PETITION: Immigrant Petition for Alien Worker as a Skilled Worker or Professional Pursuant to Section 203(b)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)

ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER:
[REDACTED]

INSTRUCTIONS:

Enclosed please find the decision of the Administrative Appeals Office in your case. All of the documents related to this matter have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Please be advised that any further inquiry that you might have concerning your case must be made to that office.

If you believe the AAO inappropriately applied the law in reaching its decision, or you have additional information that you wish to have considered, you may file a motion to reconsider or a motion to reopen with the field office or service center that originally decided your case by filing a Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal or Motion, with a fee of $630. The specific requirements for filing such a motion can be found at 8 C.F.R. § 103.5. Do not file any motion directly with the AAO. Please be aware that 8 C.F.R. § 103.5(a)(1)(i) requires any motion to be filed within 30 days of the decision that the motion seeks to reconsider or reopen.

Thank you,

Elizabeth McCormack

Perry Rhew
Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Texas Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a drafting and engineering company. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as an architectural drafter. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by ETA Form 9089, Application for Permanent Employment Certification, approved by the United States Department of Labor (DOL). The director determined that the petitioner had not submitted any of the required initial evidence. The director denied the petition accordingly.

The beneficiary filed a motion to reopen, which was subsequently denied by the director for being filed by an unaffected party under the regulation. The petitioner then filed a motion to reconsider, which was denied by the director for failing to submit a legal basis to warrant reconsideration. The director noted that the petitioner submitted documents verifying the beneficiary's education and an ETA Form 9089 that lacked original signatures of the petitioner, beneficiary, and attorney.<sup>1</sup> This appeal followed.

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed, timely and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact. The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into the decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

As set forth in the director's September 12, 2008 and December 4, 2008 denials, the issues in this case are whether or not the petitioner has the ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence and whether the beneficiary has the qualifications required by the terms of the labor certification.

<sup>1</sup> At the outset, it is noted that this petition was not eligible for approval at filing because it was not accompanied by a valid labor certification. The regulation at 20 C.F.R. § 656.17 describing the basic labor certification process provides in pertinent part:

(a) Filing applications.

- (1) . . . Applications filed and certified electronically must, upon receipt of the labor certification, be signed immediately by the employer in order to be valid. Applications submitted by mail must contain the original signature of the employer, alien, attorney, and/or agent when they are received by the application processing center. DHS will not process petitions unless they are supported by an original certified ETA Form 9089 that has been signed by the employer, alien, attorney and/or agent.

Although a Form ETA 9089, Application for Permanent Employment Certification approved by the Department of Labor (DOL), accompanied the petition, it was not signed by the alien, counsel, or the petitioner. The preference petition could not be approved until the Form ETA 9089 is appropriately signed. The petitioner has not submitted a signed Form ETA 9089 on appeal.

Counsel asserts in his brief accompanying the appeal that the director violated 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(8) by failing to request further evidence before denying the petition. In support, counsel cites to a memorandum issued by [REDACTED] stating that the director is not obligated to issue an RFE in cases where it is clear that eligibility could not be established through the submission of additional evidence. See memorandum by [REDACTED], Associate Director For Operations, Requests for Evidence (RFE) and Notices of Intent to Deny (NOID) HQOPRD 70/2 (February 16, 2005). The cited regulation requires the director to request additional evidence in instances "where there is no evidence of ineligibility, and initial evidence or eligibility information is missing." Id. The director is not required to issue a request for further information in every potentially deniable case. If the director determines that the initial evidence supports a decision of denial, the cited regulation does not require solicitation of further documentation.

Furthermore, even if the director had committed a procedural error by failing to solicit further evidence, it is not clear what remedy would be appropriate beyond the appeal process itself. The petitioner has in fact supplemented the record on appeal, and therefore it would serve no useful purpose to remand the case simply to afford the petitioner the opportunity to supplement the record with new evidence.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States. Section 203(b)(3)(A)(ii) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(ii), also provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who hold baccalaureate degrees and are members of the professions.

