DISCUSSION: The Application for Certificate of Citizenship (Form N-600) was denied by the Field Office Director, Columbus, Ohio (the director), and the matter came before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. On March 7, 2014, the AAO sustained the appeal. The AAO reopened the proceedings, withdrew its prior decision, and provided the applicant with an opportunity to supplement the record. The applicant failed to respond within the time specified. The appeal will be dismissed.

Pertinent Facts and Procedural History

The applicant was born on May 19, 2004 in Kenya. The applicant's claimed parents are [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]. The applicant's alleged father became a U.S. citizen upon his naturalization on June 1, 2012, when the applicant was eight years old. The applicant's alleged mother is not a U.S. citizen. The applicant, a Somali refugee, was admitted to the United States as a lawful permanent resident as of October 19, 2006, when he was two years old. The applicant seeks a certificate of citizenship pursuant to section 320 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1431, as amended by the Child Citizenship Act of 2000 (the CCA), Pub. L. No. 106-395, 114 Stat. 1631 (Oct. 30, 2000).

The director denied the application finding that the applicant had failed to provide a birth certificate to establish that he was the child of a U.S. citizen. The AAO sustained the appeal.

The AAO reopened the proceedings, withdrew its prior decision, and provided the applicant with an opportunity to submit a valid birth certificate and evidence that he was in the physical and legal custody of his alleged father. The applicant was afforded 33 days in which to provide the requested evidence. The applicant has failed to respond.

Applicable Law

The AAO reviews these proceedings de novo. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The applicable law for derivative citizenship purposes is "the law in effect at the time the critical events giving rise to eligibility occurred." See Minasyan v. Gonzales, 401 F.3d 1069, 1075 (9th Cir. 2005). The applicant was under 18 years of age on the effective date of the CCA, February 27, 2001. Thus, section 320 of the Act, as amended by the CCA, is applicable to his case.

Section 320 of the Act provides, in pertinent part, that:

- (a) A child born outside of the United States automatically becomes a citizen of the United States when all of the following conditions have been fulfilled:
  - (1) At least one parent of the child is a citizen of the United States, whether by birth or naturalization.
  - (2) The child is under the age of eighteen years.

- (3) The child is residing in the United States in the legal and physical custody of the citizen parent pursuant to a lawful admission for permanent residence.

The regulations, 8 C.F.R. § 320.3(b)(1)(i), require that the applicant submit a birth certificate when applying for a certificate of citizenship.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 320.1 defines "legal custody" as "the responsibility for and authority over a child." Legal custody is presumed in the case of a "biological child who currently resides with both natural parents (who are married to each other, living in marital union, and not separated)." See 8 C.F.R. § 320.1(1)(i).

Analysis

The applicant is seeking to derive U.S. citizenship from his purported father. The applicant's file contains a copy of a birth certificate issued by the Republic of Kenya. The birth certificate indicates that the applicant's father is [REDACTED]. However, the applicant indicates on his Form N-600 that his father's name is [REDACTED], and he submits a copy of [REDACTED]'s naturalization certificate. Thus, the birth certificate does not establish the applicant's relationship to his alleged U.S. citizen father.

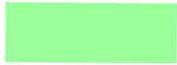

Further, the applicant's birth certificate indicates that his birth was registered on August 3, 2004, and that his certificate was issued on August 1, 2005. However, there is a notation on the certificate ("CA. NO. [REDACTED] of 4/7/2005"), dating both the record number of the document ([REDACTED]) and the date of registration as July 4, 2005, not August 3, 2004 as in the body of the certificate. The exact same notation, "CA. NO. [REDACTED] of 4/7/2005," also appears on the applicant's brother's birth certificate, who was allegedly born in 2002 and, therefore, would not share the same record number as his brother. Additionally, according to the U.S. Department of State, Kenyan birth certificates may be obtained from the Department of Civil Registration.<sup>1</sup> The birth certificate in the record was obtained from the District Registrar and not from the Department of Civil Registration.

The applicant did not respond to the AAO's request to submit a new birth certificate or otherwise provide any evidence or explanation to overcome the inconsistencies and deficiencies noted in the record.

The record also does not contain evidence that the applicant was in his alleged father's legal and physical custody when the alleged father naturalized in 2012. The applicant has submitted no evidence to demonstrate this eligibility criterion.

Conclusion

In application proceedings, it is the applicant's burden to establish eligibility for the immigration benefit sought. See Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, that burden has not been met.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
