DISCUSSION: The service center director denied the instant nonimmigrant visa petition. The matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be summarily dismissed.

On the Form I-129 visa petition, the petitioner stated that it is an “auto and motorcycle [sic] repair and motorcycle [sic] assembling [sic] and remodeling” firm. In order to employ the beneficiary in what it designates as a “senior engineer-mechanical” position, the petitioner seeks to classify the beneficiary as a nonimmigrant worker in a specialty occupation pursuant to section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b).

The director denied the petition on the basis that the petitioner had failed to establish that the proffered position meets the definition of a specialty occupation.

Counsel submitted a Form I-290B appeal in this matter. The body of that appeal states, in its entirety, “We believe USCIS’ decision was an error. The grounds for this appeal will be stated on memorandum which will follow with supportive documents.” Counsel also checked Box B in Part 2 of Form I-290B to indicate that a brief or additional evidence, or both, would be submitted to the AAO within 30 days. No brief or evidence was submitted to the AAO, either with the form appeal or subsequently.

Counsel’s statement on appeal contains no specific assignment of error. Alleging, directly or indirectly, that the director erred in some broad or unspecified way is an insufficient basis for an appeal.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.3(a)(1)(v) states, in pertinent part: “An officer to whom an appeal is taken shall summarily dismiss any appeal when the party concerned fails to identify specifically any erroneous conclusion of law or statement of fact for the appeal.”

Counsel has failed to identify specifically an erroneous conclusion of law or a statement of fact as a basis for the appeal and, therefore, the appeal must be summarily dismissed.

ORDER: The appeal is summarily dismissed.