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal.<sup>2</sup>

On appeal, the AAO identified additional issues not raised by the director. On April 11, 2012, the AAO sent a Notice of Derogatory Information (NDI) to the petitioner stating that the petitioning entity was not in good standing with the Texas Comptroller of Public Accounts. If the petitioner is not an active entity, no bona fide offer exists and the petition becomes moot. The AAO also noted that financial documents for a second entity, [REDACTED] had been submitted and that this second entity was also not in good standing. In response, the petitioner submitted evidence that [REDACTED] had been restored to good standing with the Texas Comptroller of <sup>2</sup> The submission of additional evidence on appeal is allowed by the instructions to the Form I-290B, which are incorporated into the regulations by the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(a)(1). The record in the instant case provides no reason to preclude consideration of any of the documents newly submitted on appeal. See Matter of Soriano, 19 I&N Dec. 764 (BIA 1988).

██████████ and stated that ██████████ owner of ██████████ is the successor-in-interest to the petitioner.

USCIS has not issued regulations governing immigrant visa petitions filed by a successor-in-interest employer. Instead, such matters are adjudicated in accordance with Matter of Dial Auto Repair Shop, Inc., 19 I&N Dec. 481 (Comm'r 1986) ("Matter of Dial Auto") a binding, legacy Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) decision that was designated as a precedent by the Commissioner in 1986. The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.3(c) provides that precedent decisions are binding on all immigration officers in the administration of the Act.

The facts of the precedent decision, Matter of Dial Auto, are instructive in this matter. Matter of Dial Auto involved a petition filed by ██████████ on behalf of an alien beneficiary for the position of automotive technician. The beneficiary's former employer, ██████████ filed the underlying labor certification. On the petition, Dial Auto claimed to be a successor-in-interest to ██████████. The part of the Commissioner's decision relating to the successor-in-interest issue follows:

Additionally, the representations made by the petitioner concerning the relationship between ██████████ and itself are issues which have not been resolved. In order to determine whether the petitioner was a true successor to ██████████, counsel was instructed on appeal to fully explain the manner by which the petitioner took over the business of ██████████ and to provide the Service with a copy of the contract or agreement between the two entities; however, no response was submitted. If the petitioner's claim of having assumed all of ██████████'s rights, duties, obligations, etc., is found to be untrue, then grounds would exist for invalidation of the labor certification under 20 C.F.R. § 656.30 (1987). Conversely, if the claim is found to be true, and it is determined that an actual successorship exists, the petition could be approved if eligibility is otherwise shown, including ability of the predecessor enterprise to have paid the certified wage at the time of filing.

19 I&N Dec. at 482-3 (emphasis added).

The Commissioner's decision does not require a successor-in-interest to establish that it assumed all rights, duties, and obligations. Instead, in Matter of Dial Auto, the petitioner specifically represented that it had assumed all of the original employer's rights, duties, and obligations, but failed to submit requested evidence to establish that this claim was, in fact, true. The Commissioner stated that if the petitioner's claim was untrue, the INS could invalidate the underlying labor certification for fraud or willful misrepresentation. For this reason the Commissioner said: "if the claim is found to be true, and it is determined that an actual successorship exists, the petition could be approved . . ." Id. (emphasis added).

The Commissioner clearly considered the petitioner's claim that it had assumed all of the original employer's rights, duties, and obligations to be a separate inquiry from whether or not the petitioner is a successor-in-interest. The Commissioner was most interested in receiving a full explanation as to the "manner by which the petitioner took over the business" and seeing a copy of "the contract or agreement between the two entities" in order to verify the petitioner's claims. Id.

Accordingly, Matter of Dial Auto does not stand for the proposition that a valid successor relationship may only be established through the assumption of "all" or a totality of a predecessor entity's rights, duties, and obligations. Instead, the generally accepted definition of a successor-in-interest is broader: "One who follows another in ownership or control of property. A successor in interest retains the same rights as the original owner, with no change in substance." Black's Law Dictionary 1570 (9th ed. 2009) (defining "successor in interest").

