Acting Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application for temporary resident status pursuant to the terms of the settlement agreements reached in Catholic Social Services, Inc., et al., v. Ridge, et al., CIV. NO. S-86-1343-LKK (E.D. Cal) January 23, 2004, and Felicity Mary Newman, et al., v. United States Immigration and Citizenship Services, et al., CIV. NO. 87-4757-WDK (C.D. Cal) February 17, 2004, (CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements) was denied by the Director, San Diego, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant submitted a Form I-687, Application for Status as a Temporary Resident under Section 245A of the Immigration and Nationality Act (Act), and a Form I-687 Supplement, CSS/Newman Class Membership Worksheet. The director denied the application after determining that the applicant had not established by a preponderance of the evidence that he had continuously resided in the United States in an unlawful status for the duration of the requisite period. The director denied the application, finding that the applicant had not met his burden of proof and was, therefore, not eligible to adjust to temporary resident status pursuant to the terms of the CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements.

On appeal, the applicant asserts that the affidavits submitted are credible and contain sufficient evidence to establish his continuous residence in the United States during the requisite period. The applicant does not submit any new evidence on appeal.

An applicant for temporary resident status must establish entry into the United States before January 1, 1982, and continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since such date and through the date the application is filed. Section 245A(a)(2) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(2). The applicant must also establish that he or she has been continuously physically present in the United States since November 6, 1986. Section 245A(a)(3) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(3). The regulations clarify that the applicant must have been physically present in the United States from November 6, 1986 until the date of filing the application. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b).

For purposes of establishing residence and physical presence under the CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements, the term "until the date of filing" in 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b) means until the date the applicant attempted to file a completed Form I-687 application and fee or was caused not to timely file during the original legalization application period of May 5, 1987 to May 4, 1988. See CSS Settlement Agreement paragraph 11 at page 6; Newman Settlement Agreement paragraph 11 at page 10.

As noted above, the applicant must establish that he was continuously physically present in the United States from November 6, 1986 through May 4, 1988, or until he filed or attempted to file the Form I-687 application. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b)(1). Any absence from the United States during this time period must be brief, casual and innocent.

The applicant has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that he or she has resided in the United States for the requisite period, is admissible to the United States under the provisions of section 245A of the Act, and is otherwise eligible for adjustment of status. The inference to be drawn from the documentation provided shall depend on the extent of the documentation, its credibility and amenability to verification. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5).

Although the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(3) provides an illustrative list of contemporaneous documents that an applicant may submit in support of his or her claim of continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since prior to January 1, 1982, the submission of any other relevant document is permitted pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(3)(vi)(L).

The “preponderance of the evidence” standard requires that the evidence demonstrate that the applicant's claim is “probably true,” where the determination of “truth” is made based on the factual circumstances of each individual case. Matter of E-M-, 20 I&N Dec. 77, 79-80 (Comm. 1989). In evaluating the evidence, Matter of E-M- also stated that “[t]ruth is to be determined not by the quantity of evidence alone but by its quality.” Id. at 80. Thus, in adjudicating the application pursuant to the preponderance of the evidence standard, the director must examine each piece of evidence for relevance, probative value, and credibility, both individually and within the context of the totality of the evidence, to determine whether the fact to be proven is probably true.

Even if the director has some doubt as to the truth, if the applicant submits relevant, probative, and credible evidence that leads the director to believe that the claim is “probably true” or “more likely than not,” the applicant or petitioner has satisfied the standard of proof. See U.S. v. Cardozo-Fonseca, 480 U.S. 421, 431 (1987) (defining “more likely than not” as a greater than 50 percent probability of something occurring). If the director can articulate a material doubt, it is appropriate for the director to either request additional evidence or, if that doubt leads the director to believe that the claim is probably not true, deny the application or petition.

