Acting Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application for temporary resident status pursuant to the terms of the settlement agreements reached in Catholic Social Services, Inc., et al., v. Ridge, et al., CIV. NO. S-86-1343-LKK (E.D. Cal) January 23, 2004, and Felicity Mary Newman, et al., v. United States Immigration and Citizenship Services, et al., CIV. NO. 87-4757-WDK (C.D. Cal) February 17, 2004 (CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements), was denied by the Director, Los Angeles. The decision is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant submitted a Form I-687, Application for Status as a Temporary Resident under Section 245A of the Immigration and Nationality Act (Act), and a Form I-687 Supplement, CSS/Newman Class Membership Worksheet. The director denied the application, finding that the applicant had not provided credible evidence to establish that he had entered the United States prior to January 1, 1982, and thereafter continuously resided in the United States in an unlawful status for the duration of the requisite period.

On appeal, counsel states that the documentation submitted by the applicant demonstrates his continuous unlawful presence in the United States before January 1, 1982 through 1987, making him eligible for adjustment of status under section 245A of the Act.

An applicant for temporary resident status must establish entry into the United States before January 1, 1982, and continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since such date and through the date the application is filed. Section 245A(a)(2) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(2). The applicant must also establish that he or she has been continuously physically present in the United States since November 6, 1986. Section 245(a)(3) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(3). The regulations clarify that the applicant must have been physically present in the United States from November 6, 1986 until the date of filing the application. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b)(1).

For purposes of establishing residence and physical presence under the CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements, the term “until the date of filing” in 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b)(1) means until the date the applicant attempted to file a completed Form I-687 application and fee or was caused not to timely file during the original legalization application period of May 5, 1987 to May 4, 1988. CSS Settlement Agreement paragraph 11 at page 6; Newman Settlement Agreement paragraph 11 at page 10. The applicant has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that he or she has resided in the United States for the requisite period, is admissible to the United States under the provisions of section 245A of the Act, and is otherwise eligible for adjustment of status. The inference to be drawn from the documentation provided shall depend on the extent of the documentation, its credibility and amenability to verification. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5). To meet his or her burden of proof, an applicant must provide evidence of eligibility apart from his or her own testimony, and the sufficiency of all evidence produced by the applicant will be judged according to its probative value and credibility. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(6).

Although the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(3) provides an illustrative list of contemporaneous documents that an applicant may submit in support of his or her claim of continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since prior to January 1, 1982, the submission of any other relevant document is permitted pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(3)(vi)(L).

The “preponderance of the evidence” standard requires that the evidence demonstrate that the applicant's claim is “probably true,” where the determination of “truth” is made based on the factual circumstances of each individual case. Matter of E-M-, 20 I&N Dec. 77, 79-80 (Comm. 1989). In evaluating the evidence, Matter of E-M- also stated that “[t]ruth is to be determined not by the quantity of evidence alone but by its quality.” Id. at 80. Thus, in adjudicating the application pursuant to the preponderance of the evidence standard, the director must examine each piece of evidence for relevance, probative value, and credibility, both individually and within the context of the totality of the evidence, to determine whether the fact to be proven is probably true.

Even if the director has some doubt as to the truth, if the petitioner submits relevant, probative, and credible evidence that leads the director to believe that the claim is “probably true” or “more likely than not,” the applicant or petitioner has satisfied the standard of proof. See U.S. v. Cardozo-Fonseca, 480 U.S. 421, 431 (1987) (defining “more likely than not” as a greater than 50 percent probability of something occurring). If the director can articulate a material doubt, it is appropriate for the director to either request additional evidence or, if that doubt leads the director to believe that the claim is probably not true, deny the application or petition.

At issue in this proceeding is whether the applicant submitted sufficient credible evidence to meet his burden of establishing that he (1) entered the United States before January 1, 1982 and (2) has continuously resided in the United States in an unlawful status for the requisite period of time. The documentation that the applicant submits in support of his claim to have arrived in the United States before January 1, 1982 and lived in an unlawful status during the requisite period consists of affidavits of relationship written by friends and family members and other evidence. The AAO will consider all of the evidence relevant to the requisite period to determine the applicant’s eligibility; however, the AAO will not quote each witness statement in this decision.

The United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) adjudicating officer’s notes reveal that during the Form I-687 application interview on February 28, 2007, the applicant claims to have entered the United States in 1981 with his dad using a visitor’s visa. The officer’s notes also state that the applicant attempted to file for legalization in 1987 in Hawaii when he was accompanied by his guardian to the USCIS office.

The applicant states in his sworn statement that he entered the United States in March 1981.

The record also contains a copy of the applicant’s passport that was issued at Nairobi, Kenya on January 13, 1998. The applicant obtained a student visa to the United States on January 14, 1998. A copy of the Form I-94 Departure Record establishes that the applicant entered the United States legally as an F-1, student, on January 26, 1998 at Los Angeles, California. The applicant does not submit a copy of his previous passport or other documentary evidence that he entered the United States prior to January 1, 1982.

The applicant submitted several affidavits from friends and family members to establish his initial entry and residence in the United States during the requisite periods. All of the affiants state that they first met the applicant in Kenya either after his birth, before 1982 or between 1982 through 1988. The applicant states that he returned to Kenya in September 1987 and remained until reentering the United States on January 26, 1998 as a student. Since all of the affiants state that they worked and resided in Kenya during the requisite period, they cannot attest to the applicant's continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since before January 1, 1982 and throughout the requisite period. Some of the affiants claim that they knew the applicant was in the United States because he told them. Therefore, the affiants' knowledge of the applicant's entry into the United States was not based on the affiants' personal knowledge of the applicant's whereabouts. The affiants also claim that they have knowledge of the applicant's residence in the United States because they accompanied the applicant to the airport when he was leaving for the United States. The affiants have provided photographs of themselves with the applicant at the airport. However, the applicant claims to have entered the United States in March of 1981 when he was nine years old. In the photographs submitted with the affidavits it is obvious that the applicant is much older than nine years old. The affiants also state that they know of the applicant's presence in the United States during the requisite period because of the telephone communication and written correspondence they had between themselves and the applicant. However, the affiants have not provided any letters, cards, telephone bills, etc., to substantiate their statements. The affidavits have not confirmed the applicant's residency in the United States prior to January 1, 1982 and throughout the requisite period.

In the instant case, the applicant has failed to submit sufficient evidence to overcome the director's denial. The insufficiency of the evidence calls into question the credibility of the applicant's claim of continuous unlawful residence in the United States throughout the requisite period. The evidence submitted is insufficient to establish the applicant's entry into the United States before January 1, 1982, and continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since such date and through the requisite period. The applicant has not established his continuous residence in the United States since prior to January 1, 1982 and throughout the requisite period.

Therefore, based upon the foregoing, the applicant has failed to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that he entered the United States before January 1, 1982 and continuously resided in an unlawful status in the United States for the requisite period as required under both 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5) and Matter of E- M--, supra. The applicant is, therefore, ineligible for temporary resident status under section 245A of the Act on this basis.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. This decision constitutes a final notice of ineligibility.
