in the labor certification. However, an employer's subjective intent may not be dispositive of the meaning of the actual minimum requirements of the offered position. See Maramjaya v. USCIS, Civ. Act No. 06-2158 (D.D.C. Mar. 26, 2008). The best evidence of the petitioner's intent concerning the actual minimum educational requirements of the offered position is evidence of how it expressed those requirements to the DOL during the labor certification process and not afterwards to USCIS. The timing of such evidence ensures that the stated requirements of the offered position as set forth on the labor certification are not incorrectly expanded in an effort to fit the beneficiary's credentials. Such a result would undermine Congress' intent to limit the issuance of immigrant visas in the professional and skilled worker classifications to when there are no qualified U.S. workers available to perform the offered position. See Id. at 14.

<sup>8</sup> If there is a willful misrepresentation on the labor certification, USCIS has the authority to

The petitioner failed to establish that the terms of the labor certification are ambiguous and that the petitioner intended the labor certification to require less than a four-year U.S. bachelor's or foreign equivalent degree, as that intent was expressed during the labor certification process to the DOL and potentially qualified U.S. workers. The AAO is bound by the plain language of the labor certification. The labor certification requires a four-year U.S. bachelor's degree in computer science or a foreign equivalent degree. The beneficiary does not possess the required degree. Therefore, the petitioner failed to establish that the beneficiary met the minimum educational requirements of the offered position set forth on the labor certification by the priority date.

We note the decision in Snapnames.com, Inc. v. Michael Chertoff, 2006 WL 3491005 (D. Or. Nov. 30, 2006). In that case, the labor certification specified an educational requirement of four years of college and a "B.S. or foreign equivalent." The district court determined that "B.S. or foreign equivalent" relates solely to the alien's educational background, precluding consideration of the alien's combined education and work experience. Snapnames.com, Inc. at *11-13. Additionally, the court determined that the word "equivalent" in the employer's educational requirements was ambiguous and that in the context of skilled worker petitions (where there is no statutory educational requirement), deference must be given to the employer's intent. Snapnames.com, Inc. at *14.<sup>9</sup> In addition, the court in Snapnames.com, Inc. recognized that even though the labor certification may be prepared with the alien in mind, USCIS has an independent role in determining whether the alien meets the labor certification requirements. Id. at *7. Thus, the court concluded that where the plain language of those requirements does not support the petitioner's asserted intent, USCIS "does not err in applying the requirements as written." Id. See also Maramjaya v. USCIS, Civ. Act No. 06-2158 (D.D.C. Mar. 26, 2008)(upholding USCIS interpretation that the term "bachelor's or equivalent" on the labor certification necessitated a single four-year degree).

In the instant case, unlike the labor certifications in Snapnames.com, Inc. and Grace Korean, the required education is clearly and unambiguously stated on the labor certification and does not include the language "or equivalent" or any other alternatives to a four-year bachelor's degree.

In summary, the AAO affirms the director's decision that the petitioner failed to establish that the invalidate the certified application. See 20 C.F.R. § 656.31(d).

<sup>9</sup> In Grace Korean United Methodist Church v. Michael Chertoff, 437 F. Supp. 2d 1174 (D. Or. 2005), the court concluded that USCIS "does not have the authority or expertise to impose its strained definition of 'B.A. or equivalent' on that term as set forth in the labor certification." However, the court in Grace Korean makes no attempt to distinguish its holding from the federal circuit court decisions cited above. Instead, as legal support for its determination, the court cites to Tovar v. U.S. Postal Service, 3 F.3d 1271, 1276 (9th Cir. 1993)(the U.S. Postal Service has no expertise or special competence in immigration matters). Id. at 1179. Tovar is easily distinguishable from the present matter since USCIS, through the authority delegated by the Secretary of Homeland Security, is charged by statute with the enforcement of the United States immigration laws. See section 103(a) of the Act.

beneficiary met the minimum educational requirements of the offered position set forth on the labor certification as of the priority date. Therefore, the beneficiary does not qualify for classification as a skilled worker under section 203(b)(3)(A) of the Act.

