Acting Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The Form I-601 Application for Waiver of Grounds of Inadmissibility (Form I-601) was denied by the Field Office Director, Bangkok, Thailand, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant is a native and citizen of India. He was found to be inadmissible to the United States pursuant to section 212(a)(6)(C)(i) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(C)(i), for seeking to procure an immigration benefit through fraud or misrepresentation. The record indicates that the applicant applied for asylum in the United States using a false identity. The applicant was also found to be inadmissible to the United States pursuant to section 212(a)(9)(B)(i)(II) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(B)(i)(II), for having been unlawfully present in the United States for a period of more than one year. The applicant was further found to be inadmissible under section 212(a)(9)(A) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(A), as an alien previously ordered removed. The applicant is the spouse of a U.S. citizen and is the beneficiary of an approved Petition for Alien Relative. The applicant seeks a waiver of inadmissibility pursuant to sections 212(a)(9)(B)(v) and 212(i) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. §§ 1182(a)(9)(B)(v) and 1182(i), in order to remain in the United States with his U.S. citizen spouse.

When considering the applicant's request for waiver of these grounds of inadmissibility, the field office director determined that the applicant was also inadmissible to the United States pursuant to section 212(a)(6)(B) of the Act for failing to attend removal proceedings and seeking admission to the United States within five years of his subsequent removal. See Decision of the Field Office Director, May 1, 2012. The application was accordingly denied.

On appeal, counsel asserts that the applicant has demonstrated reasonable cause for his failure to attend removal proceedings. Form I-290B (Notice of Appeal or Motion), dated May 25, 2012.

Section 212(a)(6)(B) of the Act states:

Failure to attend removal proceeding. -Any alien who without reasonable cause fails or refuses to attend or remain in attendance at a proceeding to determine the alien's inadmissibility or deportability and who seeks admission to the United States within 5 years of such alien's subsequent departure or removal is inadmissible.

The record reflects that the applicant used a false identity claiming to be a native and citizen of Bangladesh, and filed for asylum on February 18, 1993. On March 5, 2007, USCIS determined that the applicant was not eligible for asylum status in the United States, and referred the applicant to the Immigration Judge. The applicant was initially scheduled for a hearing before the Immigration Judge on June 20, 2007. On April 7, 2008, the applicant's prior counsel submitted to the Immigration Court a Form EOIR-42B, Application for Cancellation of Removal and Adjustment of Status for Certain Nonpermanent Residents. The applicant was scheduled for an individual hearing before the Immigration Judge on May 18, 2009, and following a subsequent motion to continue filed by the applicant's prior counsel, the individual hearing was scheduled for June 9, 2009. The applicant failed to appear at this hearing, and the Immigration Judge ordered the applicant removed in absentia. The applicant has not contested these facts. Rather, the applicant has argued that he had “reasonable cause” for failing to attend his removal proceeding, and that he is not inadmissible under section 212(a)(6)(B) of the Act as a consequence.

In submitting the Form I-601, Application for Waiver of Grounds of Inadmissibility, applicant’s counsel stated that the applicant departed the United States on September 28, 2008, prior to the hearing before the Immigration Judge on June 9, 2009. The Field Office Director determined that a review of electronic systems did not show that the applicant departed the United States on September 28, 2008, and that it appeared that the applicant did not leave the United States until a few days prior to the applicant’s interview before a U.S. Consular Officer on June 25, 2010. On appeal, applicant’s counsel again stated that the applicant voluntarily departed the United States to India on September 28, 2008, and submitted further documentation in support of this claim.

Counsel asserts that the applicant therefore has demonstrated reasonable cause for his failure to attend removal proceedings. However, the instant appeal relates to a Form I-601 application for a waiver of inadmissibility arising under sections 212(g), (h), (i) or (a)(9)(B)(v) of the Act. Inadmissibility under section 212(a)(6)(B) of the Act and the “reasonable cause” exception thereto, is not the subject of the Form I-601 and is not within the subject matter jurisdiction of the AAO to adjudicate with this appeal.

