Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The waiver application was denied by the Field Office Director, Accra, Ghana. The matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant is a native and citizen of Ghana. She was found to be inadmissible to the United States pursuant to section 212(a)(9)(B)(i)(II) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(B)(i)(II), for having been unlawfully present in the United States for one year or more and seeking admission within ten years of her last departure. She has a U.S. citizen daughter and seeks a waiver of inadmissibility pursuant to section 212(a)(9)(B)(v) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(B)(v) in order to reside in the United States.

The Field Office Director found that the applicant did not have a qualifying relative on which to base a section 212(a)(9)(B)(v) waiver and denied the Application for Waiver of Grounds of Inadmissibility (Form I-601) on March 17, 2010.

On appeal, the applicant's daughter asserts that the applicant's overstay was for medical reasons. Form I-290B, dated April 15, 2010.

Section 212(a)(9)(B) of the Act provides, in pertinent part:

(i) In general. - Any alien (other than an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence) who-

(II) has been unlawfully present in the United States for one year or more, and who again seeks admission within 10 years of the date of such alien's departure or removal from the United States, is inadmissible.

The record reflects that the applicant entered the United States in July 2003 with a B-2 visitor's visa valid for six months. The applicant did not depart the United States when her visa expired but remained until May 2009.

On appeal, the applicant's daughter asserts that the applicant's delayed return to Ghana was the result of a deterioration of her health. While the AAO notes that the record contains medical evidence relating to the applicant, there is no health-related exception under section 212(a)(9)(B) of the Act. As the applicant accrued unlawful presence in excess of one year and is seeking admission to the United States within ten years of her 2009 departure, she is inadmissible pursuant to section 212(a)(9)(B)(i)(II) of the Act.

Section 212(a)(9)(B)(v) of the Act provides for a waiver of section 212(a)(9)(B)(i) inadmissibility as follows:

The Attorney General [now Secretary of Homeland Security] has sole discretion to waive clause (i) in the case of an immigrant who is the spouse or son or daughter of a United States citizen or of an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence, if it is established . . . that the refusal of admission to such immigrant alien would result in extreme hardship to the citizen or lawfully resident spouse or parent of such alien.

A waiver of inadmissibility under section 212(a)(9)(B)(v) of the Act is dependent on a showing that the bar to admission imposes extreme hardship on a qualifying relative, which includes the U.S. citizen or lawfully resident spouse or parent of the applicant. In this case, the applicant has not established that she has a qualifying relative. Although the applicant's U.S. citizen daughter has petitioned for her mother, she is not a qualifying relative for the purposes of this proceeding. As the record contains no evidence that establishes the applicant has a qualifying relative, the AAO finds that she is not eligible for waiver consideration under section 212(a)(9)(B)(v) of the Act.

In proceedings for application for waiver of grounds of inadmissibility under section 212(a)(9)(B)(v) of the Act, the burden of proving eligibility rests with the applicant. See section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, the applicant has not met that burden. Accordingly, the appeal will be dismissed.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