Beyond the decision of the director, the petitioner has also failed to establish that the beneficiary possessed the required experience to perform the offered position as of the priority date.<sup>10</sup> The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3) provides:

(ii) Other documentation—

(A) General. Any requirements of training or experience for skilled workers, professionals, or other workers must be supported by letters from trainers or employers giving the name, address, and title of the trainer or employer, and a description of the training received or the experience of the alien.

The record of proceeding does not contain evidence establishing that the beneficiary has two years of qualifying employment experience conforming to the regulatory requirements of 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3)(ii)(A).

The petition contains a letter signed by [REDACTED] Director of [REDACTED], in Kanchrapara, India, which states that the beneficiary served as application developer and system administrator from January 1998 to July 1999. This is less than the required two years of experience. In addition, the [REDACTED] letter does not state that the beneficiary was employed on a full-time basis. Form ETA 750 Part B also lists employment with [REDACTED] in Calcutta, India from August 1999 to September 2000, however the beneficiary's claimed qualifying experience must be supported by letters from employers giving the name, address, and title of the employer, and a description of the beneficiary's experience. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3)(ii)(A). The record does not contain an experience letter from [REDACTED]. This claimed employment was also not listed on the beneficiary's resume. It is incumbent upon the petitioner to resolve any inconsistencies in the record by independent objective evidence. Any attempt to explain or reconcile such inconsistencies will not suffice unless the petitioner submits competent objective evidence pointing to where the truth lies. Matter of Ho, 19 I&N Dec. 582, 591-92 (BIA 1988). Doubt cast on any aspect of the petitioner's proof may, of course, lead to a reevaluation of the reliability and sufficiency of the remaining evidence offered in support of the visa petition. Id. at 591.

Further, when determining whether a beneficiary has the required minimum experience for a position, experience gained by the beneficiary with the petitioner in the offered position cannot be

<sup>10</sup> An application or petition that fails to comply with the technical requirements of the law may be denied by the AAO even if the Service Center does not identify all of the grounds for denial in the initial decision. See Spencer Enterprises, Inc. v. United States, 229 F. Supp. 2d 1025, 1043 (E.D. Cal. 2001), aff'd, 345 F.3d 683 (9th Cir. 2003); *see also Soltane v. considered. This position is supported by the Board of Alien Labor Certification Appeals (BALCA). See Delitizer Corp. of Newton, 88-INA-482, May 9, 1990 (BALCA);

[W]here the required experience was gained by the alien while working for the employer in jobs other than the job offered, the employer must demonstrate that the job in which the alien gained experience was not similar to the job offered for certification. Some relevant considerations on the issue of similarity include the relative job duties and supervisory responsibilities, job requirements, the positions of the jobs in the employer's job hierarchy, whether and by whom the position has been filled previously, whether the position is newly created, the prior employment practices of the employer regarding the relative positions, the amount or percentage of time spent performing each job duty in each job, and the job salaries.

In Delitizer, BALCA considered whether an employer violated the regulatory requirements of 20 C.F.R. § 656.21(b)(6)<sup>11</sup> in requiring one year of experience where the beneficiary gained all of his experience while working for the petitioning employer. After analysis of other BALCA and pre-BALCA decisions,<sup>12</sup> the Board in Delitizer determined that 20 C.F.R. § 656.21(b)(6) does require that employers establish "the 'dissimilarity' of the position offered for certification from the position in which the alien gained the required experience." Delitizer Corp. of Newton, at 4. In its decision, BALCA stated that Certifying Officers should consider various factors to establish that the requirement of dissimilarity under 20 C.F.R. § 656.21(b)(6) has been met, and that, while Certifying Officers must state the factors considered as a basis for their decisions, the employer bears the burden of proof in establishing that the positions are dissimilar. Delitizer Corp. of Newton, at 5.

Experience gained with the petitioner in the offered position may not be used by the beneficiary to qualify for the proffered position without evidence that the DOL conducted an analysis of the dissimilarity of the position offered and the position in which the beneficiary gained experience with the petitioner. There is no such evidence in the record.

Therefore, the evidence in the record also does not establish that the beneficiary possessed the required experience set forth on the labor certification by the priority date. The appeal must also be dismissed for this reason.

The petition will be denied for the above stated reasons, with each considered as an independent and alternative basis for denial. In visa petition proceedings, the burden of proving eligibility for the
