

Identifying data deleted to prevent clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy
PUBLIC COPY

U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services

MI

FILE: [REDACTED]
[WAC 05 148 70786]

OFFICE: CALIFORNIA SERVICE CENTER

Date: MAY 30 2006

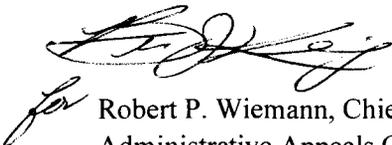

IN RE: Applicant: [REDACTED]

APPLICATION: Application for Temporary Protected Status under Section 244 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1254

ON BEHALF OF APPLICANT: Self-represented

INSTRUCTIONS:

This is the decision of the Administrative Appeals Office in your case. All documents have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Any further inquiry must be made to that office.

for Robert P. Wiemann, Chief Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application was denied by the Director, California Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant is a citizen of Honduras who is seeking Temporary Protected Status (TPS) under section 244 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1254.

The record reveals that on September 16, 2003, the applicant filed an earlier TPS application under Citizenship and Immigration (CIS) receipt number SRC 03 260 53398. The Texas Service Center (TSC) Director denied that application on February 12, 2004, because the applicant failed to establish her eligibility for late initial registration. A subsequent appeal was then dismissed on January 24, 2005, after the Director (now Chief) of the AAO determined that the applicant had failed to establish her: eligibility for late initial registration; continuous residence in the United States since December 30, 1998; and, continuous physical presence in the United States since January 5, 1999.

The applicant filed a motion to reopen the decision of the AAO Director. The TSC Director indicated that the motion to reopen had been received on March 2, 2005, and determined that the motion was untimely filed. The TSC Director also determined that the motion did not address the applicant's eligibility for late initial registration, did not meet the requirements of a motion to reopen, and, therefore, was dismissed on March 3, 2005. It is noted that, in fact, the motion was date-stamped on February 24, 2005, and was timely received as a motion to reopen the decision of the AAO Director. The AAO Director concurs that the February 24, 2005, motion did not address the applicant's eligibility for late registration and, therefore, was properly dismissed. On April 11, 2005, the applicant filed another motion to reopen the decision that is being dismissed under separate cover.

The applicant filed the current Form I-821, Application for Temporary Protected Status, on February 25, 2005, and indicated that she was re-registering for TPS.

The director denied the re-registration application on July 23, 2005, because the applicant's initial TPS application had been denied and the applicant was not eligible to apply for re-registration for TPS.

On appeal, the applicant states that she has been living in the United States since 1998, and would like to continue working here in order to support her family. In support of the appeal, the applicant submits additional evidence in an attempt to establish her continuous residence and continuous physical presence in the United States, consisting of photocopies of: insurance payments and various invoices in her name dated between 2003 through 2005; and, various generic receipts dated in 2000, 2001, 2004, and 2005.

If the applicant is filing an application as a re-registration, a previous grant of TPS must have been afforded the applicant, as only those individuals who are granted TPS must register annually. In addition, the applicant must continue to maintain the conditions of eligibility. 8 C.F.R. § 244.17.

In this case, the applicant has not previously been granted TPS. Therefore, she is not eligible to re-register for TPS. Consequently, the director's decision to deny the application will be affirmed.

It is noted that the director's decision does not explore the possibility that the applicant was attempting to file a late initial application for TPS instead of an annual re-registration.

Section 244(c) of the Act, and the related regulations in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2, provide that an applicant may apply for TPS during the initial registration period, or:

- (f) (2) During any subsequent extension of such designation if at the time of the initial registration period:
 - (i) The applicant is a nonimmigrant or has been granted voluntary departure status or any relief from removal;
 - (ii) The applicant has an application for change of status, adjustment of status, asylum, voluntary departure, or any relief from removal which is pending or subject to further review or appeal;
 - (iii) The applicant is a parolee or has a pending request for reparole; or
 - (iv) The applicant is a spouse or child of an alien currently eligible to be a TPS registrant.
- (g) Has filed an application for late registration with the appropriate Service director within a 60-day period immediately following the expiration or termination of conditions described in paragraph (f)(2) of this section.

The initial registration period for Hondurans was from January 5, 1999 to August 20, 1999. The record reveals that the applicant filed the current application with CIS on February 25, 2005.

To qualify for late registration, the applicant must provide evidence that during the initial registration period she fell within at least one of the provisions described in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(f)(2) above.

The burden of proof is upon the applicant to establish that he or she meets the above requirements. Applicants shall submit all documentation as required in the instructions or requested by CIS. 8 C.F.R. § 244.9(a). The sufficiency of all evidence will be judged according to its relevancy, consistency, credibility, and probative value. To meet his or her burden of proof, the applicant must provide supporting documentary evidence of eligibility apart from his or her own statements. 8 C.F.R. § 244.9(b).

The applicant has failed to provide any evidence to establish that this application should be accepted as a late initial registration under 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(f)(2). As noted above, the applicant's previous TPS application also was filed outside of the initial registration period. That application was denied and the subsequent appeal and motions were dismissed because the applicant did not establish her eligibility for late registration. Because the applicant has not established her eligibility for late initial registration, this application also must be denied for this reason.

In addition, the applicant also has failed to submit sufficient evidence to establish her continuous residence in the United States since December 30, 1998, and her continuous physical presence in the United States since January 5, 1999. The applicant did not submit documentation for the early portion of the requisite periods, and much of the documentation is generic and cannot be directly linked to the applicant. Therefore, the applicant has not met the requirements under 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(b) and (c) and the application must also be denied for these reasons.

The application will be denied for the above stated reasons, with each considered as an independent and alternative basis for denial. An alien applying for temporary protected status has the burden of proving that he or she meets the requirements enumerated above and is otherwise eligible under the provisions of section 244 of the Act. The applicant has failed to meet this burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.