DISCUSSION: The Form N-600, Application for Certificate of Citizenship (Form N-600) was denied by the District Director, New York, New York (the director), and the matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant filed the Form N-600 on July 11, 2011 pursuant to section 320 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1431, based on the claim that she derived U.S. citizenship through her father.

In a decision dated June 27, 2012, the director determined that the applicant had failed to establish that she resided in the United States in the custody of a U.S. citizen parent as required under section 320(a)(3) of the Act. The application was denied accordingly.

On appeal, the applicant indicates that she wants to file a Form N-400, Application for Naturalization, but cannot afford to do so, and she submits evidence that she has received Supplemental Security Income. The applicant does not address or contest the director's finding that she failed to meet the requirements for derivative citizenship under section 320 of the Act.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.3(a)(1)(v) states in pertinent part:

Summary dismissal. An officer to whom an appeal is taken shall summarily dismiss any appeal when the party concerned fails to identify specifically any erroneous conclusion of law or statement of fact for the appeal.

Here, the applicant failed to identify any erroneous conclusion of law or statement of fact in the director's decision. The AAO, therefore, will summarily dismiss the appeal.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