At issue in this proceeding is whether the applicant has submitted sufficient credible evidence to meet his burden of establishing continuous unlawful residence and continuous physical presence in the United States throughout the requisite period. Here, the applicant has failed to meet this burden.

The applicant submitted the following evidence:

- An affidavit from [REDACTED] who stated that he met the applicant in 1981 when he went to visit his uncle who lived in the same area as the applicant. He stated that he lost contact with the applicant but socialized with him in 1988. He also stated in his affidavit that he entered the United States in 1988. The affiant's statements are contradictory and he has failed to specify the applicant's place of residence during the requisite period.

- An affidavit from [REDACTED] who stated that he met the applicant in 1982 when the applicant came to the carpenter store, where he was employed, looking for work. He also stated that they became friends and that they would meet at various social gatherings.
- An affidavit from [REDACTED] who stated that she met the applicant at her cousin's home in 1982, when he told her of his plans to come to the United States. She also stated that she would see the applicant at family gatherings. The affiant failed to specify who her cousin is or the cousin's place of residence.
- An affidavit from [REDACTED] who stated that he met the applicant in 1985 when the applicant was in charge of landscaping work in the area where he and his sister lived. He also stated that he would see the applicant occasionally, when he would do landscaping work.

The affiants fail to establish the applicant's continuous unlawful residence in the United States for the duration of the requisite period. As stated previously, the evidence must be evaluated not by the quantity of evidence alone but by its quality; an applicant must provide evidence of eligibility apart from his or her own testimony; and the sufficiency of all evidence produced by the applicant will be judged according to its probative value and credibility.

Although the affiants state that they have known the applicant since for some 20 years, the statements do not supply enough details to lend credibility to a longstanding relationship with the applicant. The affiants fail to specify the applicant's whereabouts or the circumstances of his residency in the United States during the requisite period. Given these deficiencies, these attestations have minimal probative value in supporting the applicant's claims that he entered the United States prior to January 1, 1982, and resided in the country throughout the requisite period.

None of the affiants' statements provide concrete information, specific to the applicant and generated by the asserted associations with him, which would reflect and corroborate the extent of those associations and demonstrate that they were a sufficient basis for reliable knowledge about the applicant's residence during the time addressed in the affidavits. To be considered probative and credible, witness affidavits must do more than simply state that an affiant knows an applicant and that the applicant has lived in the United States for a specific time period. Their content must include sufficient detail from a claimed relationship to indicate that the relationship probably did exist and that the witness does, by virtue of that relationship, have knowledge of the facts alleged. Upon review, the AAO finds that individually and collectively, the affiants' statements do not indicate that their assertions are probably true. Therefore, they have little probative value.

In the instant case, the applicant has failed to provide sufficient credible and probative evidence to establish his continuous unlawful residence in the United States since prior to January 1, 1982, and throughout the requisite period. He has failed to overcome the director's basis for denial.

The record of proceeding shows that the applicant was arrested on March 19, 2005, and charged on three counts: driving under the influence of alcohol/drugs, driving while having a measurable blood alcohol level, and unlicensed driver. On May 3, 2005, he was convicted of violating section 23152(b) of the California Vehicle Code, driving a vehicle while having 0.08 percent and more, by weight, of alcohol in his blood, by the Superior Court of San Diego County in California. ([REDACTED]). This single misdemeanor conviction does not render the applicant ineligible for temporary resident status.

The absence of sufficiently detailed documentation to corroborate the applicant's claim of continuous residence for the entire requisite period seriously detracts from the credibility of this claim. Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5), the inference to be drawn from the documentation provided shall depend on the extent of the documentation, its credibility and amenability to verification. Given the applicant's reliance on documentation that is lacking in detail and that has little probative value, it is concluded that he has failed to establish continuous residence in an unlawful status in the United States for the requisite periods under both 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5) and Matter of E- M--, supra. The applicant is, therefore, ineligible for temporary resident status under section 245A of the Act on this basis.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. This decision constitutes a final notice of ineligibility.
