DISCUSSION: The Director, California Service Center, denied the employment-based immigrant visa petition. The matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a church. It seeks to classify the beneficiary as a special immigrant religious worker pursuant to section 203(b)(4) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(4), to perform services as a head pastor. The director determined that the beneficiary had engaged in unauthorized employment and therefore failed to establish that he worked continuously in a qualifying religious occupation or vocation for two full years immediately preceding the filing of the visa petition.

Section 203(b)(4) of the Act provides classification to qualified special immigrant religious workers as described in section 101(a)(27)(C) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(27)(C), which pertains to an immigrant who:

(i) for at least 2 years immediately preceding the time of application for admission, has been a member of a religious denomination having a bona fide nonprofit, religious organization in the United States;

(ii) seeks to enter the United States –

(I) solely for the purpose of carrying on the vocation of a minister of that religious denomination,

(II) before September 30, 2012, in order to work for the organization at the request of the organization in a professional capacity in a religious vocation or occupation, or

(III) before September 30, 2012, in order to work for the organization (or for a bona fide organization which is affiliated with the religious denomination and is exempt from taxation as an organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) at the request of the organization in a religious vocation or occupation; and

(iii) has been carrying on such vocation, professional work, or other work continuously for at least the 2-year period described in clause (i).

The issue presented on appeal is whether the beneficiary had engaged in unauthorized employment and therefore failed to establish that he worked continuously in a qualifying religious vocation or occupation for two full years immediately preceding the filing of the visa petition.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(m) provides that to be eligible for classification as a special immigrant religious worker, the alien must:

(4) Have been working in one of the positions described in paragraph (m)(2) of this section, either abroad or in lawful immigration status in the United States, and after the age of 14 years continuously for at least the two-year period immediately preceding the filing of the petition. The prior religious work need not correspond precisely to the type of work to be performed. A break in the continuity of the work during the preceding two years will not affect eligibility so long as:

- (i) The alien was still employed as a religious worker;
- (ii) The break did not exceed two years; and
- (iii) The nature of the break was for further religious training or for sabbatical that did not involve unauthorized work in the United States. However, the alien must have been a member of the petitioner's denomination throughout the two years of qualifying employment.

Therefore, the petitioner must show that the beneficiary worked in a qualifying religious occupation or vocation, either abroad or in lawful immigration status in the United States, continuously for at least the two-year period immediately preceding the filing of the petition. The petitioner filed the Form I-360 on March 17, 2009. Accordingly, the petitioner must establish that the beneficiary was continuously employed in qualifying religious work throughout the two-year period immediately preceding that date.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(m)(11) provides:

Evidence relating to the alien's prior employment. Qualifying prior experience during the two years immediately preceding the petition or preceding any acceptable break in the continuity of the religious work, must have occurred after the age of 14, and if acquired in the United States, must have been authorized under United States immigration law. If the alien was employed in the United States during the two years immediately preceding the filing of the application and:

- (i) Received salaried compensation, the petitioner must submit IRS [Internal Revenue Service] documentation that the alien received a salary, such as an IRS Form W-2 [Wage and Tax Statement] or certified copies of income tax returns.
- (ii) Received non-salaried compensation, the petitioner must submit IRS documentation of the non-salaried compensation if available.
- (iii) Received no salary but provided for his or her own support, and provided support for any dependents, the petitioner must show how support was maintained by submitting with the petition additional documents such as audited financial statements, financial institution records, brokerage account statements, trust documents signed by an attorney, or other verifiable evidence acceptable to USCIS.

If the alien was employed outside the United States during such two years, the petitioner must submit comparable evidence of the religious work.

On appeal, counsel does not challenge the director's finding regarding the beneficiary's unlawful status. Instead, she references a district court decision, Ruiz-Diaz v. United States, No. C07-1881RSL (W.D. Wash. June 11, 2009) in which the court addressed the issue of the concurrent filing of the Form I-485, Application to Register Permanent Resident or Adjust Status, with the Form I-360, Petition for Amerasian, Widow(er), or Special Immigrant. The court invalidated the USCIS regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 245.2(a)(2)(i)(B), which permits concurrent filing of the Form I-485 under certain provisions of the Act, including under section 203(b)(4), only after approval of the petition or application. On June 11, 2009, the court ordered:

Beneficiaries of petitions for special immigrant visas (Form I-360) whose Form I-485 and/or Form I-765 applications were rejected by [USCIS] pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 245.2(a)(2)(i)(B) and who reapply under paragraph (2) of this Order are entitled to a [sic] have their applications processed as if they had been submitted on their original submission date. Any employment authorization that is granted shall be retroactive to the original submission date.

For purposes of 8 U.S.C. § 1255(c) and § 1182(a)(9)(B), if a beneficiary of a petition for special immigrant visa (Form I-360) submits or has submitted an adjustment of status application (Form I-485) or employment authorization application (Form I-765) in accordance with the preceding paragraphs, no period of time from the earlier of (a) the date the I-360 petition was filed on behalf of the individual or (b) November 21, 2007, through the date on which [USCIS] issues a final administrative decision denying the application(s) shall be counted as a period of time in which the applicant failed to maintain continuous lawful status, accrued unlawful presence, or engaged in unauthorized employment.

The accrual of unlawful presence, unlawful status, and unauthorized employment time against the beneficiaries of pending petitions for special immigrant visas (Form I-360) shall be STAYED for 90 days from the date of this Order to allow the beneficiaries and their family members time in which to file adjustment of status petitions (Form I-485) and/or applications for employment authorization (Form I-765).

On the Form I-360 petition, the petitioner indicated that the beneficiary last arrived in the United States on November 3, 1999 that the beneficiary's Form I-485 was pending. Therefore, the beneficiary was in the United States throughout the entire two-year qualifying period. The record shows that the beneficiary's R-1 nonimmigrant religious worker status expired on May 30, 2005.

