(b)(6)

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center (the director), and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is an individual. She seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a nanny. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by a Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification, approved by the United States Department of Labor (DOL). Apart from Form ETA 750, the petition was submitted without any of the supporting documents required pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3). The director determined that the petitioner had not submitted the requisite initial evidence and denied the petition pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(8)(ii).

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed and timely and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact. The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into the decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

As set forth in the director's February 7, 2009 denial, the first issue in this case is whether or not the petitioner has the ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

The regulation 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

The petitioner must demonstrate the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date, which is the date the Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification, was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the DOL. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d). The petitioner must also demonstrate that, on the priority date, the beneficiary had the qualifications stated on its Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification, as certified by the DOL and submitted with the instant petition. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Acting Reg'l Comm'r 1977).

Here, the Form ETA 750 was accepted on April 30, 2001. The proffered wage as stated on the Form ETA 750 is $9.88 per hour ($20,550.40 per year). The Form ETA 750 states that the position requires four years of experience in the job offered.

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal.¹

On appeal, the petitioner provided no documentary evidence. Rather, the petitioner states that the director's decision was erroneous because he denied the petition without requesting the required evidence. Further, the petitioner asserts that she submitted evidence related to nature of the proffered position when applying for the labor certification. She further asserts that since the labor certification was approved, the evidence supplied in support of this document should suffice to demonstrate eligibility in this matter.

The evidence in the record of proceeding shows that the petitioner is an individual. On the Form ETA 750B, signed by the beneficiary on April 26, 2001, the beneficiary claimed to have worked for the petitioner since July 1993.

The petitioner must establish that her job offer to the beneficiary is a realistic one. Because the filing of an ETA 750 labor certification application establishes a priority date for any immigrant petition later based on the ETA 750, the petitioner must establish that the job offer was realistic as of the priority date and that the offer remained realistic for each year thereafter, until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. The petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is an essential element in evaluating whether a job offer is realistic. See Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142 (Acting Reg'l Comm'r 1977); see also 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2). In evaluating whether a job offer is realistic, United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) requires the petitioner to demonstrate financial resources sufficient to pay the beneficiary's proffered wages, although the totality of the circumstances affecting the petitioning business will be considered if the evidence warrants such consideration. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg'l Comm'r 1967).

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage during a given period, USCIS will first examine whether the petitioner employed and paid the beneficiary during that period. If the petitioner establishes by documentary evidence that she employed the beneficiary at a salary equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the evidence will be considered prima facie proof of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. In the instant case, though the beneficiary claims to have worked for the petitioner since July 1993, the petitioner provided no evidence of any wages paid to the beneficiary at any time. The petitioner, therefore, has not established that she employed and paid the beneficiary the full proffered wage from the priority date in 2001 onwards.

¹ The submission of additional evidence on appeal is allowed by the instructions to the Form I-290B, which are incorporated into the regulations by the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(a)(1). The record in the instant case provides no reason to preclude consideration of any of the documents newly submitted on appeal. See Matter of Soriano, 19 I&N Dec. 764 (BIA 1988).

If the petitioner does not establish that she employed and paid the beneficiary an amount at least equal to the proffered wage during that period, USCIS will next examine the net income figure reflected on the petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. River Street Donuts, LLC v. Napolitano, 558 F.3d 111 (1st Cir. 2009); Taco Especial v. Napolitano, 696 F. Supp. 2d 873 (E.D. Mich. 2010), aff'd, No. 10-1517 (6th Cir. filed Nov. 10, 2011). Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well established by judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F. Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984)); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F. Supp. 532 (N.D. Texas 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983).

The petitioner is an individual. Therefore the individual's adjusted gross income, assets and liabilities are also considered as part of the petitioner's ability to pay. Individuals report income and expenses on their IRS Form 1040 federal tax return each year. Individuals must show that they can cover their existing expenses as well as pay the proffered wage out of their adjusted gross income or other available funds. In addition, individuals must show that they can sustain themselves and their dependents. See Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983).

The petitioner provided no financial evidence of any sort in support of her ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage. Neither did the petitioner provide any evidence of her personal, recurring, monthly expenses.

Without evidence of the petitioner's income or evidence of her personal, recurring, monthly expenses, she has not demonstrated that she has the ability to support her household and pay the beneficiary the proffered wage from the priority date until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence.

USCIS may also consider the petitioner's personal, unencumbered and liquefiable assets that could reasonably be applied towards paying employee wages. However, the petitioner provided no evidence of such personal assets.

