DISCUSSION: The application was denied by the Director, California Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant claims to be a citizen of Haiti who is seeking Temporary Protected Status (TPS) under section 244 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1254.

The director denied the application because the applicant failed to establish he was eligible for late registration.

On appeal, the applicant, through his legal guardian, asserts that the late filing of the TPS application is due to the failure of his then legal guardian.

Section 244(c) of the Act, and the related regulations in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2, provide that an applicant who is a national of a foreign state is eligible for TPS only if such alien establishes that he or she:

- (a) Is a national of a state designated under section 244(b) of the Act;
- (b) Has been continuously physically present in the United States since the effective date of the most recent designation of that foreign state;
- (c) Has continuously resided in the United States since such date as the Secretary may designate;
- (d) Is admissible as an immigrant except as provided under section 244.3;
- (e) Is not ineligible under 8 C.F.R. § 244.4; and
- (f)
 - (1) Registers for TPS during the initial registration period announced by public notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER, or
 - (2) During any subsequent extension of such designation if at the time of the initial registration period:
 - (i) The applicant is a nonimmigrant or has been granted voluntary departure status or any relief from removal;
 - (ii) The applicant has an application for change of status, adjustment of status, asylum, voluntary departure, or any relief from removal which is pending or subject to further review or appeal;
 - (iii) The applicant is a parolee or has a pending request for reparole; or

- (iv) The applicant is a spouse or child of an alien currently eligible to be a TPS registrant.
- (g) Has filed an application for late registration with the appropriate Service director within a 60-day period immediately following the expiration or termination of conditions described in paragraph (f)(2) of this section.

On January 21, 2010, the Secretary designated Haiti as a country eligible for TPS. This designation allowed nationals of Haiti who have continuously resided in the United States since January 12, 2010, and who have been continuously physically present in the United States since January 21, 2010, to apply for TPS. On May 19, 2011, the Secretary re-designated Haiti for TPS eligibility which became effective on July 23, 2011. This re-designation allowed nationals of Haiti who have continuously resided in the United States since January 12, 2011, and who have been continuously physically present in the United States since July 23, 2011, to apply for TPS. The initial registration period for the re-designation began on May 19, 2011, and ended on November 15, 2011. On October 1, 2012, the Secretary announced an extension of the TPS designation for Haiti until July 22, 2014, upon the applicant's re-registration during the requisite time period.

To qualify for late registration, the applicant must provide evidence that during the initial registration period he fell within at least one of the provisions described in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(f)(2) above. If the qualifying condition or application has expired or been terminated, the individual must file within a 60-day period immediately following the expiration or termination of the qualifying condition in order to be considered for the late initial registration. 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(g).

The burden of proof is upon the applicant to establish that he or she meets the above requirements. Applicants shall submit all documentation as required in the instructions or requested by U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS). 8 C.F.R. § 244.9(a). The sufficiency of all evidence will be judged according to its relevancy, consistency, credibility, and probative value. To meet his or her burden of proof, the applicant must provide supporting documentary evidence of eligibility apart from his or her own statements. 8 C.F.R. § 244.9(b).

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record.

USCIS records reflect that the applicant was admitted into the United States on August 4, 2010 as a nonimmigrant visitor, and was authorized to remain until February 3, 2011.

The record reflects that the applicant filed his initial TPS application on January 30, 2013. Along with the TPS application, the applicant provided a copy of the biographical page of his Haitian passport issued on November 20, 2012 and his birth certificate with English translation.

On April 19, 2013, the applicant was requested to submit evidence establishing his eligibility for late registration as set forth in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(f)(2). The applicant, in response, only provided evidence in an attempt to establish his residence and physical presence in the United States.

The director, in denying the application, indicated that the applicant's non-immigrant status had expired on February 3, 2011 and that no evidence was submitted to indicate that his status has been extended. The director further indicated that the applicant's non-immigrant status could not grant him eligibility to file an application under the late initial provisions because a TPS application was not filed within the 60 days following the expiration of his status. 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(g). Accordingly, the director denied the application on July 19, 2013.

On appeal, the applicant's current legal guardian, [REDACTED] states that upon finishing his academic year in Florida, the applicant went to reside in New York with his then legal guardian, [REDACTED] for approximately three years. [REDACTED] asserts, in pertinent part:

[The applicant] who just turned eighteen was a minor around the TPS initial registration period for Haitians. Although he was eligible for TPS, he was unable to apply on his own. [REDACTED] his then legal guardian at the time failed to do so on his behalf. [REDACTED] did not cease the opportunity to apply for TPS for [the applicant], within those three (3) years; which would have giving him the temporary protected status and employment authorization he so needed to flourish in the United States.

[REDACTED] letter on appeal raises questions to its authenticity as the above statements were not addressed in her earlier letter. Specifically, [REDACTED], in her letter of January 25, 2013, indicated that the applicant "lost his passport and his I-94, could not apply for the TPS. Not ever finding it; he made a new one and now wants to apply in spite of the absence of his I-94."

Nevertheless, there is no provision to waive the registration requirement based upon the above claim. The applicant has not submitted any evidence to establish that he has met any of the criteria for late registration described in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(f)(2) and (g). Consequently, the director's decision to deny the application for TPS will be affirmed.

An alien applying for TPS has the burden of proving that he or she meets the requirements enumerated above and is otherwise eligible under the provisions of section 244 of the Act. The applicant has failed to meet this burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
