DISCUSSION: The Director, National Benefits Center (the director), denied the Application to Preserve Residence for Naturalization Purposes (Form N-470). The matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed and the application will remain denied.

Pertinent Facts and Procedural History

The applicant is a lawful permanent resident employed by [REDACTED] who seeks to preserve his residence for naturalization purposes under section 316(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1427(b), as a lawful permanent resident who is employed by or under contract with the United States Government.

The director determined that the applicant was not eligible for consideration under section 316(b) of the Act because he could not establish that he was physically present in the United States for an uninterrupted period of one year following his admission as a permanent resident.

On appeal, the applicant maintains that he has been working for the [REDACTED]. See Applicant's Appeal Statement. The applicant submits letters from Commanding Officer [REDACTED] verifying that he used their residences as his mailing address during his assignment overseas and that he spent time in their residence while in the United States.

Applicable Law

In order to be naturalized as a United States citizen, the Act requires in part, that a person reside continuously in the United States as a lawful permanent resident for at least five years prior to filing an application for naturalization, and that the person be physically present in the United States for at least one half of the required residency period. See generally section 316 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1427.

Section 316(b) of the Act provides, in pertinent part that:

[A]bsence from the United States for a continuous period of one year or more during the period for which continuous residence is required for admission to citizenship (whether preceding or subsequent to the filing of the application for naturalization) shall break the continuity of such residence except that in the case of a person who has been physically present and residing in the United States after being lawfully admitted for permanent residence for an uninterrupted period of at least one year and who thereafter, is employed by or under contract with the Government of the United States . . . no period of absence from the United States shall break the continuity of residence if-

(1) Prior to the beginning of such period of employment (whether such period begins before or after his departure from the United States), but prior to the expiration of one year of continuous absence from the United States, the person has established to the satisfaction of the [Secretary of Homeland Security] that his absence from the United States for such period is to be on behalf of such Government . . . ; and

(2) such person proves to the satisfaction of the [Secretary] that his absence from the United States for such period has been for such purpose.

(Emphasis added).

Analysis

We review these proceedings de novo. The applicant was admitted to the United States as a lawful permanent resident on June 15, 2008. He departed the United States, in relevant part, in September 2008, January 2009, January 2010, January 2011, January 2012, October 2012, January 2013, June 2013, July 2013, November 2013, and April 2014. The applicant has been employed as a translator for the [redacted] since 2004. On August 2, 2013, the applicant submitted his Form N-470, Application to Preserve Residence for Naturalization Purposes.

“[I]t is not possible to construe the uninterrupted physical presence requirement of section 316(b) to allow departures.” Matter of Graves, 19 I&N Dec. 337, 339 (Comm. 1985).

[A]ny departure from the United States for any reason or period of time bars a determination that an alien has been continuously physically present in the United States or present in the United States for an uninterrupted period during the period including the departure. An applicant’s failure to establish he or she has been present in the United States for 1 year after lawful admission for permanent residence bars eligibility for preservation under section 316(b).

Matter of Copeland, 19 I&N Dec. 788, 789 (BIA 1988).

The applicant has been employed as a translator for the [redacted] since before he was admitted to the United States as a lawful permanent resident. He obtained lawful permanent resident on the basis of his work as a translator for the [redacted]. The evidence in the record indicates that the applicant obtained lawful permanent residence in June 2008. He departed the United States in September 2008, returned for two days in January 2009, and subsequently departed for a period of more than six months. The applicant was also absent from the United States for six months or more in 2010, 2011, 2012 and 2013.

Section 316(b) of the Act requires physical presence in the United States for a continuous, uninterrupted period of one year after obtaining lawful permanent residence. The applicant submits letters verifying that he used the residences of Mrs. [REDACTED] and Mr. [REDACTED] as his mailing address during his assignment overseas and that he spent time in their residence while in the United States. As noted above, however, "any departure from the United States for any reason or period of time bars a determination that an alien has been continuously physically present in the United States." Matter of Copeland, supra. Therefore, the applicant has not been continuously physically present in the United States for the requisite one-year period after being lawfully admitted for permanent residence.

Conclusion

It is the applicant's burden to establish eligibility for the immigration benefit sought. See Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361; 8 C.F.R. § 316.2(b). Here, that burden has not been met.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