Going on record, without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. 158, 165 (Comm'r 1998) (citing Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg'l Comm'r 1972)).

The AAO, therefore, affirms the director's decision that the petitioner has not demonstrated the ability to pay the beneficiary from the priority date until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence.

As set forth in the director's February 7, 2009 denial, the second issue in this matter is whether the beneficiary has the required experience to perform the proffered position as set forth on Form ETA 750.

The beneficiary must meet all of the requirements of the offered position set forth on the labor certification by the priority date of the petition. 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(1), (12). See Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158, 159 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977); see also Matter of Katigbak, 14 I&N Dec. 45, 49 (Reg. Comm. 1971).

In evaluating the beneficiary's qualifications, USCIS must look to the job offer portion of the labor certification to determine the required qualifications for the position. USCIS may not ignore a term of the labor certification, nor may it impose additional requirements. See Matter of Silver Dragon Chinese Restaurant, 19 I&N Dec. 401, 406 (Comm'r 1986). See also, Madany v. Smith, 696 F.2d 1008 (D.C. Cir. 1983); K.R.K. Irvine, Inc. v. Landon, 699 F.2d 1006 (9th Cir. 1983); Stewart Infra-Red Commissary of Massachusetts, Inc. v. Coomey, 661 F.2d 1 (1st Cir. 1981).

Where the job requirements in a labor certification are not otherwise unambiguously prescribed, e.g., by regulation, USCIS must examine "the language of the labor certification job requirements" in order to determine what the petitioner must demonstrate about the beneficiary's qualifications. Madany, 696 F.2d at 1015. The only rational manner by which USCIS can be expected to interpret the meaning of terms used to describe the requirements of a job in a labor certification is to "examine the certified job offer exactly as it is completed by the prospective employer." Rosedale Linden Park Company v. Smith, 595 F. Supp. 829, 833 (D.D.C. 1984)(emphasis added). USCIS's interpretation of the job's requirements, as stated on the labor certification must involve "reading and applying the plain language of the [labor certification]." Id. at 834 (emphasis added). USCIS cannot and should not reasonably be expected to look beyond the plain language of the labor certification or otherwise attempt to divine the employer's intentions through some sort of reverse engineering of the labor certification.

In the instant case, the labor certification states that the offered position has the following minimum requirements:

EDUCATION

Grade School: C

High School: C

College: None Required

College Degree Required: None

Major Field of Study: General

TRAINING: None Required.

EXPERIENCE: Four (4) years in the job offered

OTHER SPECIAL REQUIREMENTS: None.

The beneficiary represented her qualifying employment experience on the labor certification based on experience as a live-in baby sitter with the petitioner from July 1993 until April 26, 2001, the date on which the beneficiary signed the labor certification. Additionally, the labor certification also includes the beneficiary's experience as a live-in baby sitter in an unidentified private home from September 1998 until July 1993. No other experience is listed. The beneficiary signed the labor certification under a declaration that the contents are true and correct under penalty of perjury.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3)(ii)(A) states:

Any requirements of training or experience for skilled workers, professionals, or other workers must be supported by letters from trainers or employers giving the name, address, and title of the trainer or employer, and a description of the training received or the experience of the alien.

In this case, the petitioner provided no letters, or any other evidence, attesting to the beneficiary's experience.

Going on record, without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. 158, 165 (Comm'r 1998) (citing Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg'l Comm'r 1972)).

Therefore, the AAO affirms the director's decision that the petitioner failed to establish that the beneficiary met the minimum requirements of the offered position set forth on the labor certification as of the priority date. Therefore, the beneficiary does not qualify for classification as a professional or skilled worker under section 203(b)(3)(A) of the Act.

On appeal, the petitioner asserts that the director's decision denying the instant petition without having issued a request for the required evidence was arbitrary and out of accord with existing policy.

However, the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(8)(ii) states in pertinent part:

Initial evidence. If all required initial evidence is not submitted with the application or petition or does not demonstrate eligibility, USCIS in its discretion may deny the application or petition for lack of initial evidence or for ineligibility or request that the missing initial evidence be submitted within a specified period of time as determined by USCIS.

In the instant case, the petitioner failed to submit initial evidence of its continuing ability to pay the proffered wage with the petition and failed to submit initial evidence of the beneficiary's qualifications for the proffered position, and therefore, the director was not obligated to issue a Request for Evidence (RFE) seeking the missing initial evidence of the petitioner's eligibility.