The AAO notes that on August 20, 2010, the Ninth Circuit of Appeals reversed and remanded the district court's decision. Ruiz-Diaz v. U.S., 618 F.3d 1055 (9th Cir. 2010). Nonetheless, in accordance with the district court's decision, USCIS implemented a policy tolling the accrual of unlawful status and unauthorized employment until September 9, 2009. The requirements for tolling unlawful presence and unauthorized work is set forth in a memorandum from Donald Neufeld, Acting Associate Director of the USCIS Office of Domestic Operations, Clarifying Guidance on the Implementation of the District Court's Order in Ruiz-Diaz v. United States, No. C07-1881RSL (W.D. Wash. June 11, 2009) (August 5, 2009):

1. For those who had previously submitted a concurrently filed Form I-360 with a Form I-485 or Form I-765 and whose applications were rejected pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 245.2(a)(2)(i)(B), and who refiles the Form I-360 and Form I-485, the period of unlawful presence and unauthorized work was tolled from either the filing date of the Form I-360 or November 21, 2007, whichever was earlier, until September 9, 2009.
2. For any alien who had an approved or pending Form I-360 with USCIS as of June 11, 2009 (the date of the district court's decision), the period of unlawful presence and unauthorized work was tolled from the date the Form I-360 was filed until September 9, 2009.
3. For any alien who filed a new Form I-360 on or after June 11, 2009, the period of unlawful presence and unauthorized work was tolled from the date the Form I-360 was filed to September 9, 2009.

As applied to the instant petition, because the Form I-360 was pending on June 11, 2009, only the beneficiary's unauthorized employment from the date of filing, March 17, 2009 to September 9, 2009, is tolled. Thus, any work performed by the beneficiary in the United States during the requisite period from March 17, 2007 to March 16, 2009 was in an unauthorized status. Any unauthorized work performed by the beneficiary in the United States interrupts the continuity of his work experience for the purpose of this visa petition.

Additionally, counsel asserts that the retroactive application of the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) regulation regarding unlawful work is impermissible. Counsel's contention is not persuasive.

USCIS revised its special immigrant religious worker regulations effective November 26, 2008. Therefore, the new regulations at 8 C.F.R. §§ 204.5(m)(4) and (11) were already in effect when the petitioner filed the petition in March of 2009. If USCIS had not intended the lawful employment requirement to be retroactive, it would have phased in the requirement or specified that it applies only to employment that took place after November 26, 2008. Instead, supplementary information published with the new rule specified: “All cases pending on the rule’s effective date and all new filings will be adjudicated under the standards of this rule.” 73 Fed. Reg. 72276, 72285 (Nov. 26, 2008). Thus, the regulations and standards provided within were to be applied immediately and retroactively and include work performed before the effective date.

The wording of the relevant legislation demonstrates Congress’ interest in USCIS regulations and the agency’s commitment to combating immigration fraud. Section 2(b) of the Special Immigrant Nonminister Religious Worker Program Act, Pub. L. No. 110-391 (Oct. 10, 2008), reads, in pertinent part:

Regulations – Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Homeland Security shall –

(1) issue final regulations to eliminate or reduce fraud related to the granting of special immigrant status for special immigrants described in subclause (II) or (III) of section 101(a)(27)(C)(ii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(27)(C)(ii))

In proposing the requirement that all prior qualifying employment have been authorized and “in conformity with all other laws of the United States” such as the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 and “tax laws,” USCIS explained that “[a]llowing periods of unauthorized, unreported employment to qualify an alien toward permanent immigration undermines the integrity of the United States immigration system.” 72 Fed. Reg. 20442, 20447-48, (April 25, 2007). Accordingly, the adoption of the final rule requiring that all prior qualifying employment have been lawful clearly comports with the explicit instructions from Congress to “eliminate or reduce fraud.” As the AAO has previously noted, USCIS applied the new regulations to already-pending cases as well as new filings.

The October 2008 legislation extended the special immigrant nonminister religious program only until March 5, 2009. From the wording of the statute, it is clear that this extension was so short precisely because Congress sought to learn the effect of the new regulations before granting a longer extension. Congress has since extended the life of the program three times.^[1] On any of those occasions, Congress could have made substantive changes in response to the regulations they ordered USCIS to promulgate, but Congress did not do so. Congress is presumed to be aware of

^[1] P.L. No. 111-9 § 1 (March 20, 2009) extended the program to September 29, 2009. Pub. L. No. 111-68 § 133 (October 1, 2009) extended the program to October 30, 2009. Pub. L. No. 111-83 § 568(a)(1) (October 28, 2009) extended the program to September 29, 2012.

an administrative or judicial interpretation of a statute and to adopt that interpretation when it reenacts a statute without change. Lorillard v. Pons, 434 U.S. 575, 580 (1978). The AAO may therefore presume that Congress has no objection to the new regulations as published or to USCIS' interpretation and application of those regulations.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(m)(4) prohibits USCIS from considering work that was not "in lawful immigration status" and any "unauthorized work in the United States." The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(m)(11) requires that "qualifying prior experience . . . must have been authorized under United States immigration law." Therefore, the regulations, separately and together, require that USCIS must have affirmatively authorized the beneficiary to perform any claimed religious functions while in the United States. The record therefore reflects that the beneficiary was not in an authorized immigration status during the two years immediately preceding the filing of the visa petition. Accordingly, any work that he may have performed in an unauthorized status would interrupt the continuity of the qualifying work experience.

The petitioner has failed to submit sufficient documentation to establish that the beneficiary worked continuously in a qualifying religious occupation or vocation for two full years immediately preceding the filing of the petition.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden. Accordingly, the AAO will dismiss the appeal.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
