Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Texas Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a tax and accounting services business. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as an office secretary.¹ As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by a Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification, approved by the United States Department of Labor (DOL). The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the continuing ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage beginning on the priority date of the visa petition. The director denied the petition accordingly.

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed and timely and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact. The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into the decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

As set forth in the director's July 23, 2008 denial, the single issue in this case is whether or not the petitioner has the ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

The regulation 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

The petitioner must demonstrate the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date, which is the date the Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification, was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the DOL. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d). The petitioner must also demonstrate that, on the priority date, the beneficiary had the qualifications stated on its Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification, as certified by the DOL and submitted with the instant petition. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Acting Reg'l Comm'r 1977).

Here, the Form ETA 750 was accepted on November 6, 2000. The proffered wage as stated on the Form ETA 750 is $13.55 per hour or $24,661 per year (35 hour week). The Form ETA 750 states that the position requires two years of experience in the job offered, and the alien must be willing to work overtime and weekends.²

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal.³

At the outset, it is noted that the current employer in the instant case is a different entity than the company that filed the Form ETA 750 and the I-140, Immigrant Petition for Alien Worker. The labor certification and I-140 were filed by [REDACTED], a sole proprietorship. [REDACTED] an "S" Corporation, claims to have acquired all the assets, rights, duties, obligations of Accounting Associates. It is noted that the transfer agreement is not dated, notarized, or filed with the District of Columbia.

USCIS has not issued regulations governing immigrant visa petitions filed by a successor-in-interest employer. Instead, such matters are adjudicated in accordance with Matter of Dial Auto, a binding, legacy Immigration and Naturalization Service ("INS") decision that was designated as a precedent by the Commissioner in 1986. The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.3(c) provides that precedent decisions are binding on all immigration officers in the administration of the Act.

The facts of the precedent decision, Matter of Dial Auto, are instructive in this matter. Matter of Dial Auto involved a petition filed by Dial Auto Repair Shop, Inc. on behalf of an alien beneficiary for the position of automotive technician. The beneficiary's former employer, Elvira Auto Body, filed the underlying labor certification. On the petition, Dial Auto claimed to be a successor-in-interest to Elvira Auto Body. The part of the Commissioner's decision relating to the successor-in-interest issue follows:

Additionally, the representations made by the petitioner concerning the relationship between Elvira Auto Body and itself are issues which have not been resolved. In order to determine whether the petitioner was a true successor to Elvira Auto Body, counsel was instructed on appeal to fully explain the manner by which the petitioner took over the business of Elvira Auto Body and to provide the Service with a copy of the contract or agreement between the two entities; however, no response was submitted. If the petitioner's claim of having assumed all of Elvira Auto Body's rights, duties, obligations, etc., is found to be untrue, then grounds would exist for invalidation of the labor certification under 20 C.F.R. § 656.30 (1987). Conversely, if the claim is found to be true, and it is determined that an actual successorship exists, the petition could be approved if eligibility is otherwise shown, including ability of the predecessor enterprise to have paid the certified wage at the time of filing.

² The Form ETA 750 states that the employer checks references. The petitioner appears to have written on the Form ETA 750 that the alien must have a typing speed of 45 words per minute and a shorthand speed of 70 words per minute. This insertion was not approved by the DOL.

19 I&N Dec. at 482-83 (emphasis added).

The Commissioner's decision does not require a successor-in-interest to establish that it assumed all rights, duties, and obligations. Instead, in Matter of Dial Auto, the petitioner specifically represented that it had assumed all of the original employer's rights, duties, and obligations, but failed to submit requested evidence to establish that this claim was, in fact, true. The Commissioner stated that if the petitioner's claim was untrue, the INS could invalidate the underlying labor certification for fraud or willful misrepresentation. For this reason the Commissioner said: "if the claim is found to be true, and it is determined that an actual successorship exists, the petition could be approved" Id. (emphasis added).

The Commissioner clearly considered the petitioner's claim that it had assumed all of the original employer's rights, duties, and obligations to be a separate inquiry from whether or not the petitioner is a successor-in-interest. The Commissioner was most interested in receiving a full explanation as to the "manner by which the petitioner took over the business" and seeing a copy of "the contract or agreement between the two entities" in order to verify the petitioner's claims. Id. at 482.

