DISCUSSION: The Director, Vermont Service Center, denied the nonimmigrant visa petition (Form I-129F), and the matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed. The petition will remain denied.

The petitioner is a citizen of the United States who seeks to classify the beneficiary, a native and citizen of China, as the fiancé(e) of a United States citizen pursuant to § 101(a)(15)(K) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(K).

The director denied the nonimmigrant visa petition pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(8)(ii) because the petitioner failed to submit required initial evidence. On appeal, the petitioner submits a Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal and additional evidence.

Applicable Law

A "fiancé(e)" is defined at Section 101(a)(15)(K) of the Act as:

subject to subsections (d) and (p) of section 214, an alien who -

(i) is the fiancée or fiancé of a citizen of the United States . . . and who seeks to enter the United States solely to conclude a valid marriage with the petitioner within ninety days after admission[.]

Section 214(d)(1) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1184(d)(1), states in pertinent part that a fiancé(e) petition:

shall be approved only after satisfactory evidence is submitted by the petitioner to establish that the parties have previously met in person within 2 years before the date of filing the petition, have a bona fide intention to marry, and are legally able and actually willing to conclude a valid marriage in the United States within a period of ninety days after the alien's arrival, except that the Secretary of Homeland Security in [her] discretion may waive the requirement that the parties have previously met in person. . . .

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(8)(ii) states that if all required initial evidence is not submitted with the petition or does not demonstrate eligibility, U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) may, in its discretion, deny the petition for lack of initial evidence. The specific requirements for filing a Petition for Alien Fiancé(e) (Form I-129F), including a description of the required initial evidence, may be found in the Instructions to the Form I-129F.

Factual and Procedural History

The petitioner filed the Form I-129F with USCIS on July 12, 2011 without any supporting evidence. For this reason, the director denied the petition on October 7, 2011. On the Form I-290B, the petitioner states that he is submitting the required information. He also provides a copy of his U.S. passport; a list of his travel dates to China; brief statements from himself and the beneficiary regarding their mutual intent to marry; Biographic Information Sheets (Form G-325) for himself and the beneficiary; copies of photographs; and a copy of the divorce decree from his second spouse, [REDACTED].¹

Analysis

The petitioner has submitted some, but not all, of the required initial evidence. The record still lacks proof of the termination of his marriage to [REDACTED] his first wife.²

Section 214(d)(1) of the Act requires the submission of evidence to establish that the petitioner and the beneficiary are “legally able . . . to conclude a valid marriage in the United States. . . .” A marriage will be valid for immigration purposes only where any prior marriage of either party has been legally terminated and both individuals are free to contract a new marriage. See Matter of Hann, 18 I&N Dec. 196 (BIA 1982). While the petitioner only lists [REDACTED] as a prior spouse on his Form G-325, the Form I-129F indicates that he was also married to [REDACTED] and the record does not contain a divorce decree or death certificate to establish the legal termination of that marriage. Going on record without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. 158, 165 (Comm. 1998) (citing Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg. Comm. 1972)). Consequently, the beneficiary may not benefit from the instant petition and it must remain denied.

Conclusion

As the petitioner still has not submitted all of the required initial evidence on appeal, the director’s decision to deny the petition shall not be disturbed. As always, the burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, the petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. The petition remains denied.
