DISCUSSION: The application for temporary resident status pursuant to the terms of the settlement agreements reached in Catholic Social Services, Inc., et al., v. Ridge, et al., CIV. NO. S-86-1343-LKK (E.D. Cal) January 23, 2004, and Felicity Mary Newman, et al., v. United States Immigration and Citizenship Services, et al., CIV. NO. 87-4757-WDK (C.D. Cal) February 17, 2004 (CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements) was denied by the District Director (director), New York, New York. The decision is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant submitted a Form I-687, Application for Status as a Temporary Resident under Section 245A of the Immigration and Nationality Act (Act), and a Form I-687 Supplement, CSS/Newman Class Membership Worksheet on May 24, 2005. On March 25, 2007, the director erroneously denied the I-687 application, finding that the applicant abandoned the application, pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(13), by failing to appear for a scheduled interview on March 1, 2006.<sup>1</sup> Because the director erred in denying the application based on abandonment, on September 29, 2010, the director, National Benefits Center issued a notice advising the applicant of the right to appeal the decision to the AAO.

On May 15, 2012, the AAO withdrew the decision of the director and considered the application on a de novo basis, evaluating the sufficiency of the evidence in the record, according to its probative value and credibility as required by the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(6).<sup>2</sup> Based on the evaluation, on May 15, 2012, the AAO issued a Notice of Intent to Deny (NOID), notifying the applicant of its intention to deny his application because the applicant failed to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that he has resided in the United States in an unlawful status for the duration of the requisite period. The applicant was granted twenty-one (21) days to submit rebuttal evidence.

The applicant failed to submit rebuttal evidence. The AAO will deem the record complete and will adjudicate the applicant based on the evidence of record.

An applicant for temporary resident status must establish entry into the United States before January 1, 1982, and continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since such date and through the date the application is filed. Section 245A(a)(2) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(2). The applicant must also establish that he or she has been continuously physically present in the United States since November 6, 1986. Section 245A(a)(3) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(3). The regulations clarify that the applicant must have been physically present in the United States from November 6, 1986 until the date of filing the application. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b).

<sup>1</sup> On December 14, 2009, the United States District Court for the Eastern District of California ruled that United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) may not apply its abandonment regulation, 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(13), in adjudicating legalization applications filed by CSS class members. See, CSS v. Michael Chertoff, Case 2:86-cv-01343-LKK-JFM.

<sup>2</sup> The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. The AAO's de novo authority is well recognized by the federal courts. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004).

For purposes of establishing residence and physical presence under the CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements, the term "until the date of filing" in 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b) means until the date the applicant attempted to file a completed Form I-687 application and fee or was caused not to timely file during the original legalization application period of May 5, 1987 to May 4, 1988. CSS Settlement Agreement paragraph 11 at page 6; Newman Settlement Agreement paragraph 11 at page 10.

The applicant has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that he or she has resided in the United States for the requisite periods, is admissible to the United States under the provisions of section 245A of the Act, and is otherwise eligible for adjustment of status. The inference to be drawn from the documentation provided shall depend on the extent of the documentation, its credibility and amenability to verification. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5).

Although the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(3) provides an illustrative list of contemporaneous documents that an applicant may submit in support of his or her claim of continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since prior to January 1, 1982, the submission of any other relevant document is permitted pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(3)(vi)(L). To meet his or her burden of proof, an applicant must provide evidence of eligibility apart from the applicant's own testimony, and the sufficiency of all evidence produced by the applicant will be judged according to its probative value and credibility. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(6).

The "preponderance of the evidence" standard requires that the evidence demonstrate that the applicant's claim is "probably true," where the determination of "truth" is made based on the factual circumstances of each individual case. Matter of E-M-, 20 I&N Dec. 77, 79-80 (Comm. 1989). In evaluating the evidence, Matter of E-M- also stated that "[t]ruth is to be determined not by the quantity of evidence alone but by its quality." Id. Thus, in adjudicating the application pursuant to the preponderance of the evidence standard, the director must examine each piece of evidence for relevance, probative value, and credibility, both individually and within the context of the totality of the evidence, to determine whether the fact to be proven is probably true. See 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(6). The weight to be given any affidavit depends on the totality of the circumstances, and a number of factors must be considered. More weight will be given to an affidavit in which the affiant indicates personal knowledge of the applicant's whereabouts during the time period in question rather than a fill-in-the-blank affidavit that provides generic information. The regulations provide specific guidance on the sufficiency of documentation when proving residence through evidence of past employment or attestations by churches or other organizations. 8 C.F.R. §§ 245a.2(d)(3)(i) and (v).