With respect to corporations, a successor is generally created when one corporation is vested with the rights and obligations of an earlier corporation through amalgamation, consolidation, or other assumption of interests.<sup>3</sup> Id. at 1569 (defining "successor"). When considering other business organizations, such as partnerships or sole proprietorships, even a partial change in ownership may require the petitioner to establish that it is a true successor-in-interest to the employer identified in the labor certification application.<sup>4</sup>

The merger or consolidation of a business organization into another will give rise to a successor-in-interest relationship because the assets and obligations are transferred by operation of law. However, a mere transfer of assets, even one that takes up a predecessor's business activities, does not necessarily create a successor-in-interest. See Holland v. Williams Mountain Coal Co., 496 F.3d 670, 672 (D.C. Cir. 2007). An asset transaction occurs when one business organization sells <sup>3</sup> Merger and acquisition transactions, in which the interests of two or more corporations become unified, may be arranged into four general groups. The first group includes "consolidations" that occur when two or more corporations are united to create one new corporation. The second group includes "mergers," consisting of a transaction in which one of the constituent companies remains in being, absorbing the other constituent corporation. The third type of combination includes "reorganizations" that occur when the new corporation is the reincarnation or reorganization of one previously existing. The fourth group includes transactions in which a corporation, although continuing to exist as a "shell" legal entity, is in fact merged into another through the acquisition of its assets and business operations. 19 Am. Jur. 2d Corporations § 2165 (2010).

<sup>4</sup> For example, unlike a corporation with its own distinct legal identity, if a general partnership adds a partner after the filing of a labor certification application, a Form I-140 filed by what is essentially a new partnership must contain evidence that this partnership is a successor-in-interest to the filer of the labor certification application. See Matter of United Investment Group, 19 I&N Dec. 248 (Comm'r 1984). Similarly, if the employer identified in a labor certification application is a sole proprietorship, and the petitioner identified in the Form I-140 is a business organization, such as a corporation which happens to be solely owned by the individual who filed the labor certification application, the petitioner must nevertheless establish that it is a bona fide successor-in-interest.

property – such as real estate, machinery, or intellectual property - to another business organization. The purchase of assets from a predecessor will only result in a successor-in-interest relationship if the parties agree to the transfer and assumption of the essential rights and obligations of the predecessor necessary to carry on the business.<sup>5</sup> See generally 19 Am. Jur. 2d Corporations § 2170 (2010).

Considering Matter of Dial Auto and the generally accepted definition of successor-in-interest, a petitioner may establish a valid successor relationship for immigration purposes if it satisfies three conditions. First, the petitioning successor must fully describe and document the transaction transferring ownership of all, or a relevant part of, the beneficiary's predecessor employer. Second, the petitioning successor must demonstrate that the job opportunity is the same as originally offered on the labor certification. Third, the petitioning successor must prove by a preponderance of the evidence that it is eligible for the immigrant visa in all respects.

Evidence of transfer of ownership must show that the successor not only purchased assets from the predecessor, but also the essential rights and obligations of the predecessor necessary to carry on the business. To ensure that the job opportunity remains the same as originally certified, the successor must continue to operate the same type of business as the predecessor, in the same metropolitan statistical area and the essential business functions must remain substantially the same as before the ownership transfer. See Matter of Dial Auto, 19 I&N Dec. at 482.

In order to establish eligibility for the immigrant visa in all respects, the petitioner must support its claim with all necessary evidence, including evidence of ability to pay. The petitioning successor must prove the predecessor's ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date and until the date of transfer of ownership to the successor. In addition, the petitioner must establish the successor's ability to pay the proffered wage in accordance from the date of transfer of ownership forward. 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2); see also Matter of Dial Auto, 19 I&N Dec. at 482.

