DISCUSSION: The waiver application was denied by the Acting Field Office Director, San Salvador. The matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed as the applicant is not inadmissible and the underlying waiver application is unnecessary.

The record reflects that the applicant is a native and citizen of El Salvador who was found to be inadmissible to the United States pursuant to section 212(a)(9)(B)(i)(II) of the Act for having been unlawfully present in the United States for more than one year and seeking readmission within ten years of his last departure from the United States. The applicant seeks a waiver of inadmissibility in order to reside in the United States with his wife and children.

The field office director found that the applicant failed to establish extreme hardship to a qualifying relative and denied the application accordingly. Decision of the Field Office Director, dated April 14, 2010.

Section 212(a)(9) of the Act provides:

(B) ALIENS UNLAWFULLY PRESENT.-

(i) In general.- Any alien (other than an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence) who-

(I) was unlawfully present in the United States for a period of more than 180 days but less than 1 year, voluntarily departed the United States (whether or not pursuant to section 244(e) prior to the commencement of proceedings under section 235(b)(1) or section 240), and again seeks admission within 3 years of the date of such alien's departure or removal, or

(II) has been unlawfully present in the United States for one year or more, and who again seeks admission within 10 years of the date of such alien's departure or removal from the United States, is inadmissible.

The record reflects that the applicant entered the United States without inspection in 1985 and remained until 1988. The record shows the applicant entered the United States again in October 1999 without inspection and was granted Temporary Protected Status (TPS) in December 2001. The record further shows that the applicant departed the United States on December 3, 2004, and was paroled back into the United States on December 28, 2004, in order to continue residence under TPS.

In Matter of Arrabally and Yerrabelly, 25 I&N Dec. 771 (BIA 2012), the Board of Immigration Appeals (BIA) held that an alien who leaves the United States temporarily pursuant to advance parole under section 212(d)(5)(A) of the Act does not make a departure from the United States within the meaning of section 212(a)(9)(B)(i)(II) of the Act. Here, the applicant obtained advance parole, temporarily left the United States pursuant to that grant of advance parole, and was paroled into the United States to resume residence under TPS. In accordance with the BIA's decision in Matter of Arrabally, the applicant did not make a departure from the United States for the purposes of section 212(a)(9)(B)(i)(II) of the Act. Accordingly, the applicant is not inadmissible under section 212(a)(9)(B)(i)(II) of the Act. The applicant's waiver application is thus unnecessary and the appeal will be dismissed.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed as the underlying waiver application is unnecessary.