Even if the director has some doubt as to the truth, if the applicant submits relevant, probative, and credible evidence that leads the director to believe that the claim is "probably true" or "more likely than not," the applicant or petitioner has satisfied the standard of proof. See U.S. v. Cardozo-Fonseca, 480 U.S. 421 (1987) (defining "more likely than not" as a greater than 50 percent probability of something occurring). If the director can articulate a material doubt, it is appropriate for the director to either request additional evidence or, if that doubt leads the director to believe that the claim is probably not true, deny the application or petition.

The issue in this proceeding is whether the applicant has established that he (1) entered the United States before January 1, 1982 and (2) has continuously resided in the United States in an unlawful status for the requisite period of time.

At the time of completing his Form I-687 application, the applicant indicated that he has been residing in the United States since October 12, 1981, and he traveled outside the United States once during the requisite period, in 1987. The applicant also indicated that he resided at [REDACTED] from October 1981 to December 1996, and that he worked as a construction helper from December 1981 to May 2005, but he did not provide the name of any of his employers.

In support of his application, the applicant submitted fill-in-the-blank affidavits from individuals who, claim to have personal knowledge of the applicant's residence in the United States since October 1981. The fill-in-the-blank affidavits are general in nature, stating that they have personal knowledge of the applicant's residence in the United States for all, or a portion of the requisite period. The AAO notes that although the witnesses claim to have personal knowledge of the applicant's residence in the United States during the requisite period, their statements do not provide concrete information, specific enough to the applicant and generated by the asserted associations with him, which would reflect and corroborate the extent of those associations, and demonstrate that they were a sufficient basis for reliable knowledge about the applicant's residence in the United States during the requisite period. [REDACTED] stated that the applicant resided in Brooklyn from October 1981 to December 1996. They failed to state the basis of their knowledge. [REDACTED] wrote that he met the applicant at his home on October 13, 1981.

To be considered probative and credible, witness statements must do more than simply state that a witness knows an applicant and that the applicant has lived in the United States for a specific period. Their content must include sufficient detail from a claimed relationship to indicate that it probably did exist and that the witness, by virtue of that relationship, does have knowledge of the facts alleged. For instance, the witnesses do not state how they date their initial meeting with the applicant in the United States, or specify social gatherings, other special occasions, or social events where they saw and communicated with the applicant during the requisite period. The witnesses also do not state how frequently they had contact with the applicant during the requisite period. The witnesses do not provide sufficient details that would lend credence to their claimed knowledge of the applicant's residence in the United States during the requisite period. The witnesses do not provide sufficient details that would lend credence to their claimed knowledge of the applicant's residence in the United States during the requisite period. For these reasons, the AAO finds that the witness statements do not indicate that their associations are probably true.

In addition, some of the affiants provided contradictory information about the applicant's residence in the United States. For example, affiants [REDACTED] claim they have personal knowledge that the applicant resided at [REDACTED] from October 1981 to December 1996. However, the applicant indicated on the Form I-687 that he resided at [REDACTED] during the same period. This inconsistency calls into serious question the credibility and the reliability of the affidavits as evidence of the applicant's residence in the United States during the requisite period. It is incumbent upon the applicant to resolve any inconsistency in the record by independent objective evidence pointing to where the truth lies. Doubt cast on any aspect of the applicant's proof may lead to a reevaluation of the reliability and sufficiency of the remaining evidence offered in support of the application. Matter of Ho, 19 I & N Dec. 582, 591-592 (BIA).

The AAO requested the applicant to provide documentation to establish the affiant's legal status in the United States and their presence in the United States during the requisite period. The applicant failed to provide the requested document or provide a reasonable explanation as to why he is unable to provide the requested document. As a result of the substantive deficiencies and the contradiction noted above, the AAO determines that the affidavits have little probative value as evidence of the applicant's continuous unlawful residence in the United States from before January 1, 1982 through the requisite period.

Based on the AAO's review of all the evidence of record, we find that the applicant has failed to overcome the evidentiary deficiencies and inconsistencies noted in the NOID. Therefore, upon a de novo review of all of the evidence in the record, the AAO finds that the applicant has failed to establish that he has continuously resided in the United States in an unlawful status for the duration of the requisite period.

Accordingly, the applicant has failed to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that he entered the United States before January 1, 1982 and continuously resided in an unlawful status in the United States for the requisite period as required under both 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5) and Matter of E- M--, supra. The applicant is, therefore, ineligible for temporary resident status under section 245A of the Act on this basis.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. This decision constitutes a final notice of ineligibility.