In response to the AAO's RFE, counsel stated that [REDACTED] is the successor-in-interest and that he is the registered agent of [REDACTED] as well as the owner of [REDACTED]. Counsel stated that the petitioner and [REDACTED] share a common owner and that the common owner "maintained continuous ownership and control of the company despite the name change." No evidence was submitted to demonstrate that [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] are the same company except for a name change. The assertions of counsel do not constitute evidence. Matter of Obaigbena, 19 I&N Dec. 533, 534 (BIA 1988); Matter of Ramirez-Sanchez, 17 I&N Dec. 503, 506 (BIA 1980). The companies have different Employer Identification Numbers and the petitioner submitted no documents documenting any transfer of ownership of any

<sup>5</sup> The mere assumption of immigration obligations, or the transfer of immigration benefits derived from approved or pending immigration petitions or applications, will not give rise to a successor-in-interest relationship unless the transfer results from the bona fide acquisition of the essential rights and obligations of the predecessor necessary to carry on the business. See 19 Am. Jur. 2d Corporations § 2170; see also 20 C.F.R. § 656.12(a).

assets and/or liabilities from [REDACTED] to [REDACTED]. In addition, counsel stated that [REDACTED] as an individual was the successor-in-interest to the petitioner and did not state that the successor was [REDACTED]. The petitioner submitted no evidence demonstrating that [REDACTED] individually assumed the assets and liabilities of the petitioner in order to be considered the successor. Going on record without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. 158, 165 (Comm'r 1998) (citing Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg'l Comm'r 1972)). Because a corporation is a separate and distinct legal entity from its owners and shareholders, the assets of its shareholders or of other enterprises or corporations cannot be considered in determining the petitioning corporation's ability to pay the proffered wage. See Matter of Aphrodite Investments, Ltd., 17 I&N Dec. 530 (Comm'r 1980). In a similar case, the court in Sitar v. Ashcroft, 2003 WL 22203713 (D.Mass. Sept. 18, 2003) stated, "nothing in the governing regulation, 8 C.F.R. § 204.5, permits [USCIS] to consider the financial resources of individuals or entities who have no legal obligation to pay the wage." The appealing party, [REDACTED], has not established a valid successor relationship for immigration purposes. As such, the appeal was not filed by an affected party and must be rejected. Further, as the original petitioner is no longer in business, the appeal must be dismissed as moot. The AAO will nevertheless address the remaining issues identified by the director.

The director found that the petitioner had not established the ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage. The AAO agrees.

The regulation 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

The petitioner must demonstrate the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date, which is the date the ETA Form 9089, Application for Permanent Employment Certification, was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the DOL. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d). The petitioner must also demonstrate that, on the priority date, the beneficiary had the qualifications stated on its ETA Form 9089, Application for Permanent Employment Certification, as certified by the DOL and submitted with the instant petition. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Acting Reg'l Comm'r 1977).

Here, the ETA Form 9089 was accepted on February 12, 2004. The proffered wage as stated on the ETA Form 9089 is $33,509 per year.

The evidence in the record of proceeding shows that the petitioner is structured as a C corporation. On the petition, the petitioner claimed to have been established in 1963, to have a gross annual income of $300,363, and to currently employ seven workers. According to the tax returns in the record, the petitioner's fiscal year runs from September 1 to August 31. On the ETA Form 9089, the beneficiary claimed to have begun worked for the petitioner on October 1, 2001.

The petitioner must establish that its job offer to the beneficiary is a realistic one. Because the filing of an ETA Form 9089 labor certification application establishes a priority date for any immigrant petition later based on the ETA Form 9089, the petitioner must establish that the job offer was realistic as of the priority date and that the offer remained realistic for each year thereafter, until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. The petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is an essential element in evaluating whether a job offer is realistic. See Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142 (Acting Reg'l Comm'r 1977); see also 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2). In evaluating whether a job offer is realistic, USCIS requires the petitioner to demonstrate financial resources sufficient to pay the beneficiary's proffered wages, although the totality of the circumstances affecting the petitioning business will be considered if the evidence warrants such consideration. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg'l Comm'r 1967).