Moreover, in his February 7, 2009 denial, the director articulated the reasons for the denial, apart from finding that the petitioner failed to provide the required initial evidence. Therein, the director stated:

Specifically, the petitioner is missing evidence that the beneficiary met the labor certification requirement of four years of experience prior to April 30, 2001, and is missing documentation of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage after April 30, 2001. The experience can be documented by a letter from a former employer; the ability to pay the wage can be documented by evidence that the wage has been paid, or by income tax returns of the petitioner since 2001 showing adjusted gross income and a list of estimated monthly expenses spent to maintain the petitioner's household. Both the tax form showing adjusted gross income and the expense information is necessary in order to verify that the individual employer is able to maintain their household and still pay the proffered wage.

However, even though she was explicitly given the bases for the denial, the petitioner provided no evidence in support of her case, on appeal.

On appeal, the petitioner further states that she was required to provide evidence "about the babysitters [sic] qualifications and about the means of payment for her salary" to the [REDACTED] in support of labor certification. The petitioner asserts that "demanding documentation already presented to the [REDACTED] for their evaluation results in re-adjudication of the said Labor Certification and in a wasteful use of the governments [sic] precious resources."

Section 212(a)(5)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act) and the scope of the regulation at 20 C.F.R. § 656.1(a) describe the role of the DOL in the labor certification process as follows:

In general.-Any alien who seeks to enter the United States for the purpose of performing skilled or unskilled labor is inadmissible, unless the Secretary of Labor has determined and certified to the Secretary of State and the Attorney General that-

- (I) there are not sufficient workers who are able, willing, qualified (or equally qualified in the case of an alien described in clause (ii)) and available at the time of application for a visa and admission to the United States and at the place where the alien is to perform such skilled or unskilled labor, and
- (II) the employment of such alien will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of workers in the United States similarly employed.

It is left to United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) to determine whether the proffered position and alien qualify for a specific immigrant classification or even the job offered. This fact has not gone unnoticed by Federal Circuit Courts:

There is no doubt that the authority to make preference classification decisions rests with INS. The language of section 204 cannot be read otherwise. See Castaneda-Gonzalez v. INS, 564 F.2d 417, 429 (D.C. Cir. 1977). In turn, DOL has the authority to make the two determinations listed in section 212(a)(14).² Id. at 423. The necessary result of these two grants of authority is that section 212(a)(14) determinations are not subject to review by INS absent fraud or willful misrepresentation, but all matters relating to preference classification eligibility not expressly delegated to DOL remain within INS' authority.

Given the language of the Act, the totality of the legislative history, and the agencies' own interpretations of their duties under the Act, we must conclude that Congress did not intend DOL to have primary authority to make any determinations other than the two stated in section 212(a)(14). If DOL is to analyze alien qualifications, it is for the purpose of "matching" them with those of corresponding United States workers so that it will then be "in a position to meet the requirement of the law," namely the section 212(a)(14) determinations.

Madany v. Smith, 696 F.2d 1008, 1012-1013 (D.C. Cir. 1983).³

Therefore, the DOL's role is limited to testing the labor market to ensure that there are not sufficient workers who are able, willing, and available at the time of application for a visa and admission to the United States and at the place where the alien is to perform such skilled or unskilled labor, and the employment of such alien will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of workers in the United States similarly employed. This determination is reflected in the certification and issuance of the labor certification (e.g. Form ETA 750 or Form ETA 9089). USCIS must then make the determination regarding whether the petitioner has demonstrated eligibility for the immigration benefit sought. To that end, USCIS must determine whether the petitioner has demonstrated the ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage from the priority date until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence and whether the petitioner has demonstrated that the beneficiary has the qualifications which are set forth on Form ETA 750.

³ The Ninth Circuit, citing K.R.K. Irvine, Inc., 699 F.2d at 1006, has stated:

The Department of Labor (DOL) must certify that insufficient domestic workers are available to perform the job and that the alien's performance of the job will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of similarly employed domestic workers. Id. § 212(a)(14), 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(14). The INS then makes its own determination of the alien's entitlement to sixth preference status. Id. § 204(b), 8 U.S.C. § 1154(b). See generally K.R.K. Irvine, Inc. v. Landon, 699 F.2d 1006, 1008 9th Cir.1983).

The INS, therefore, may make a de novo determination of whether the alien is in fact qualified to fill the certified job offer.

Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F. 2d 1305, 1309 (9th Cir. 1984).

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
