DISCUSSION: The Director, California Service Center, denied the employment-based immigrant visa petition. The matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a church. It seeks to classify the beneficiary as a special immigrant religious worker pursuant to section 203(b)(4) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(4), to perform services as a Bible teacher and religious education administrator. The director determined that the petitioner failed to establish the beneficiary had two years of continuous employment immediately prior to the filing of the petition as it failed to establish the beneficiary's lawful immigration status.

Section 203(b)(4) of the Act provides classification to qualified special immigrant religious workers as described in section 101(a)(27)(C) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(27)(C), which pertains to an immigrant who:

(i) for at least 2 years immediately preceding the time of application for admission, has been a member of a religious denomination having a bona fide nonprofit, religious organization in the United States;

(ii) seeks to enter the United States –

(I) solely for the purpose of carrying on the vocation of a minister of that religious denomination,

(II) before September 30, 2012, in order to work for the organization at the request of the organization in a professional capacity in a religious vocation or occupation, or

(III) before September 30, 2012, in order to work for the organization (or for a bona fide organization which is affiliated with the religious denomination and is exempt from taxation as an organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) at the request of the organization in a religious vocation or occupation; and

(iii) has been carrying on such vocation, professional work, or other work continuously for at least the 2-year period described in clause (i).

The issue presented on appeal is whether the beneficiary possessed two years of continuous, lawful employment immediately prior to the filing of the petition.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(m) provides that to be eligible for classification as a special immigrant religious worker, the alien must:

(4) Have been working in one of the positions described in paragraph (m)(2) of this section, either abroad or in lawful immigration status in the United States, and after the age of 14 years continuously for at least the two-year period immediately preceding the filing of the petition. The prior religious work need not correspond precisely to the type of work to be performed. A break in the continuity of the work during the preceding two years will not affect eligibility so long as:

- (i) The alien was still employed as a religious worker;
- (ii) The break did not exceed two years; and
- (iii) The nature of the break was for further religious training or for sabbatical that did not involve unauthorized work in the United States. However, the alien must have been a member of the petitioner's denomination throughout the two years of qualifying employment.

Therefore, the petitioner must show that the beneficiary worked in a qualifying religious occupation or vocation, either abroad or in lawful immigration status in the United States, continuously for at least the two-year period immediately preceding the filing of the petition. The petitioner filed the Form I-360 on October 7, 2010. Accordingly, the petitioner must establish that the beneficiary was continuously employed in qualifying religious work throughout the two-year period immediately preceding that date.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(m)(11) provides:

Evidence relating to the alien's prior employment. Qualifying prior experience during the two years immediately preceding the petition or preceding any acceptable break in the continuity of the religious work, must have occurred after the age of 14, and if acquired in the United States, must have been authorized under United States immigration law. If the alien was employed in the United States during the two years immediately preceding the filing of the application and:

- (i) Received salaried compensation, the petitioner must submit IRS [Internal Revenue Service] documentation that the alien received a salary, such as an IRS Form W-2 [Wage and Tax Statement] or certified copies of income tax returns.
- (ii) Received non-salaried compensation, the petitioner must submit IRS documentation of the non-salaried compensation if available.
- (iii) Received no salary but provided for his or her own support, and provided support for any dependents, the petitioner must show how support was maintained by submitting with the petition additional documents such as audited financial statements, financial institution records, brokerage account statements, trust documents signed by an attorney, or other verifiable evidence acceptable to USCIS.

If the alien was employed outside the United States during such two years, the petitioner must submit comparable evidence of the religious work.

On the Form I-360 petition, the petitioner indicated that the beneficiary arrived in the United States as a B-1 nonimmigrant visitor on February 19, 2000. Therefore, the beneficiary was in the United States throughout the entire two-year qualifying period. On the Form I-360, under "Current Nonimmigrant Status," the petitioner indicated "B-1 overstay." The beneficiary's B-1 nonimmigrant status expired on May 18, 2000.

In her August 11, 2011 decision, the director found that the beneficiary had engaged in unauthorized employment throughout the two years preceding the petition's filing date. The director highlighted that the beneficiary had worked for the petitioner's Religious Galilee Afterschool since August of 2008 and that the petitioner had provided copies of Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Forms 1099-MISC for 2008 and 2009 for work performed by the beneficiary to this effect.