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage during a given period, USCIS will first examine whether the petitioner employed and paid the beneficiary during that period. If the petitioner establishes by documentary evidence that it employed the beneficiary at a salary equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the evidence will be considered prima facie proof of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner submitted the following Forms W-2:

- The 2004 Form W-2 stated that the petitioner paid the beneficiary $36,542.
- The 2005 Form W-2 stated that the petitioner paid the beneficiary $39,013.
- The 2006 Form W-2 stated that the petitioner paid the beneficiary $47,096.

These amounts exceed the proffered wage, so the petitioner has established its ability to pay for 2004, 2005, and 2006. The petitioner submitted Forms W-2 for 2007 and 2008 for the beneficiary from [REDACTED], however, as stated above, as [REDACTED] has not been shown to be a successor for the petitioner, these Forms W-2 may not be considered in determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage.<sup>6</sup> The petitioner did not submit evidence that it paid the beneficiary after 2006.

If the petitioner does not establish that it employed and paid the beneficiary an amount at least equal to the proffered wage during that period, USCIS will next examine the net income figure reflected on the petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. River Street Donuts, LLC v. Napolitano, 558 F.3d 111 (1st Cir. 2009); Taco Especial v. Napolitano, 696 F. Supp. 2d 873 (E.D. Mich. 2010), aff'd, No. 10-1517 (6th Cir. filed Nov. 10, <sup>6</sup> The appellant, [REDACTED], paid the beneficiary in excess of the proffered wage in 2007 and 2008. Had [REDACTED] been established as a successor-in-interest, it would have established the ability to pay the proffered wage in those years.

2011). Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well established by judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F. Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984)); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F. Supp. 532 (N.D. Texas 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983). Reliance on the petitioner's gross sales and profits and wage expense is misplaced. Showing that the petitioner's gross sales and profits exceeded the proffered wage is insufficient. Similarly, showing that the petitioner paid wages in excess of the proffered wage is insufficient.

In K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. at 1084, the court held that the Immigration and Naturalization Service, now USCIS, had properly relied on the petitioner's net income figure, as stated on the petitioner's corporate income tax returns, rather than the petitioner's gross income. The court specifically rejected the argument that the Service should have considered income before expenses were paid rather than net income. See Taco Especial v. Napolitano, 696 F. Supp. 2d at 881 (gross profits overstate an employer's ability to pay because it ignores other necessary expenses).

With respect to depreciation, the court in River Street Donuts noted:

The AAO recognized that a depreciation deduction is a systematic allocation of the cost of a tangible long-term asset and does not represent a specific cash expenditure during the year claimed. Furthermore, the AAO indicated that the allocation of the depreciation of a long-term asset could be spread out over the years or concentrated into a few depending on the petitioner's choice of accounting and depreciation methods. Nonetheless, the AAO explained that depreciation represents an actual cost of doing business, which could represent either the diminution in value of buildings and equipment or the accumulation of funds necessary to replace perishable equipment and buildings. Accordingly, the AAO stressed that even though amounts deducted for depreciation do not represent current use of cash, neither does it represent amounts available to pay wages.

We find that the AAO has a rational explanation for its policy of not adding depreciation back to net income. Namely, that the amount spent on a long term tangible asset is a "real" expense.

River Street Donuts, 558 F.3d at 118. "[USCIS] and judicial precedent support the use of tax returns and the net income figures in determining petitioner's ability to pay. Plaintiffs' argument that these figures should be revised by the court by adding back depreciation is without support." Chi-Feng Chang, 1719 F.Supp. at 537 (emphasis added).

For a C corporation, USCIS considers net income to be the figure shown on Line 28 of the Form 1120, U.S. Corporation Income Tax Return. The record before the director closed on July 31, 2007 with the receipt by the director of the petitioner's original submissions. As of that date, the petitioner's 2007 federal income tax return is the most recent return available.