Accordingly, Matter of Dial Auto does not stand for the proposition that a valid successor relationship may only be established through the assumption of "all" or a totality of a predecessor entity's rights, duties, and obligations. Instead, the generally accepted definition of a successor-in-interest is broader: "[O]ne who follows another in ownership or control of property. A successor in interest retains the same rights as the original owner, with no change in substance." Black's Law Dictionary 1570 (defining "successor in interest"). A petitioner is not precluded from demonstrating a successor-in-interest relationship simply because it acquired a division of the predecessor entity instead of purchasing the predecessor in its entirety.

With respect to corporations, a successor is generally created when one corporation is vested with the rights and obligations of an earlier corporation through amalgamation, consolidation, or other assumption of interests.⁴ Id. at 1569 (defining "successor"). When considering other business organizations, such as partnerships or sole proprietorships, even a partial change in ownership may require the petitioner to establish that it is a true successor-in-interest to the employer identified in the labor certification application. See eg. Matter of United Investment Group, 19 I&N Dec. 248 (Comm'r 1984).

The merger or consolidation of a business organization into another will give rise to a successor-in-interest relationship because the assets and obligations are transferred by operation of law. However, a mere transfer of assets or asset transaction, even one that takes up a predecessor's business activities, does not necessarily create a successor-in-interest. See Holland v. Williams Mountain Coal Co., 496 F.3d 670, 672 (D.C. Cir. 2007). An asset transaction occurs when one business organization sells property – such as real estate, machinery, or intellectual property - to another business organization. The purchase of assets from a predecessor will only result in a successor-in-interest relationship if the parties agree to the transfer and assumption of the essential rights and obligations of the predecessor necessary to carry on the business.⁵ See generally 19 Am. Jur. 2d Corporations § 2170 (2010).

Considering Matter of Dial Auto and the generally accepted definition of successor-in-interest, a petitioner may establish a valid successor relationship for immigration purposes if it satisfies three conditions. First, the petitioning successor must fully describe and document the transaction transferring ownership of all, or the relevant parts of, the beneficiary's predecessor employer. Second, the petitioning successor must demonstrate that the job opportunity is the same as originally offered on the labor certification. Third, the petitioning successor must prove by a preponderance of the evidence that it can establish eligibility for the immigrant visa in all respects.

Evidence of transfer of ownership must show that the successor not only purchased assets from the predecessor, but also acquired the essential rights and obligations of the predecessor necessary to carry on the business. To ensure that the job opportunity remains the same as originally certified, the successor must continue to operate the same type of business as the predecessor, in the same metropolitan statistical area, and the successor's essential business functions must remain substantially the same as before the ownership transfer. See Matter of Dial Auto, 19 I&N Dec. at 482.

occur when two or more corporations are united to create one new corporation. The second group includes “mergers,” consisting of a transaction in which one of the constituent companies remains in being, absorbing the other constituent corporation. The third type of combination includes “reorganizations” that occur when the new corporation is the reincarnation or reorganization of one previously existing. The fourth group includes transactions in which a corporation, although continuing to exist as a “shell” legal entity, is in fact merged into another through the acquisition of its assets and business operations. 19 Am. Jur. 2d Corporations § 2165 (2010).

In order to establish eligibility for the immigrant visa in all respects, the petitioner must support its claim with all necessary evidence, including evidence of ability to pay. The petitioning successor must prove the predecessor's ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date and until the date of transfer of ownership to the successor. In addition, the petitioner must establish the successor's ability to pay the proffered wage in accordance from the date of transfer of ownership forward. 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2); see also Matter of Dial Auto, 19 I&N Dec. at 482.

Applying the analysis set forth above to the instant petition, the petitioner has not established a valid successor relationship for immigration purposes. The transfer agreement is not dated, notarized, or filed with the District of Columbia and is not contemporaneously identified with the claimed date of transfer in 2002; thus, lessening its credibility. Going on record without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. 158, 165 (Comm'r 1998) (citing Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg'l Comm'r 1972)). As the director did not address this issue, this finding will not be determinative of the outcome of the appeal. The petition will be adjudicated as if the petitioner had established that it is the successor-in-interest to [REDACTED], the sole proprietorship. The petitioner should address this issue in any further filings.

