DISCUSSION: The application was denied by the Director, California Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant claims to be a citizen of Haiti who is seeking Temporary Protected Status (TPS) under section 244 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1254.

The director denied the application because the applicant failed to establish she was eligible for late registration.

On appeal, the applicant states that her spouse and children are residing in the United States because they have no place to reside in Haiti. The applicant requests that her TPS application be granted.

Section 244(c) of the Act, and the related regulations in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2, provide that an applicant who is a national of a foreign state is eligible for TPS only if such alien establishes that he or she:

- (a) Is a national of a state designated under section 244(b) of the Act;
- (b) Has been continuously physically present in the United States since the effective date of the most recent designation of that foreign state;
- (c) Has continuously resided in the United States since such date as the Secretary may designate;
- (d) Is admissible as an immigrant except as provided under section 244.3;
- (e) Is not ineligible under 8 C.F.R. § 244.4; and
- (f)
 - (1) Registers for TPS during the initial registration period announced by public notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER, or
 - (2) During any subsequent extension of such designation if at the time of the initial registration period:
 - (i) The applicant is a nonimmigrant or has been granted voluntary departure status or any relief from removal;
 - (ii) The applicant has an application for change of status, adjustment of status, asylum, voluntary departure, or any relief from removal which is pending or subject to further review or appeal;
 - (iii) The applicant is a parolee or has a pending request for reparole; or

- (iv) The applicant is a spouse or child of an alien currently eligible to be a TPS registrant.
- (g) Has filed an application for late registration with the appropriate Service director within a 60-day period immediately following the expiration or termination of conditions described in paragraph (f)(2) of this section.

On January 21, 2010, the Secretary designated Haiti as a country eligible for TPS. This designation allowed nationals of Haiti who have continuously resided in the United States since January 12, 2010, and who have been continuously physically present in the United States since January 21, 2010, to apply for TPS. On May 19, 2011, the Secretary re-designated Haiti for TPS eligibility which became effective on July 23, 2011. This re-designation allowed nationals of Haiti who have continuously resided in the United States since January 12, 2011, and who have been continuously physically present in the United States since July 23, 2011, to apply for TPS. The initial registration period for the re-designation began on May 19, 2011, and ended on November 15, 2011. On October 1, 2012, the Secretary announced an extension of the TPS designation for Haiti until July 22, 2014, upon the applicant's re-registration during the requisite time period.

To qualify for late registration, the applicant must provide evidence that during the initial registration period she fell within at least one of the provisions described in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(f)(2) above. If the qualifying condition or application has expired or been terminated, the individual must file within a 60-day period immediately following the expiration or termination of the qualifying condition in order to be considered for the late initial registration. 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(g).

The burden of proof is upon the applicant to establish that he or she meets the above requirements. Applicants shall submit all documentation as required in the instructions or requested by U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS). 8 C.F.R. § 244.9(a). The sufficiency of all evidence will be judged according to its relevancy, consistency, credibility, and probative value. To meet his or her burden of proof, the applicant must provide supporting documentary evidence of eligibility apart from his or her own statements. 8 C.F.R. § 244.9(b).

The record reflects that the applicant filed her initial TPS application on November 13, 2012. Along with her TPS application, the applicant submitted copies of: (1) her Haitian birth certificate; (2) the biographical page of her Haitian passport; (3) her Form I-94, Arrival-Departure Record, which reflected she was admitted into the United States on April 7, 2012, as a nonimmigrant visitor; and (4) the biographical page of her U.S. visa issued on July 14, 2011 in Nassau, Bahamas. The visa page has entry stamps admitting the applicant into the United States as a nonimmigrant visitor on August 23, 2011 and April 2012, and an entry stamp into the Bahamas on September 2, 2011.

On December 17, 2012, the applicant was requested to submit evidence establishing her eligibility for late registration as set forth in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(f)(2). The applicant, in response, provided a statement from her spouse requesting that his family be granted TPS. The applicant also provided a statement from a family friend attesting to the residence of the applicant's spouse in the United States and a copy of a Florida death certificate (June 9, 2012) of her child.

The director determined that the applicant had failed to establish she was eligible for late registration and denied the application on February 13, 2013.

The applicant's assertion that she and her family are residing in the United States because they have no place to reside in Haiti is not persuasive. USCIS records reflect that upon each arrival into the United States, the applicant claimed the Bahamas as her country of residence. The applicant provides no evidence to support a claim of residence in Haiti. It is noted that the applicant's children and spouse were born in the Bahamas.

On appeal, the applicant neither addresses the finding of her ineligibility as a late registrant nor provides any evidence to establish her eligibility as a late registrant. The provisions for late registration detailed in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(f)(2) were created in order to ensure that TPS benefits were made available to aliens who did not register during the initial registration period for the various circumstances specifically identified in the regulations. The applicant has not submitted evidence that she has met one of those provisions outlined in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(f)(2). Consequently, the director's decision to deny the application for TPS will be affirmed.

An application or petition that fails to comply with the technical requirements of the law may be denied by the AAO even if the Service Center does not identify all of the grounds for denial in the initial decision. See Spencer Enterprises, Inc. v. United States, 229 F. Supp. 2d 1025, 1043 (E.D. Cal. 2001), aff'd, 345 F.3d 683 (9th Cir. 2003); see also Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004) (noting that the AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis).

Beyond the decision of the director, as noted above, the applicant's last entry into the United States was on April 7, 2012. The applicant, therefore, cannot meet the criteria for continuous residence since January 12, 2011 and for continuous physical presence since July 23, 2011 as described in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2 (b) and (c). Consequently, the TPS application must be denied on these grounds as well.

The application will be denied for the above stated reasons, with each considered as an independent and alternative basis for denial. An alien applying for TPS has the burden of proving that he or she meets the requirements enumerated above and is otherwise eligible under the provisions of section 244 of the Act. The applicant has failed to meet this burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