If the net income the petitioner demonstrates it had available during that period, if any, added to the wages paid to the beneficiary during the period, if any, do not equal the amount of the proffered wage or more, USCIS will review the petitioner's net current assets. Net current assets are the difference between the petitioner's current assets and current liabilities.<sup>7</sup> A corporation's year-end current assets are shown on Schedule L, lines 1 through 6 and include cash-on-hand. Its year-end current liabilities are shown on lines 16 through 18. If the total of a corporation's end-of-year net current assets and the wages paid to the beneficiary (if any) are equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the petitioner is expected to be able to pay the proffered wage using those net current assets.

On appeal, the petitioner submitted its Forms 1120 for 2000 through 2006. The Forms 1120 for 2000 through 2003 cover a time period prior to the priority date, so will be considered only generally. The petitioner established its ability to pay the proffered wage in 2004 through 2006 through an examination of actual wages paid in those years, so the net income and net current assets need not be considered. The petitioner did not submit its tax returns for any year after 2006.

On appeal, the petitioner submitted profit and loss statements for 2007 and 2008 for [REDACTED]. The AAO acknowledges that [REDACTED] has established the ability to pay the proffered wage for 2007 and 2008 as it paid the beneficiary in excess of the proffered wage for those years. Had [REDACTED] established that it was the successor-in-interest to the petitioner, ability to pay the proffered wage would have been established in all relevant years: from 2000 to 2006 by the petitioner and 2007 and 2008 by the successor. As noted above, however, the petitioner has not established that [REDACTED] is its successor-in-interest.

Counsel's assertions on appeal cannot be concluded to outweigh the evidence presented that demonstrates that the petitioner could not pay the proffered wage from the day the ETA Form 9089 was accepted for processing by the DOL.

USCIS may consider the overall magnitude of the petitioner's business activities in its determination of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg'l Comm'r 1967). The petitioning entity in Sonogawa had been in business for over 11 years and routinely earned a gross annual income of about $100,000. During the year in which the petition was filed in that case, the petitioner changed business locations and paid rent on both the old and new locations for five months. There were large moving costs and also a period of time when the petitioner was unable to do regular business. The Regional Commissioner determined that the petitioner's prospects for a resumption of successful business operations were well established. The petitioner was a fashion designer whose work had been featured in Time and Look magazines. Her clients included Miss Universe, movie actresses, and society matrons. The petitioner's clients had been included in the lists of the best-dressed California women. The petitioner lectured on fashion design at design and fashion shows throughout the United States and at colleges and universities in California. The Regional Commissioner's determination in Sonegawa was based in part on the petitioner's sound business reputation and outstanding reputation as a couturiere. As in Sonegawa, USCIS may, at its discretion, consider evidence relevant to the petitioner's financial ability that falls outside of a petitioner's net income and net current assets. USCIS may consider such factors as the number of years the petitioner has been doing business, the established historical growth of the petitioner's business, the overall number of employees, the occurrence of any uncharacteristic business expenditures or losses, the petitioner's reputation within its industry, whether the beneficiary is replacing a former employee or an outsourced service, or any other evidence that USCIS deems relevant to the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage.

<sup>7</sup>According to Barron's Dictionary of Accounting Terms 117 (3rd ed. 2000), "current assets" consist of items having (in most cases) a life of one year or less, such as cash, marketable securities, inventory and prepaid expenses. "Current liabilities" are obligations payable (in most cases) within one year, such as accounts payable, short-term notes payable, and accrued expenses (such as taxes and salaries). Id. at 118.

In the instant case, the evidence submitted demonstrates that the petitioner no longer exists so that no bona fide offer is available to the beneficiary. The evidence in the record is insufficient to establish that the petitioner has a successor-in-interest. Without such evidence, considering the totality of the circumstances in this individual case it is concluded that the petitioner has not established that it had the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage.

