Acting Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application for temporary resident status pursuant to the terms of the settlement agreements reached in Catholic Social Services, Inc., et al., v. Ridge, et al., CIV. NO. S-86-1343-LKK (E.D. Cal) January 23, 2004, and Felicity Mary Newman, et al., v. United States Immigration and Citizenship Services, et al., CIV. NO. 87-4757-WDK (C.D. Cal) February 17, 2004, (CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements) was denied by the Director, New York, New York, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant submitted a Form I-687, Application for Status as a Temporary Resident under Section 245A of the Immigration and Nationality Act (Act), and a Form I-687 Supplement, CSS/Newman Class Membership Worksheet. The director determined that the applicant had not established by a preponderance of the evidence that he had continuously resided in the United States in an unlawful status for the duration of the requisite period. The director denied the application, finding that the applicant had not met his burden of proof and was, therefore, not eligible to adjust to temporary resident status pursuant to the terms of the CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements.

On appeal, the applicant puts forth a brief disputing the director's findings. The applicant asserts that he has submitted sufficient evidence to establish continuous residence in the United States during the period in question.

An applicant for temporary resident status must establish entry into the United States before January 1, 1982, and continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since such date and through the date the application is filed. Section 245A(a)(2) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(2).

The applicant must also establish that he or she has been continuously physically present in the United States since November 6, 1986. Section 245A(a)(3) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(3). The regulations clarify that the applicant must have been physically present in the United States from November 6, 1986 until the date of filing the application. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b)(1).

For purposes of establishing residence and presence in accordance with the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b), "until the date of filing" shall mean until the date the alien attempted to file a completed Form I-687 application and fee or was caused not to timely file, consistent with the class member definitions set forth in the CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements. Paragraph 11, page 6 of the CSS Settlement Agreement and paragraph 11, page 10 of the Newman Settlement Agreement.

An alien applying for adjustment of status has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that he or she has resided in the United States for the requisite periods, is admissible to the United States under the provisions of section 245A of the Act, and is otherwise eligible for adjustment of status. The inference to be drawn from the documentation provided shall depend on the extent of the documentation, its credibility and amenability to verification. See 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5).

Although the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(3) provides an illustrative list of contemporaneous documents that an applicant may submit in support of his or her claim of continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since prior to January 1, 1982, the submission of any other relevant document including affidavits is permitted pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(3)(vi)(L).

The “preponderance of the evidence” standard requires that the evidence demonstrate that the applicant's claim is “probably true,” where the determination of “truth” is made based on the factual circumstances of each individual case. Matter of E-M-, 20 I&N Dec. 77, 79-80 (Comm. 1989). In evaluating the evidence, Matter of E-M- also stated that “[t]ruth is to be determined not by the quantity of evidence alone but by its quality.” Id. Thus, in adjudicating the application pursuant to the preponderance of the evidence standard, the director must examine each piece of evidence for relevance, probative value, and credibility, both individually and within the context of the totality of the evidence, to determine whether the fact to be proven is probably true.

Even if the director has some doubt as to the truth, if the applicant submits relevant, probative, and credible evidence that leads the director to believe that the claim is “probably true” or “more likely than not,” the applicant or petitioner has satisfied the standard of proof. See U.S. v. Cardozo-Fonseca, 480 U.S. 421 (1987) (defining “more likely than not” as a greater than 50 percent probability of something occurring). If the director can articulate a material doubt, it is appropriate for the director to either request additional evidence or, if that doubt leads the director to believe that the claim is probably not true, deny the application or petition.

At the time the applicant filed his Form I-687 application, he provided no documentation to establish continuous residence and physical presence in the United States during the requisite period. In response to a Notice of Intent to Deny dated August 6, 2007, the applicant, in an attempt to establish continuous unlawful residence since prior to January 1, 1982 through the date he attempted to file his application, submitted:

- An affidavit from [REDACTED] who indicated that he first met the applicant at Masjid al-Rahman in Jersey City in December 1981. The affiant attested to the applicant's residence at [REDACTED] during the requisite period and to the applicant's absence from the United States in 1987. The affiant indicated that he visited the applicant at his residence on several occasions.
- An affidavit from [REDACTED] who indicated that he met the applicant in the middle of 1983 at a party in Brooklyn, New York. The affiant indicated that the applicant had informed him of his 1981 entry through the Canadian border. The affiant attested to the applicant's residence on [REDACTED] in Brooklyn, New York during the requisite period and to his 1987 absence from the United States.