The director noted that the beneficiary did possess authorization to work in the United States via an approved Form I-765 between May 5, 2005 and May 4, 2006, but highlighted that the beneficiary's one-year period of work authorization fell before the two-year qualifying period immediately preceding the petition's filing date. The director noted that the beneficiary's B-1 nonimmigrant status expired on May 18, 2000 and that the beneficiary had remained in the United States from that date onward.

The director stated that she had sent the petitioner a Notice of intent to Deny (NOID) on May 24, 2011 to which the petitioner had responded on June 22, 2011. The director found that the petitioner's response to the NOID did not include evidence demonstrating that the beneficiary possessed two years of continuous, lawful employment as a Bible teacher and religious education administrator immediately before the filing of the petition.

On appeal, counsel contends that the director's decision regarding the beneficiary's religious work is contrary to section 245(i) of the Act. Counsel states that the beneficiary's mother, [REDACTED] was a grandfathered alien under this section of the Act and is now a lawful permanent resident. Counsel asserts that the beneficiary is his mother's derivative beneficiary and should therefore receive coverage under this section of the Act.

Section 245(i) of the Act permitted certain aliens who were physically present in the United States on December 21, 2000, and who were otherwise ineligible to adjust their status, such as aliens who entered the United States without inspection or failed to maintain lawful nonimmigrant status, to pay a penalty and have their status adjusted without having to leave the United States. Section 245(i) of the Act expired as of April 30, 2001, except for those aliens who are “grandfathered.” “Grandfathered alien” is defined in 8 C.F.R. § 245.10(a) to include “an alien who is the beneficiary . . . of . . . [a] petition for classification,” such as a Form I-360 petition, “which was properly filed with the Attorney General on or before April 30, 2001, and which was approvable when filed.”^[1] Section 245(i) relief applies to adjudication of a Form I-485 adjustment application, not to adjudication of the underlying immigrant petition. Specifically, section 245(i)(2)(A) of the Act mandates that an alien seeking section 245(i) relief be “eligible to receive an immigrant visa.” See INS v. Bagamasbad, 429 U.S. 24, 25 n. (1976) (per curiam); Lee v. U.S. Citizenship & Immigration Servs., 592 F.3d 612, 614 (4th Cir. 2010) (describing the legislative history of 8 U.S.C. § 1255(i)).

The law does not require aliens to adjust their status on every grandfathered immigrant petition, nor does the law require every grandfathered immigrant petition to be approved. However, in order to seek relief under section 245(i) of the Act based on classification under section 204 of the Act, the alien in this case must first have an approved immigrant petition and an approvable when filed immigrant petition or labor certification filed on or before April 30, 2001. Without an approved immigrant petition, the beneficiary in this case has no basis for adjustment of status, and therefore section 245(i) relief does not apply.

Section 245(i) does not retroactively transform periods of unauthorized employment into qualifying employment for purposes of 8 C.F.R. §§ 204.5(m)(4) and (11) simply through the filing of a Form I-485 adjustment application with a Form I-360 immigrant petition. The new regulations at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(m) say nothing about what benefits are or are not available to the beneficiary at the adjustment stage, and the director, in this proceeding, did not bar the beneficiary from ever receiving benefits under sections 245(i). Rather, the director found that the beneficiary’s lack of lawful status during the two-year qualifying period prevents the approval of the present immigrant petition based on the regulatory requirements at 8 C.F.R. §§ 204.5(m)(4) and (11). Counsel’s assertion that the beneficiary is eligible for relief under these sections of the Act at the adjustment stage does not require the AAO to approve the underlying immigrant petition before the beneficiary has even reached that stage.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(m)(4) prohibits USCIS from considering work that was not “in lawful immigration status” and any “unauthorized work in the United States.” The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(m)(11) requires that “qualifying prior experience . . . must have been authorized under United States immigration law.” Therefore, the regulations, separately and together, require that USCIS must have affirmatively authorized the beneficiary to perform any claimed religious functions while in the United States. The record reflects that the beneficiary was not in an authorized immigration status during the two years immediately preceding the filing of the visa petition.

^[1] The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 245.10(a)(2) defines “properly filed” to mean that “the application was physically received by the Service on or before April 30, 2001, or if mailed, was postmarked on or before April 30, 2001, and accepted for filing as provided in § 103.2(a)(1) and (a)(2) of [8 C.F.R.].”

The AAO concurs with the director's finding that the petitioner has failed to submit sufficient documentation to establish that the beneficiary worked continuously in a qualifying religious occupation or vocation for two full years immediately preceding the filing of the petition.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden. Accordingly, the AAO will dismiss the appeal.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
