DISCUSSION: The application was denied by the District Director, Rome, Italy, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be summarily dismissed.

At the outset, it is noted that the applicant erroneously applied for an advance parole document, as indicated on the Form I-131, Application for Travel Document. For the purposes of this proceeding, however, the application will be considered as an application for a refugee travel document, in accordance with the June 21, 2010 decision of the District Director in Rome, Italy.

The applicant is a native and citizen of Iran, who seeks to obtain a refugee travel document pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 223.1(b). The district director denied the application after determining that it was filed after the applicant had departed from the United States and, at the time of filing, the applicant had been outside the United States for a continuous period of 365 days or more.

On appeal, the applicant states, in part, that she thought her late father had taken care of all the necessary documents and arrangements.

The applicant's statement is noted. She, however, does not provide a reason for the appeal on the Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal or Motion, a statement or brief that alleges any error of law or fact on the part of the director, or any other discussion regarding how the evidence submitted on appeal addresses the director's reason for denying the petition.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.3(a)(1)(v) states, in pertinent part:

An officer to whom an appeal is taken shall summarily dismiss any appeal when the party concerned fails to identify specifically any erroneous conclusion of law or statement of fact for the appeal.

Inasmuch as the petitioner has failed to specifically identify any erroneous conclusion of law or statement of fact as a basis for the appeal, the regulations mandate the summary dismissal of the appeal.

ORDER: The appeal is summarily dismissed.
