DISCUSSION: The Director, Vermont Service Center, denied the petition for a nonimmigrant visa. The matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner filed this nonimmigrant petition seeking to classify the beneficiary as an L-1A nonimmigrant intracompany transferee pursuant to section 101(a)(15)(L) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(L). The petitioner, a Florida corporation formed in 2010, was established for the purpose of providing project and financial management of U.S. investments. It claims to be an affiliate of [REDACTED] ("the foreign entity"), located in Venezuela. The beneficiary was previously granted L-1A status for a one-year period in order to open a new office in the United States through a prior petition, [REDACTED]. The petitioner now seeks to extend his status in the position of president for two additional years.

The director denied the petition on November 29, 2011. The sole basis for denial was the revocation of the petitioner's prior petition, [REDACTED], which rendered the beneficiary in unlawful status and therefore ineligible for an extension of status.

The petitioner subsequently filed an appeal. The director declined to treat the appeal as a motion and forwarded the appeal to the AAO for review. On appeal, the petitioner submits a brief and additional evidence to supplement the record.

I. The Law

To establish eligibility for the L-1 nonimmigrant visa classification, the petitioner must meet the criteria outlined in section 101(a)(15)(L) of the Act. Specifically, a qualifying organization must have employed the beneficiary in a qualifying managerial or executive capacity, or in a specialized knowledge capacity, for one continuous year within three years preceding the beneficiary's application for admission into the United States. In addition, the beneficiary must seek to enter the United States temporarily to continue rendering his or her services to the same employer or a subsidiary or affiliate thereof in a managerial, executive, or specialized knowledge capacity.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(l)(3) states that an individual petition filed on Form I-129 shall be accompanied by:

- (i) Evidence that the petitioner and the organization which employed or will employ the alien are qualifying organizations as defined in paragraph (l)(1)(ii)(G) of this section.
- (ii) Evidence that the alien will be employed in an executive, managerial, or specialized knowledge capacity, including a detailed description of the services to be performed.
- (iii) Evidence that the alien has at least one continuous year of full-time employment abroad with a qualifying organization within the three years preceding the filing of the petition.

- (iv) Evidence that the alien's prior year of employment abroad was in a position that was managerial, executive or involved specialized knowledge and that the alien's prior education, training, and employment qualifies him/her to perform the intended services in the United States; however, the work in the United States need not be the same work which the alien performed abroad.

II. The Issue on Appeal

The sole basis for the director's denial was the revocation of the petitioner's prior petition. [REDACTED] The director concluded that because [REDACTED] had been revoked, the beneficiary was no longer in valid non-immigrant status and thus was ineligible to extend his non-immigrant status.

The record reflects that the petitioner subsequently filed an appeal of the director's revocation of [REDACTED] On this date, the AAO affirmed the director's decision to revoke the approval of the petition, and dismissed the appeal. The petitioner has failed to overcome the basis for denial of the instant petition.

III. Conclusion

The appeal will be dismissed for the above stated reasons. In visa petition proceedings, the burden of proving eligibility for the benefit sought remains entirely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, that burden has not been met.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