At the time of his interview, the applicant indicated that he entered the United States in December 1981 through the Canadian border with his father.

The director determined that the affidavits submitted did not contain sufficient information and corroborative documents and, therefore, lacked probative value. The director noted that at the time of the applicant's entry, he was only 12 years of age, but provided no evidence of an adult responsible for his care and financial support. The director noted that neither affiant mentioned in their affidavits the name of the individual who was responsible for the applicant's well-being during the requisite period. The director concluded that the applicant had failed to submit sufficient credible evidence establishing his continuous residence in the United States since prior to January 1, 1982, and, therefore, denied the application on October 26, 2007.

The AAO maintains plenary power to review each appeal on a de novo basis. 5 U.S.C. 557(b) ("On appeal from or review of the initial decision, the agency has all the powers which it would have in making the initial decision except as it may limit the issues on notice or by rule."); see also, Janka v. U.S. Dept. of Transp., NTSB, 925 F.2d 1147, 1149 (9th Cir. 1991). The AAO's de novo authority has been long recognized by the federal courts. See, e.g. Dor v. INS, 891 F.2d 997, 1002 n. 9 (2d Cir. 1989).

The statements issued by the applicant have been considered. However, the AAO does not view the affidavits discussed above as substantive enough to support a finding that the applicant entered the United States prior to January 1, 1982, and resided since that date through the date he attempted to file his application.

Contrary to the applicant's assertion, the director did consider the affidavits from [REDACTED] and Mr. [REDACTED]. In her decision, the director noted that the affidavits lacked credibility as neither affiant "addressed the matter of a responsible adult whom looked after your [the applicant's] well being."

While an application should not be denied solely because the applicant has only submitted affidavits to establish continuous residence in the United States for the duration of the requisite period, the submission of affidavits alone will not always be sufficient to support the applicant's claim. The sufficiency of all evidence produced by the applicant will be judged according to its probative value and credibility. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(6). Casting doubt to the applicant's claim that he resided in the United States continuously during the entire requisite period is the fact that the applicant has not addressed the director's findings regarding his failure to list the name of and provide documentation from the individual who was responsible for his care and financial support during the period in question.

Likewise, the affidavits from the affiants do not provide detailed accounts of an ongoing association establishing a relationship under which the affiants could be reasonably expected to have personal knowledge of the applicant's residence, activities and whereabouts during the requisite period. To be considered probative, an affiant's affidavit must do more than simply state that an affiant knows an applicant and that the applicant has lived in the United States for a specific time period. The affidavit must contain sufficient detail, generated by the asserted contact with the applicant, to establish that a relationship does in fact exist, how the relationship was established and sustained, and that the affiant does, by virtue of that relationship, have knowledge of the facts asserted. The affidavits from the affiants do not provide sufficient detail to establish that they had an ongoing relationship with the applicant that would permit them to know of the applicant's whereabouts and activities throughout the requisite period.

As the applicant was a minor, it is conceivable that he would have been residing with an adult during the period in question. The applicant's failure to provide the name of the individual he resided with along with an attestation from said individual raises serious questions about the credibility of his claim and the authenticity of the affidavits submitted.

The absence of sufficiently detailed documentation to corroborate the applicant's claim of continuous residence for the entire requisite period seriously detracts from the credibility of his claim. Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5), the inference to be drawn from the documentation provided shall depend on the extent of the documentation, its credibility and amenability to verification. Given the applicant's reliance upon documents with minimal probative value, it is concluded that the evidence submitted fails to establish continuous residence in an unlawful status in the United States during the requisite period.

Therefore, based upon the foregoing, the applicant has failed to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that he has continuously resided in an unlawful status in the United States for the requisite period as required under both 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5) and Matter of E- M--, supra. The applicant is, therefore, ineligible for temporary resident status under section 245A of the Act on this basis.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. This decision constitutes a final notice of ineligibility.
