DISCUSSION: The director of the service center denied the nonimmigrant visa petition, and the matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be sustained. The petition will be approved.

The petitioner is a computer board design services company that seeks to continue the employment of the beneficiary as a design engineer. The petitioner, therefore, endeavors to continue to classify the beneficiary as a nonimmigrant worker in a specialty occupation pursuant to section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b).

The director denied the petition, finding that the petitioner had failed to demonstrate that it qualified to extend the validity of the beneficiary's petition and period of stay in the H-1B classification beyond the maximum six-year period of stay in the United States. On appeal, counsel contends that the director erroneously denied the petition, and submits a brief and additional evidence in support of the beneficiary's eligibility for a 7th year extension.

The record of proceeding before the AAO contains: (1) Form I-129 and supporting documentation; (2) the director's request for evidence (RFE); (3) the petitioner's response to the RFE; (4) the director's denial letter; and (5) Form I-290B and supporting documentation. The AAO reviewed the record in its entirety before issuing its decision.

The issue before the AAO is whether the beneficiary is eligible for an extension of H-1B status and an extension of his stay in H-1B nonimmigrant classification beyond the maximum six-year period of stay in the United States normally permitted for H-1B nonimmigrants.

In general, section 214(g)(4) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. §1184(g)(4) provides that: "[T]he period of authorized admission of [an H-1B nonimmigrant] shall not exceed 6 years." However, the American Competitiveness in the Twenty-First Century Act (AC21), as amended by the Twenty-First Century Department of Justice Appropriations Authorization Act (DOJ21), removes the six-year limitation on the authorized period of stay in H-1B visa status for certain aliens whose labor certifications or immigrant petitions remain undecided due to lengthy adjudication delays, and broadens the class of H-1B nonimmigrants who may avail themselves of this provision.

As amended by § 11030(A)(a) of DOJ21, § 106(a) of AC21 reads:

(a) EXEMPTION FROM LIMITATION. -- The limitation contained in section 214(g)(4) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. § 1184(g)(4)) with respect to the duration of authorized stay shall not apply to any nonimmigrant alien previously issued a visa or otherwise provided nonimmigrant status under section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) of such Act (8 U.S.C.

§ 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b)), if 365 days or more have elapsed since the filing of any of the following:

- (1) Any application for labor certification under section 212(a)(5)(A) of such Act (8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(5)(A)), in a case in which certification is required or used by the alien to obtain status under section 203(b) of such Act (8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)).
- (2) A petition described in section 204(b) of such Act (8 U.S.C. § 1154(b)) to accord the alien a status under section 203(b) of such Act.

Section 11030(A)(b) of DOJ21 amended § 106(b) of AC21 to read:

(b) EXTENSION OF H-1B WORKER STATUS--The Attorney General shall extend the stay of an alien who qualifies for an exemption under subsection (a) in one-year increments until such time as a final decision is made—

- (1) to deny the application described in subsection (a)(1), or, in a case in which such application is granted, to deny a petition described in subsection (a)(2) filed on behalf of the alien pursuant to such grant;
- (2) to deny the petition described in subsection (a)(2); or
- (3) to grant or deny the alien's application for an immigrant visa or for adjustment of status to that of an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence.

The record demonstrates that the beneficiary has resided in the United States in H-1B classification since July 17, 2001. On May 29, 2007, the petitioner applied for an extension of H-1B status for the beneficiary for the period from July 17, 2007 to July 16, 2008, which would have placed the beneficiary beyond his six-year limit.

In her decision, the director noted that the Form I-140 petition filed on behalf of the beneficiary on November 16, 2005 [REDACTED] was denied on May 2, 2008, and an appeal to the AAO, was dismissed on August 12, 2008 [REDACTED]. The director concluded that the AAO's dismissal of the appeal constituted a final decision to deny the beneficiary's application for an immigrant visa under section 106(a) of AC21 as modified by DOJ21, and denied the petition.

Contrary to the findings of the director, the AAO finds that that the beneficiary is eligible for an exemption from the six-year limitation on his admission in H-1B nonimmigrant classification under AC21, section 106(a), and to an extension of his stay in H-1B status for a seventh year under AC21, section 106(b). A final determination regarding the beneficiary's I-140 petition was not entered until August 12, 2008. Consequently, at the time the instant petition was pending before USCIS, a final decision had not been entered on the I-140 petition upon which the request for extension was based. Accordingly, the decision of the director is withdrawn.

The petitioner bears the burden of proof in these proceedings. See section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is sustained. The petition is approved.
