INSTRUCTIONS:

Enclosed please find the decision of the Administrative Appeals Office in your case. All of the documents related to this matter have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Please be advised that any further inquiry that you might have concerning your case must be made to that office.

If you believe the law was inappropriately applied by us in reaching our decision, or you have additional information that you wish to have considered, you may file a motion to reconsider or a motion to reopen. The specific requirements for filing such a request can be found at 8 C.F.R. § 103.5. All motions must be submitted to the office that originally decided your case by filing a Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal or Motion, with a fee of $630. Please be aware that 8 C.F.R. § 103.5(a)(1)(i) requires that any motion must be filed within 30 days of the decision that the motion seeks to reconsider or reopen

Thank you,

Perry Rhew
Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

Section 309(a) of the Act states, in relevant part:

(a) The provisions of paragraphs (c), (d), (e), and (g) of section 301 . . . shall apply as of the date of birth to a person born out of wedlock if-

- (1) a blood relationship between the person and the father is established by clear and convincing evidence,
- (2) the father had the nationality of the United States at the time of the person's birth,
- (3) the father (unless deceased) has agreed in writing to provide financial support for the person until the person reaches the age of 18 years, and
- (4) while the person is under the age of 18 years-
  - (A) the person is legitimated under the law of the person's residence or domicile,
  - (B) the father acknowledges paternity of the person in writing under oath, or
  - (C) the paternity of the person is established by adjudication of a competent court.

The record contains a copy of a Texas court order establishing the applicant's father's paternity. The record also contains the results of a DNA test establishing the blood relationship between the applicant and his father. The applicant's father's Texas birth certificate is also included in the record. Lastly, the record contains school records evidencing the applicant's father's physical presence in the United States. At issue in this case is whether the applicant's father agreed in writing to provide financial support for the applicant until his eighteenth birthday.

The applicant maintains that the 2003 Texas court order enforcing his father's child support obligation is tantamount to a written agreement to financially support the applicant. The applicant notes that his father did not appeal the 2003 order and, in fact, supported him financially while he was under the age of 18. The record does not contain, however, a document whereby the applicant's father specifically agreed in writing to financially provide for the applicant prior to his eighteenth birthday as is required by section 309(a)(3) of the Act. See 7 FAM 1133.4-2.

The 2003 order indicates that the applicant's father was in arrears in terms of his child support obligations and that his wages would thereafter be garnished. The order does not establish that the applicant's father agreed to financially support him, nor does the fact that the applicant's father did not appeal the order amount to a written agreement to financially support the applicant as is required by section 309(a)(3) of the Act. Moreover, there is no legal support for the applicant's claim otherwise. The plain language of the statute requires that the child's father, unless deceased, agree in writing to provide financial support until the child's eighteenth birthday. The applicant's father in this case did not execute such a written agreement prior to the applicant's eighteenth birthday. The applicant therefore cannot fulfill the requirements of section 309(a)(3) of the Act, and did not acquire U.S. citizenship at birth through his father.

The burden in these proceedings is on the applicant to establish eligibility for U.S. citizenship by a preponderance of the evidence. Section 341 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1452; 8 CFR § 341.2. The applicant in this case has not met his burden of proof. The appeal will therefore be dismissed.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