The evidence submitted does not establish that the petitioner had the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date.

The director's September 12, 2008 decision noted that the petitioner failed to submit evidence to demonstrate that the beneficiary had the education required by the terms of the labor certification. With the motion to reconsider, the petitioner submitted the beneficiary's Title of Architect from The [REDACTED]. This degree is the equivalent of a U.S. Bachelor's degree in Architecture. As a result, that portion of the director's decision is withdrawn.

Although the petitioner submitted evidence concerning the beneficiary's education, it failed to submit evidence that the beneficiary has the experience required by the terms of the labor certification. The petitioner must establish that the beneficiary possessed all the education, training, and experience specified on the labor certification as of the priority date. 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(1), (12). See Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158, 159 (Acting Reg'l Comm'r 1977); see also Matter of Katigbak, 14 I&N Dec. 45, 49 (Reg'l Comm'r 1971). In evaluating the beneficiary's qualifications, USCIS must look to the job offer portion of the labor certification to determine the required qualifications for the position. USCIS may not ignore a term of the labor certification, nor may it impose additional requirements. See Matter of Silver Dragon Chinese Restaurant, 19 I&N Dec. 401, 406 (Comm'r 1986). See also, Madany v. Smith, 696 F.2d 1008 (D.C. Cir. 1983); K.R.K. Irvine, Inc. v. Landon, 699 F.2d 1006 (9th Cir. 1983); Stewart Infra-Red Commissary of Massachusetts, Inc. v. Coomey, 661 F.2d 1 (1st Cir. 1981).

The beneficiary's claimed qualifying experience must be supported by letters from employers giving the name, address, and title of the employer, and a description of the beneficiary's experience. See 8

C.F.R. § 204.5(1)(3)(ii)(A). On the ETA Form 9089, Section K, the beneficiary represented that he worked for the petitioner from October 2001 to March 2007<sup>8</sup> and for [REDACTED] from June 1, 1998 to April 1999 as a design and remodeling worker. The petitioner submitted no evidence that the beneficiary has the required five years of experience as an architectural draftsman as of the priority date. The petition may be denied on this basis as well.

The petition will be denied for the above stated reasons, with each considered as an independent and alternative basis for denial. In visa petition proceedings, the burden of proving eligibility for the benefit sought remains entirely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, that burden has not been met.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.

<sup>8</sup> Representations made on the certified ETA Form 9089, which is signed by both the petitioner and the beneficiary under penalty of perjury, clearly indicate that the beneficiary's experience with the petitioner or experience in an alternate occupation cannot be used to qualify the beneficiary for the certified position. Specifically, the petitioner indicates that questions J.19 and J.20, which ask about experience in an alternate occupation, are not applicable. In response to question J.21, which asks, "Did the alien gain any of the qualifying experience with the employer in a position substantially comparable to the job opportunity requested?," the petitioner answered "no." The petitioner specifically indicates in response to question H.6 that 60 months of experience in the job offered is required and in response to question H.10 that experience in an alternate occupation is not acceptable. In general, if the answer to question J.21 is no, then the experience with the employer may be used by the beneficiary to qualify for the proffered position if the position was not substantially comparable and the terms of the ETA Form 9089 at H.10 provide that applicants can qualify through an alternate occupation. Here, the beneficiary indicates in response to question K.1. that his position with the petitioner was as an architectural draftsman, which is the same as the position offered. Therefore, the experience gained with the petitioner was in the position offered and is substantially comparable as he was performing the same job duties more than 50 percent of the time. According to DOL regulations, therefore, the petitioner cannot rely on this experience for the beneficiary to qualify for the proffered position. Additionally, as the terms of the labor certification supporting the instant I-140 petition do not permit consideration of experience in an alternate occupation, and the beneficiary's experience with the petitioner was in the position offered, the experience may not be used to qualify the beneficiary for the proffered position with the petitioner.
