DISCUSSION: The Director, Nebraska Service Center, denied the waiver application and the matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant is a native and citizen of Guatemala. She was found to be inadmissible to the United States pursuant to section section 212(a)(9)(B)(i)(II) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(B)(i)(II), for having been unlawfully present in the United States for one year or more, and section 212(a)(9)(A) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(A), as an alien who departed the country with a removal order pending. The applicant is the beneficiary of an approved Petition for Alien Relative (Form I-130), who seeks a waiver of inadmissibility in order to reside in the United States with her husband.

When considering the applicant's request for waiver of these grounds of inadmissibility, the service center director determined that the applicant was also inadmissible to the United States pursuant to section 212(a)(6)(B) of the Act for failing to attend removal proceedings and seeking admission to the United States within five years of her subsequent departure. See Decision of Director, October 29, 2012. The application was accordingly denied.

On appeal, counsel asserts that the applicant has demonstrated reasonable cause for her failure to attend removal proceedings. Form I-290B. Notice of Appeal or Motion, November 27, 2012, and Appeal Brief, November 27, 2012.

Section 212(a)(6)(B) of the Act states:

Failure to attend removal proceeding. -Any alien who without reasonable cause fails or refuses to attend or remain in attendance at a proceeding to determine the alien's inadmissibility or deportability and who seeks admission to the United States within 5 years of such alien's subsequent departure or removal is inadmissible.

The record reflects that the applicant was apprehended on August 7, 1998 after entering the United States on July 5, 1998 without inspection, parole, or admission, and that she failed to attend removal proceedings on September 28, 1998 and October 26, 1998. On October 26, 1998, the applicant was ordered removed in absentia after she failed to appear at the second removal hearing. She remained in the United States until August 25, 2011, when she departed the country to apply for an immigrant visa. The applicant has not contested these facts. Rather, the applicant has argued that she had reasonable cause for failing to attend her removal proceedings, and that she is not inadmissible under section 212(a)(6)(B) of the Act as a consequence.

There is no statutory waiver available for inadmissibility arising under section 212(a)(6)(B) of the Act. However, an alien is not inadmissible under section 212(a)(6)(B) of the Act if the alien can establish that there was a "reasonable cause" for failure to attend his or her removal proceeding.

Counsel asserts that the applicant has demonstrated reasonable cause for her failure to attend removal proceedings. However, the instant appeal relates to a Form I-601 application for a waiver of inadmissibility arising under section 212(a)(9)(B)(v) of the Act. Inadmissibility under section

212(a)(6)(B) of the Act, and the "reasonable cause" exception thereto, is not the subject of the Form I-601 and is not within the subject matter jurisdiction of the AAO to adjudicate with this appeal.

The AAO's appellate authority in this case is limited to those matters that are within the scope of the Form I-601 waiver application. The authority to adjudicate appeals is delegated to the AAO by the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) pursuant to the authority vested in her through the Homeland Security Act of 2002, Pub. L. 107-296. See DHS Delegation Number 0150.1 (effective March 1, 2003); see also 8 C.F.R. § 2.1 (2003). The AAO exercises appellate jurisdiction over the matters described at 8 C.F.R. § 103.1(f)(3)(iii) (as in effect on February 28, 2003).¹ The AAO cannot exercise appellate jurisdiction over additional matters on its own volition, or at the request of an applicant or petitioner. As a "statement of general . . . applicability and future effect designed to implement, interpret, or prescribe law or policy," the creation of appeal rights for adjustment application denials meets the definition of an agency "rule" under section 551 of the Administrative Procedure Act. The granting of appeal rights has a "substantive legal effect" because it is creating a new administrative "right," and it involves an economic interest (the fee). "If a rule creates rights, assigns duties, or imposes obligations, the basic tenor of which is not already outlined in the law itself, then it is substantive." La Casa Del Convaleciente v. Sullivan, 965 F.2d 1175, 1178 (1st Cir. 1992). All substantive or legislative rule making requires notice and comment in the Federal Register.

Under 8 C.F.R. § 103.1(f)(3)(iii)(F) (as in effect on February 28, 2003), the AAO has authority to adjudicate "[a]pplications for waiver of certain grounds of excludability [now inadmissibility] under § 212.7(a) of this chapter." 8 C.F.R. § 212.7(a)(1) currently provides that an alien who is inadmissible and eligible for a waiver may apply for a waiver on a form designated by U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) in accordance with the form instructions. A waiver, if granted, applies to those grounds of inadmissibility and "to those crimes, events or incidents specified in the application for waiver." 8 C.F.R. § 212.7(a). The form instructions for the Form I-601,² to which 8 C.F.R. § 212.7(a) refers, further defines the classes of aliens who may file a Form I-601, and the form itself provides a list of each ground of inadmissibility that can be waived, allowing the applicant to check a box next to those grounds for which the applicant seeks a waiver. As there is no statutory basis to waive inadmissibility under section 212(a)(6)(B) of the Act, neither the Form I-601 nor the instructions for Form I-601 list this ground of inadmissibility.

The object of the Form I-601 waiver application, in the context of an application for an immigrant visa filed at a consulate or embassy abroad, is to remove inadmissibility as a basis of ineligibility for that visa. An alien is not required to file a separate waiver application for each ground of inadmissibility, but rather one application that, if approved, extends to all inadmissibilities specified in the application. However, where an alien is subject to an inadmissibility that cannot be waived, approval of the waiver application would not have the intended effect. Thus, no purpose is served in adjudicating such a waiver application, and USCIS may deny it for that reason as a matter of discretion. Cf. Matter of J- F- D-, 10 I&N Dec. 694 (Reg. Comm. 1963).

Counsel addresses the decision of the service center director and asserts that the applicant has shown a reasonable cause for her failure to attend her removal proceeding. As the AAO lacks jurisdiction to review the “reasonable cause” issue, we will not evaluate the facts as presented and, therefore, find that no purpose is served in adjudicating the applicant’s application for a waiver of inadmissibility pursuant to section 212(a)(9)(B)(v) of the Act.

In application proceedings, it is the applicant's burden to establish eligibility for the immigration benefit sought. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, that burden has not been met.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