The AAO’s appellate authority in this case is limited to those matters that are within the scope of the Form I-601 waiver application. The authority to adjudicate appeals is delegated to the AAO by the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) pursuant to the authority vested in her through the Homeland Security Act of 2002, Pub. L. 107-296. See DHS Delegation Number 0150.1 (effective March 1, 2003); see also 8 C.F.R. § 2.1 (2003). The AAO exercises appellate jurisdiction over the matters described at 8 C.F.R. § 103.1(f)(3)(iii) (as in effect on February 28, 2003).<sup>1</sup> The AAO cannot exercise appellate jurisdiction over additional matters on its own volition, or at the request of an applicant or petitioner. As a “statement of general . . . applicability and future effect designed to implement, interpret, or prescribe law or policy,” the creation of appeal rights for adjustment application denials meets the definition of an agency “rule” under section 551 of the Administrative Procedure Act. The granting of appeal rights has a “substantive legal effect” because it is creating a new administrative “right,” and it involves an economic interest (the fee). “If a rule creates rights, assigns duties, or imposes obligations, the basic tenor of which is not already outlined in the law itself, then it is substantive.” La Casa Del Convaleciente v. Sullivan, 965 F.2d 1175, 1178 (1st Cir. 1992). All substantive or legislative rule making requires notice and comment in the Federal Register.

Under 8 C.F.R. § 103.1(f)(3)(iii)(F) (as in effect on February 28, 2003), the AAO has authority to adjudicate “[a]pplications for waiver of certain grounds of excludability [now inadmissibility] under <sup>1</sup> Although 8 C.F.R. § 103(f)(3)(iii), as in effect on February 28, 2003, was subsequently omitted from the Code of Federal Regulations, courts have recognized that DHS continues to delegate appellate authority to the AAO consistent with that regulation. See U.S. v. Gonzalez & Gonzalez Bonds and Insurance Agency, Inc., 728 F.Supp.2d 1077, 1082-1083 (N.D. Cal. 2010); see also Rahman v. Napolitano, 814 F.Supp.2d 1098, 1103 (W.D. Washington 2011).

§ 212.7(a) of this chapter.” 8 C.F.R. § 212.7(a)(1) currently provides that an alien who is inadmissible and eligible for a waiver may apply for a waiver on a form designated by U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) in accordance with the form instructions. A waiver, if granted, applies to those grounds of inadmissibility and “to those crimes, events or incidents specified in the application for waiver.” 8 C.F.R. § 212.7(a). The form instructions for the Form I-601,<sup>2</sup> to which 8 C.F.R. § 212.7(a) refers, further defines the classes of aliens who may file a Form I-601, and the form itself provides a list of each ground of inadmissibility that can be waived, allowing the applicant to check a box next to those grounds for which the applicant seeks a waiver. As there is no statutory basis to waive inadmissibility under section 212(a)(6)(B) of the Act, neither the Form I-601 nor the instructions for Form I-601 list this ground of inadmissibility.

The object of the Form I-601 waiver application, in the context of an application for an immigrant visa filed at a consulate or embassy abroad, is to remove inadmissibility as a basis of ineligibility for that visa. An alien is not required to file a separate waiver application for each ground of inadmissibility, but rather one application that, if approved, extends to all inadmissibilities specified in the application. However, where an alien is subject to an inadmissibility that cannot be waived, approval of the waiver application would not have the intended effect. Thus, no purpose is served in adjudicating such a waiver application, and USCIS may deny it for that reason as a matter of discretion. Cf. Matter of J- F- D-, 10 I&N Dec. 694 (Reg. Comm. 1963).

Counsel addresses the decision of the Field Office Director and asserts that the applicant has shown a reasonable cause for his failure to attend his removal proceeding. As the AAO lacks jurisdiction to review the “reasonable cause” issue, we will not evaluate the facts as presented and find that no purpose is served in adjudicating the applicant’s application for a waiver of inadmissibility pursuant to sections 212(a)(9)(B)(v) and 212(i) of the Act.

Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361, provides that the burden of proof is on the applicant to establish eligibility for the benefit sought. The applicant has failed to overcome the basis of denial of his Form I-601 waiver application.<sup>3</sup>

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.

<sup>3</sup> The AAO notes that the applicant also filed Form I-212 Application for Permission to Reapply for Admission into the United States After Deportation or Removal. The Field Office Director denied the applicant’s Form I-212 in a separate decision, dated May 1, 2012. The applicant submitted only one Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal or Motion. A separate Form I-290B would be required in order for the AAO to review the Field Office Director’s decision to deny the Form I-212.
