DISCUSSION: The Director, Nebraska Service Center (director), denied the employment-based immigrant visa petition. The petitioner appealed the decision to the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO). The appeal will be rejected.

The petitioner describes itself as an automotive services center. It seeks to permanently employ the beneficiary in the United States as a diesel mechanic. The petitioner requests classification of the beneficiary as a professional or skilled worker pursuant to section 203(b)(3)(A) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A).

The petition is accompanied by a Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification (labor certification), certified by the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL). The priority date of the petition, which is the date the DOL accepted the labor certification for processing, is July 6, 2004. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d).

The director's decision denying the petition concludes that, at the time the petition was properly filed, the labor certification was expired and, therefore, that the petition was filed without a valid labor certification certified by the Secretary of DOL. Additionally, the director found that the petitioner had not demonstrated the ability to pay the proffered wage from the priority date until the beneficiary obtained permanent residence.

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal.¹

The labor certification is evidence of an individual alien's admissibility under section 212(a)(5)(A)(i) of the Act, which provides:

In general.-Any alien who seeks to enter the United States for the purpose of performing skilled or unskilled labor is inadmissible, unless the Secretary of Labor has determined and certified to the Secretary of State and the Attorney General that-

(I) there are not sufficient workers who are able, willing, qualified (or equally qualified in the case of an alien described in clause (ii)) and available at the time of application for a visa and admission to the United States and at the place where the alien is to perform such skilled or unskilled labor, and

(II) the employment of such alien will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of workers in the United States similarly employed.

¹ The submission of additional evidence on appeal is allowed by the instructions to the Form I-290B, which are incorporated into the regulations by the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(a)(1). See Matter of Soriano, 19 I&N Dec. 764 (BIA 1988).

The regulation at 20 C.F.R. § 656.30(b)(2) provides: “An approved permanent labor certification granted before July 16, 2007 expires if not filed in support of a Form I-140 petition with the Department of Homeland Security within 180 calendar days of July 16, 2007.” (Emphasis added).

The petition was initially submitted on August 17, 2007, but was rejected because the appropriate fee was not included. The petition was resubmitted on October 22, 2007, but was again rejected because the appropriate fee was not included.

8 C.F.R. § 103.2(a)(7)(i) states:

An application or petition received in a USCIS office shall be stamped to show the time and date of actual receipt and, unless otherwise specified in part 204 or part 245 or part 245a of this chapter, shall be regarded as properly filed when so stamped, if it is signed and executed and the required filing fee is attached or a waiver of the filing fee is granted. An application or petition which is not properly signed or is submitted with the wrong filing fee shall be rejected as improperly filed. Rejected applications or petitions, and ones in which the check or other financial instrument used to pay the filing fee is subsequently returned as non-payable will not retain a filing date.

Because the petitioner did not include the proper filing fee with the petition on the two occasions in which it earlier attempted to submit it, the petition does not retain the earlier filing dates.

The petition was properly filed with a labor certification approved by DOL on March 14, 2008. 242 days passed after July 16, 2007 and prior to the filing of the petition with U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS). As the filing of the instant case was more than 180 days after July 16, 2007, the petition was, therefore, filed without a valid labor certification pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3)(i).

The Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) delegates the authority to adjudicate appeals to the AAO pursuant to the authority vested in her through the Homeland Security Act of 2002, Pub. L. 107-296. See DHS Delegation Number 0150.1 (effective March 1, 2003); see also 8 C.F.R. § 2.1 (2003). The AAO exercises appellate jurisdiction over the matters described at 8 C.F.R. § 103.1(f)(3)(iii) (as in effect on February 28, 2003). See DHS Delegation Number 0150.1(U) supra; 8 C.F.R. § 103.3(a)(iv).

Among the appellate authorities are appeals from denials of petitions for immigrant visa classification based on employment, “except when the denial of the petition is based upon lack of a certification by the Secretary of Labor under section 212(a)(5)(A) of the Act.” 8 C.F.R. § 103.1(f)(3)(iii)(B) (2003 ed.).

As the labor certification is expired, the petition is not accompanied by a valid labor certification, and this office lacks jurisdiction to consider an appeal from the director’s decision.

Beyond the issue of the rejection, the petitioner has also failed to establish its ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2).

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, USCIS first examines whether the petitioner has paid the beneficiary the full proffered wage each year from the priority date. If the petitioner has not paid the beneficiary the full proffered wage each year, USCIS will next examine whether the petitioner had sufficient net income or net current assets to pay the difference between the wage paid, if any, and the proffered wage.² If the petitioner's net income or net current assets is not sufficient to demonstrate the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, USCIS may also consider the overall magnitude of the petitioner's business activities. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg'l Comm'r 1967).

In the instant case, the petitioner did not employ the beneficiary from 2004 through 2007 and did not pay the beneficiary the full proffered wage of $46,030.00 in 2008. The petitioner's net income and net current assets were also not equal or greater to the proffered wage for 2004 and 2005. Additionally, although the petitioner claims that its sole owner was willing to forgo a portion of his compensation to pay the difference between the net current assets and the proffered wage for 2004 and 2005, the petitioner has provided no documentary evidence to demonstrate that its owner would be able to do so. Further, the petitioner failed to establish that factors similar to Sonogawa existed in the instant case, which would permit a conclusion that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage despite its shortfalls in wages paid to the beneficiary, net income, and net current assets.

Accordingly, after considering the totality of the circumstances, the petitioner has also failed to establish its continuing ability to pay the proffered wage to the beneficiary since the priority date.

ORDER: The appeal is rejected.