The evidence in the record of proceeding shows that the original petitioner, [REDACTED], was structured as a sole proprietorship in 2000 through 2002. The claimed successor-in-interest was structured as an "S" Corporation in 2003 through 2010. On the petition, the petitioner claimed to have been established in 1985 and to currently employ four workers. On the Form ETA 750B, signed by the beneficiary on July 12, 2007, the beneficiary did not claim to have worked for the petitioner.

The petitioner must establish that its job offer to the beneficiary is a realistic one. Because the filing of an ETA 750 labor certification application establishes a priority date for any immigrant petition later based on the ETA 750, the petitioner must establish that the job offer was realistic as of the priority date and that the offer remained realistic for each year thereafter, until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. The petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is an essential element in evaluating whether a job offer is realistic. See Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142 (Acting Reg'l Comm'r 1977); see also 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2). In evaluating whether a job offer is realistic, United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) requires the petitioner to demonstrate financial resources sufficient to pay the beneficiary's proffered wages, although the totality of the circumstances affecting the petitioning business will be considered if the evidence warrants such consideration. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg'l Comm'r 1967).

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage during a given period, USCIS will first examine whether the petitioner employed and paid the beneficiary during that period. If the petitioner establishes by documentary evidence that it employed the beneficiary at a salary equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the evidence will be considered prima facie proof of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. In the instant case, the petitioner has not established that it employed and paid the beneficiary the full proffered wage from the priority date in 2000 onwards.

If the petitioner does not establish that it employed and paid the beneficiary an amount at least equal to the proffered wage during that period, USCIS will next examine the net income figure reflected on the petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. River Street Donuts, LLC v. Napolitano, 558 F.3d 111 (1st Cir. 2009); Taco Especial v. Napolitano, 696 F. Supp. 2d 873 (E.D. Mich. 2010), aff'd, No. 10-1517 (6th Cir. filed Nov. 10, 2011). Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well established by judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F. Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984)); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F. Supp. 532 (N.D. Texas 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983).

Accounting Associates was a sole proprietorship, a business in which one person operates the business in his or her personal capacity. Black's Law Dictionary 1398 (7th Ed. 1999). Unlike a corporation, a sole proprietorship does not exist as an entity apart from the individual owner. See Matter of United Investment Group, 19 I&N Dec. 248, 250 (Comm'r 1984). Therefore the sole proprietor's adjusted gross income, assets and personal liabilities are also considered as part of the petitioner's ability to pay. Sole proprietors report income and expenses from their businesses on their individual (Form 1040) federal tax return each year. The business-related income and expenses are reported on Schedule C and are carried forward to the first page of the tax return. Sole proprietors must show that they can cover their existing business expenses as well as pay the proffered wage out of their adjusted gross income or other available funds. In addition, sole proprietors must show that they can sustain themselves and their dependents. See Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983).

In Ubeda, 539 F. Supp. at 650, the court concluded that it was highly unlikely that a petitioner could support himself, his spouse and five dependents on a gross income of slightly more than $20,000 where the beneficiary's proposed salary was $6,000 or approximately thirty percent (30%) of the petitioner's gross income.

In the instant case, the sole proprietor supported a family of six. The sole proprietor listed his personal expenses for the years 2000 through 2002 as $3,700 per month or $44,400 per year. The proprietor's tax returns reflect the following information for the following years:

Proprietor's 2000 adjusted gross income (Form 1040, line 33)	$41,986
Proprietor's 2001 adjusted gross income (Form 1040, line 33)	$51,967
Proprietor's 2002 adjusted gross income (Form 1040, line 35)	$73,219

Taking together the sole proprietor's personal expenses of $44,400 per year and the proffered wage of $24,661, the sole proprietor would have needed an adjusted gross income of $69,061. Therefore in 2000 and 2001, the sole proprietor's adjusted gross income failed to cover both the proffered wage of $24,611 and his personal expenses for those years. It is improbable that the sole proprietor could support himself and his family after reducing the adjusted gross income by the amount required to pay the proffered wage. In 2002, the sole proprietor had sufficient adjusted gross income to pay the proffered wage of $24,661 and his personal expenses of $44,400. Therefore, the sole proprietor has established his ability to pay the proffered wage in 2002.

