Perry Rhew
Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The applicant's Temporary Protected Status was withdrawn by the Director, Vermont Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant is a citizen of Honduras who is seeking Temporary Protected Status (TPS) under section 244 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1254.

The record reveals that the applicant filed a TPS application during the initial registration period on June 30, 1999. The Director, Texas Service Center, approved that application on April 10, 2000.

The director may withdraw the status of an alien granted Temporary Protected Status under section 244 of the Act at any time if it is determined that the alien was not in fact eligible at the time such status was granted, or at any time thereafter becomes ineligible for such status. 8.C.F.R. § 244.14(a)(1).

The director withdrew temporary protected status because the applicant had been convicted of two misdemeanors.

On appeal, counsel for the applicant states that the applicant had not been convicted of a misdemeanor.

An alien shall not be eligible for temporary protected status under this section if the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security finds that the alien has been convicted of any felony or two or more misdemeanors committed in the United States. See Section 244(c)(2)(B)(i) of the Act and 8 C.F.R. § 244.4(a).

8 C.F.R. § 244.1 defines "felony" and "misdemeanor:"

Felony means a crime committed in the United States, punishable by imprisonment for a term of more than one year, regardless of the term such alien actually served, if any, except: When the offense is defined by the State as a misdemeanor and the sentence actually imposed is one year or less regardless of the term such alien actually served. Under this exception for purposes of section 244 of the Act, the crime shall be treated as a misdemeanor.

Misdemeanor means a crime committed in the United States, either

- (1) Punishable by imprisonment for a term of one year or less, regardless of the term such alien actually served, if any, or
- (2) A crime treated as a misdemeanor under the term "felony" of this section.

For purposes of this definition, any crime punishable by imprisonment for a maximum term of five days or less shall not be considered a misdemeanor. 8 C.F.R. § 244.1.

An alien is inadmissible if he has been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude (other than a purely political offense), or if he admits having committed such crime, or if he admits committing an act which constitutes the essential elements of such crime. Section 212(a)(2)(A)(i)(I) of the Act.

The record reveals the following offenses:

- (1) On February 13, 2008, the applicant was arrested by the Palm Beach, Florida Sheriff's Office for "Domestic Battery" and "Battery" [REDACTED]

Pursuant to a notice dated January 26, 2009, the applicant was requested to submit the final court disposition for each of the charges detailed above. The applicant submitted the requested court documentation. According to the court disposition, on March 24, 2008, the applicant pled guilty and was convicted of "Domestic Battery" and "Battery," both misdemeanors.

The director withdrew temporary protected status because the applicant had been convicted of two misdemeanors.

On appeal, the applicant states that the applicant was not convicted of any misdemeanors. According to counsel, the applicant completed and abided by all the stated requirements of his sentencing and the case was subsequently [REDACTED]. Counsel also contends that even if the applicant was convicted, he was only convicted of one crime because the two offenses arose out of the same scheme. However, the term 'conviction' means, with respect to an alien, a formal judgment of guilt of the alien entered by a court or, adjudication of guilt has been withheld, where - (i) a judge or jury has found the alien guilty or the alien has entered a plea of guilty or nolo contendere or has admitted sufficient facts to warrant a finding of guilt, and (ii) the judge has ordered some form of punishment, penalty, or restraint on the alien's liberty to be imposed. Section 101(a)(48)(A) of the Act.

Section 322(c) of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (IIRAIRA), specifically states that the amendment of the definition of conviction "shall apply to convictions and sentences entered before, on, or after the date of enactment of this Act. As the Supreme Court stated in Landgraf v. US Film Prods., 511 U.S. 244, 114 S. Ct. 1483 (1994), the principle of applying the law in effect at the time of the decision does not conflict with the "presumption against retroactivity when the statute in question is unambiguous." Concerning the definition of conviction, the unambiguous language of section 322(c) leaves no doubt that Congress intended for the amendment in section 322(a) to be applied retroactively. Moose v. INS, 171 F.3d 994, 1007 (5th Cir. 1999).

The court disposition submitted reflects that the applicant pled guilty to the offense and the judge ordered some form of punishment, as detailed above. Therefore, the applicant has been "convicted" of these offenses for immigration purposes. Furthermore, Congress has not provided any exception for aliens who have been accorded rehabilitative treatment under state law. State rehabilitative actions that do not vacate a conviction on the merits are of no effect in determining whether an alien is considered convicted for immigration purposes. Matter of Roldan, 22 I&N Dec. 512, (BIA 1999). Therefore, the applicant remains convicted of this offense, despite the dismissal of the charge subsequent to the applicant's completion of the probation period.

The fact that the offenses arose from a common scheme does not preclude them from being counted as separate offenses. However, while the determination of whether the applicant's crimes arose "out of a single scheme of criminal misconduct" may be relevant to an individual's removability under section 237 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), this determination has no bearing on the applicant's eligibility for TPS. Black's Law Dictionary, 353 (7th Ed., 1999) defines the term "count" to mean a separate and distinct claim in a complaint or similar pleading. It also indicates that the term "count" is used to signify the part of an indictment charging a distinct offense. According to the court disposition, the applicant was charged with two separate violations to which he pled guilty to two separate crimes and the court ordered two separate punishments. Therefore, the applicant has been convicted of two separate and distinct misdemeanor offenses.

The applicant is, therefore, ineligible for TPS because of his misdemeanors convictions. 8 C.F.R. § 244.4(a). Accordingly, the director's decision to withdraw TPS is affirmed.

An alien applying for temporary protected status has the burden of proving that he or she meets the requirements enumerated above and is otherwise eligible under the provisions of section 244 of the Act. The applicant has failed to meet this burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
