DISCUSSION: The Director of the Texas Service Center (the director) denied the Application for Replacement Naturalization/Citizenship Document (Form N-565), and the matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

Pertinent Facts and Procedural History

The applicant is a native of Liberia, and a naturalized citizen of the United States. He seeks to have his certificate of naturalization corrected under section 338 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1449, to reflect a change in his date of birth from January 13, 1963 to May 15, 1949.

The director reviewed the applicant's record and determined that a correction to his certificate of naturalization was not justified. Specifically, the director noted that the applicant had claimed the date of birth on the certificate at the time of naturalization, and that the date conformed to the applicant's entire immigration record. The application was denied accordingly.

On appeal, the applicant requests that his certificate of naturalization be changed to conform to his correct date of birth, May 15, 1949. The applicant states that the Liberian consulate in New York issued his birth affidavit with the wrong date of birth. See Statement of the Applicant on Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal. The applicant submits a birth certificate listing May 15, 1949 as his date of birth issued by the Republic of Liberia in 2011.

Applicable Law

Section 338 of the Act provides the statutory authority relating to the contents of a certificate of naturalization. In addition, the regulations regarding the execution and issuance of certificates of naturalization are contained in 8 C.F.R. § 338.5, and provide, in part, that:

- (a) Application. Whenever a Certificate of Naturalization has been delivered which does not conform to the facts shown on the application for naturalization, or a clerical error was made in preparing the certificate, an application for issuance of a corrected certificate may be filed, without fee, in accordance with the form instructions.

- (e) Data change. The correction will not be deemed to be justified where the naturalized person later alleges that the name or date of birth which the applicant stated to be his or her correct name or date of birth at the time of naturalization was not in fact his or her name or date of birth at the time of the naturalization.

Analysis

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The applicant's administrative record contains the following documents listing the applicant's date of birth as January 13, 1963:

- Biographic Information Forms (G-325A), pertaining to the applicant and the applicant's spouse;
- A Form I-130, Petition for Alien Relative, filed on the applicant's behalf by his spouse in 1986;
- A Birth Affidavit issued in 1986 by Consulate General of the Republic of Liberia in New York;
- A Form I-485, Application to Register Permanent Residence or Adjust Status, filed by the applicant in 1986;
- A Memorandum of Creation of Record of Lawful Permanent Residence (Form I-181);
- A copy of the first page of the applicant's Liberian passport;
- A copy of the applicant's New York State driver's license;
- A copy of the applicant's life insurance application dated May 29, 1988;
- A copy the applicant's New York State marriage registration;
- The applicant's Form I-90, Application by Lawful Permanent Resident for New Alien Registration Receipt Card; and
- The applicant's Form N-400, Application for Naturalization.

Based on the evidence in the record, the applicant has not established that his certificate of naturalization, which states that his date of birth is January 13, 1963, contains clerical errors attributable to U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS). As noted above, the January 13, 1963 birth date was listed as the applicant's date of birth in his Application for Naturalization (Form N-400). The January 13, 1963 date is also listed in the applicant's birth affidavit, Liberian passport and entire immigration record.

The applicant originally stated on his naturalization application that his date of birth is January 13, 1963. No redlined changes were made by the adjudicator to change the applicant's date of birth at the time of the applicant's naturalization interview. When signing the Form N-400 at the conclusion of the interview, the applicant attested to knowing the contents of his application.

The applicant now claims that after he was naturalized he noticed that a mistake in the birth affidavit submitted with his permanent residence application. The applicant now submits a birth certificate issued by the Republic of Liberia in 2011 stating that his date of birth is May 15, 1949.

As provided at 8 C.F.R. § 338.5(e): “[A] correction will not be deemed to be justified where the naturalized person later alleges that the . . . date of birth which the applicant stated to be his or her . . . date of birth at the time of naturalization was not in fact his or her . . . date of birth at the time of the naturalization.” The totality of the relevant evidence in the applicant’s administrative record does not support a finding that USICS made a clerical error when placing the January 13, 1963 date of birth on the applicant’s certificate of naturalization. As stated by the applicant, he did not notice a mistake or seek to change his date of birth until after he was naturalized. At the time of his naturalization, the applicant’s record contained several documents supporting the January 13, 1963 date of birth, and the applicant asserted to this fact during the naturalization process. Neither the statute nor the regulations allows USCIS to correct a date of birth for any reason but clerical error attributable to USCIS. See 8 C.F.R. § 338.5(a).

Conclusion

In application proceedings, it is the applicant's burden to establish eligibility for the immigration benefit sought. See Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, that burden has not been met.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. The application remains denied.