In 2003 through 2010, the Accounting Associates, Ltd. was structured as an S corporation. The petitioner's tax returns demonstrate its net income for 2003 through 2010, as shown in the table below.

- In 2003, the Form 1120S stated net income⁶ of $61,727.
- In 2004, the Form 1120S stated net income of $59,778.
- In 2005, the Form 1120S stated net income of $59,106.
- In 2006, the Form 1120S stated net income of $63,452.
- In 2007, the Form 1120S stated net income of $44,515.
- In 2008, the Form 1120S stated net income of $48,195.
- In 2009, the Form 1120S stated net income of $45,711.
- In 2010, the Form 1120S stated net income of $79,861.

Therefore, for the years 2003 through 2010, [REDACTED] had sufficient net income to pay the proffered wage of $24,661 in those years.

Therefore, from the date the Form ETA 750 was accepted for processing by the DOL, [REDACTED] had not established that Accounting Associates had the continuing ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the priority date until it was sold to [REDACTED]

On appeal, counsel asserted that [REDACTED] had established that [REDACTED] had sufficient funds to pay the proffered wage of $24,661 in 2000 and 2001 through its bank accounts, payment on a promissory note, and the historical growth and reputation of the sole proprietorship.

Counsel's assertions on appeal cannot be concluded to outweigh the evidence presented in the tax returns that demonstrates that the petitioner could not pay the proffered wage from the day the Form ETA 750 was accepted for processing by the DOL, particularly in 2000 and 2001.

[REDACTED] has submitted copies of its bank statements for 2000 only. None of the bank statements show sufficient funds to pay the entire proffered wage in 2000. In addition, if the funds were reduced from the CAP account in 2000 by the amount required to pay the proffered wage, there would be insufficient funds left to pay the proffered wage in 2001. Further, a promissory note is not considered to be a cash asset. Therefore, the AAO will not consider the promissory note as evidence of Accounting Associates ability to pay the proffered wage in 2000 and 2001.

USCIS may consider the overall magnitude of the petitioner's business activities in its determination of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg'l Comm'r 1967). The petitioning entity in Sonogawa had been in business for over 11 years and routinely earned a gross annual income of about $100,000. During the year in which the petition was filed in that case, the petitioner changed business locations and paid rent on both the old and new locations for five months. There were large moving costs and also a period of time when the petitioner was unable to do regular business. The Regional Commissioner determined that the petitioner's prospects for a resumption of successful business operations were well established. The petitioner was a fashion designer whose work had been featured in Time and Look magazines. Her clients included Miss Universe, movie actresses, and society matrons. The petitioner's clients had been included in the lists of the best-dressed California women. The petitioner lectured on fashion design at design and fashion shows throughout the United States and at colleges and universities in California. The Regional Commissioner's determination in Sonogawa was based in part on the petitioner's sound business reputation and outstanding reputation as a couturiere. As in Sonogawa, USCIS may, at its discretion, consider evidence relevant to the petitioner's financial ability that falls outside of a petitioner's net income and net current assets. USCIS may consider such factors as the number of years the petitioner has been doing business, the established historical growth of the petitioner's business, the overall number of employees, the occurrence of any uncharacteristic business expenditures or losses, the petitioner's reputation within its industry, whether the beneficiary is replacing a former employee or an outsourced service, or any other evidence that USCIS deems relevant to the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage.

In the instant case, the Form I-140 indicates that [REDACTED] was established in 1985. It is noted that the gross receipts shown on the tax returns for 2000 and 2001 average approximately $132,823 with a net income on Schedule C averaging approximately $31,746. While these net incomes on Schedule C were more than the proffered wage, the net incomes were included in the sole proprietor's adjusted gross income, and even with those net incomes, the sole proprietor's adjusted gross income is not sufficient to pay both the proffered wage of $24,661 and the sole proprietor's personal expenses in 2000 and 2001. The evidence in the record does not establish [REDACTED] historical growth, its reputation in its industry, or an uncharacteristic business expenditure or loss in 2000 and 2001. Thus, assessing the totality of the circumstances in this individual case, it is concluded that [REDACTED] has not established that [REDACTED] had the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage in 2000 and 2001. Thus, assessing the totality of the circumstances in this individual case, it is concluded that the petitioner has not established that it had the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
